Ike, De Gaulle End Talks

One-Cent Boost In Gasoline Tax Voted By House

Bill Passed 243-162, Sent To Senate

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Thursday approved a penny a gallon increase in federal gasoline taxes to keep construction of the 41,000-mile interstate highway network from bogging down.

The bill, passed on a 243 - 162 roll call vote, was sent to the Senate where opposition is considered stronger than in the House. Some senators were plugging highway financing schemes which did not involve any tax hike.

The House bill would raise the federal tax on gasoline from the present three cents to four cents a gallon for 22 months. This would cost highway users nearly a billion dollars over that period, with the money going into the special fund that finances road construction.

The legislation also provides that after the penny increase expires, certain automotive excise taxes, which now go into the general treasury fund, would be transferred to the special highway fund. The overall bill carries a price tag of $3,500,000,000.

The bill was put before the House on a take-it-or-leave-it basis. Members were barred from offering amendments to reduce the amount of the tax increase. No such limitation will be in effect in the Senate and a fight is expected over proposals to cut the tax hike.

President Eisenhower had asked that the gasoline tax be raised to 4½ cents to block a threatened cutoff in highway building. But he has called the pending measure a step in the right direction although he opposes dipping into general treasury funds for highways.

Voting for the bill on final passage were 138 Democrats and 105 Republicans. Opposed were 127 Democrats and 35 Republicans.

House backers of the tax increase told their colleagues they disliked the idea of raising the levy but that the alternative was to permit a drastic reduction in the highway program.

House Groups Approve Bond Interest Hike

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Democrat leaders rushed a bill to permit higher interest rates on government savings bonds through two committees Thursday and headed it toward almost certain House passage Friday.

The measure, introduced only Wednesday, would allow President Eisenhower to raise interest rates on Series E and H savings bonds now held by 40 million Americans. It also would permit higher rates on such bonds bought in the future.

The procedure under which the bill will be considered will bar amendments by rank - and - file members. But it will give Republicans a last-gasp chance to try to substitute the President's broader proposal to hike interest on long-term marketable bonds as well.

The House Ways & Means Committee first approved the bill by voice vote after voting 14-11 to reject the President's plan.

Chairman Wilbur D. Mills (D-Ark.) promptly went before the House Rules Committee, which controls the flow of legislation to the floor, and won permission to bring up the bill Friday.

The Rules Committee, like the Ways & Means group, refused to substitute the President's plan for the more limited proposal worked out by Democratic leaders.

But it agreed to give the full House a chance to vote on the issue. This will come at the end of debate on the bill when GOP leaders will be free to offer a motion to return the bill to the Ways & Means Committee with instructions to substitute the Eisenhower plan.

The planned Republican move was given almost no chance of success, however.

One Killed, 10 Hurt In Denver Gas Blast

DENVER (AP)—An explosion ripped through a downtown Denver street corner Thursday, killing one man and injuring at least 10 persons.

The dead man was Carl W. Riley, about 60. His body was found in the rubble of a liquor store by firemen. All of the casualties were residents of Denver.

Officials said the blast apparently was caused by leaking gas. A crew of men in the area told reporters they had been repairing a gas main.

350 Uninjured As Wind Blows Roof Off School

MILLSAP, Tex. (AP)—A severe windstorm tore the roof off the high school here Thursday. The estimated 350 pupils and teachers escaped injury.

The blast of wind struck as a severe squall line swept across a part of Texas.

P.T. Dunning, school superintendent, said many pupils were in the cafeteria when the wind hit about 11 a.m.

"When the wind started blowing out windows in the cafeteria, we sent all the students to the storage room for protection," Dunning said.

Entire 75,000 Shots Of Stolen Vaccine Found

MONTREAL (AP) —Provincial police announced Thursday they have recovered the entire $50,000 lot of Salk vaccine stolen from a Montreal laboratory by masked gunmen Monday.

Director Hilaire Beauregard of the Quebec provincial police said the vaccine—75,000 shots in all—had been found in an apartment house in East Montreal.

He reported the vaccine appeared in good condition and said "I think doctors will find it has not deteriorated."

He declined to go into details of the discovery.

Four gunmen forced their way into a University of Montreal laboratory early Monday and carried off the antipolio vaccine.

Two hundred vials of vaccine found in a suburban drugstore were seized by police Tuesday. They said it bore the same serial number as part of the stolen shipment.

A 26-year old employe of a provincial health center, believed to have sold the vaccine to the drugstore proprietor was arrested near the drugstore Tuesday.

Police announced Wednesday night they were holding the man for further questioning.

Bloody Calcutta Riots Continue; Army Called In

CALCUTTA, India (AP)—Communist-led mobs surged throughout the riot-ridden, strike-bound Calcutta area Thursday, attacking police stations and patrol squads with guns, bombs and knives.

Ten or more persons were killed and at least 37 wounded.

It was the fourth straight day of open battle against the West Bengal state government. Prime Minister Nehru's Indian federal government also is being drawn into the fight.

Communists declare they are fighting for proper distribution of food and against high prices.

After a day of shifting but apparently systematic attack by the mobs, the Indian army had to be called upon to restore and keep order Thursday night in the sprawling industrial slums of Howrah, across the Hooghly River from Calcutta.

Other Indian troops were held ready to take over completely if the Bengal state police fail to suppress the rioting.

For the first time in this week's fighting, major battles developed at police installations on both sides of the Hooghly.

The Howrah police headquarters and a dozen substations were attacked by the howling thousands and in Calcutta proper police were at times held at bay.

During the apparently synchronized attacks on Howrah police stations and other clashes, police gunfire killed seven and wounded at least four.

A policeman injured by a bomb explosion was surrounded by a mob of about 1,000 and his throat cut, police reported.

Twenty-five policemen were seriously injured in Howrah.

In Calcutta rowdies barricaded the streets during the day. Most fled when police came to clear the roads, but sometimes they threw bombs.

Police opened fire on at least 14 occasions in Calcutta.

Five policemen were injured. Police arrested 200 persons. After the army was called in to take over Howrah only sporadic trouble was reported.

Meat Packers Call Strike At Swift, Wilson Plants

CHICAGO (AP) — Two meatpacking unions Thursday called a strike of more than 21,000 workers at Swift & Co. and Wilson & Co. plants throughout the country for midnight Thursday.

In a surprise strike call, the unions — Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen and the United Packinghouse Workers of America — first announced a walkout of 16,000 Swift workers in 35 cities.

Later, the UPWA announced it was ordering 5,500 Wilson workers in nine cities to strike.

The announcement regarding Swift came shortly after a joint bargaining session held under the auspices of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service which was adjourned to Sept. 8.

The Wilson announcement came after a similar meeting between representatives of the UPWA and the giant meat packing firm.

Like Swift, Wilson has asked for a recess in negotiations.

The statement of union leaders said "Swift officials remained unyielding in their refusal to meet the minimum contract terms already agreed upon by our unions in negotiatoons with firms representing the overwhelming proportion of workers in the meat packing industry."

The statement accused Swift of demanding wage cuts up to 31½ cents an hour for thousands and for reduced health benefits for every worker in Swift employ.

Compromise Labor Reform Bill Passed 95-2 By Senate

Measure Sent To House For Action Today

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Thursday night passed a compromise bill aimed at ending racketeering in labor unions.

The vote was 95-2.

The compromise was sent to the House which plans to act on it Friday. President Eisenhower is considered certain to sign the bill — the first major labor legislation in 12 years.

In its final draft, the compromise came fairly close to the stringent form in which the original bill passed the House.

Its main provisions seek to safeguard the rights of union members and protect union treasuries from misuse by unscrupulous labor leaders.

The bill also applies bans against such labor practices as secondary boycotts and restricts organizational picketing, among other things.

Morse Speaks 4½ Hours

It took all day and into the evening for the Senate finally to approve the compromise.

Sen. Wayne Morse (D - Ore) spoke for 4 hours and 35 minutes urging its rejection. But other senators praised the measure, although some said they considered it went too far and others said it didn't go far enough.

Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass) said he had no apologies for the compromise. He said, too, he believed every senator could vote for it in good conscience.

Sen. John L. McClellan (D-Ark), chairman of the Senate rackets committee, said enactment of the bill would be "a long step towards the remedial legislation needed in labor-management relations."

It was the disclosures of the rackets committee — particularly concerning James R. Hoffa's Teamsters Union—that built much of the fire for new labor control measures.

Only Bill Possible—Kennedy

Kennedy said the measure went further in some areas than he considered desirable or necessary. But, he asserted: "I will say frankly it is the only bill it is possible to obtain in all the circumstances."

Kennedy was chairman of the Senate-House conference committee which whipped the compromise anticorruption measure into shape late Wednesday after long bargaining.

The bill would legalize picketing by construction unions at a job involving several subcontractors, even though this meant a secondary boycott against a neutral employer not involved in dispute.

Kennedy said he had been assured by Democratic and Republican leaders of the House and Senate this would get consideration next year.

Sen. Thomas H. Kuchel of California, assistant Republican Senate leader, cosponsored this bill with Kennedy.

Kuchel noted to a newsmen that President Eisenhower had recommended such a provision in his labor message to Congress in January.

Bomb In Sack Kills Woman

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP) — Who would want to do away with Pearl Kongsle, a friendly 62-year-old widow?

Was her death Wednesday night —by a bomb placed in her front yard—connected with the unsolved poisonings of her niece and the niece's husband?

There is a strong possibility it was a vengeance slaying by an embittered acquaintance, Detective Sgt. Austin Seth said Thursday. Information from relatives has started a search for a man known to Mrs. Kongsle, he said.

Mrs. Kongsle was killed as she picked up a brown paper sack on her front walk Wednesday night. It contained the bomb. A leg and hand were blown off.

Tests show the explosive was some sort of nitrate, probably liquid. Rounded bits of glass, probably from a bottle, were found embedded in her flesh.

Blast Rips Denver Business Area

This photograph of an explosion that ripped a Denver business district corner at noon yesterday was snapped about five mintues after the blast by Keith Shostrom, a government employe whose office is across the street. City workers are shown rushing to the scene following the explosion, believed to have been caused by an accumulation of gas. One man was killed and at least 10 persons injured.

Vetoed Public Works Bill Cut By House Unit

brief protest, a House Appropriations subcommittee decided Thursday to take out of the public works bill the 67 projects that had moved President Eisenhower to veto it.

This brought the total down to $1,164,000,000, and the full Appropriations Committee is expected to send the scaled-down bill to the House floor early next week.

For a time Thursday there was talk of punishing those House members who helped uphold Eisenhower's veto. The original bill failed of passage over the veto by only one vote in the House Wednesday.

It is called "pork barrel" legislation because it proposes to distribute favorite back - home projects—most of them river and harbor or flood control works — among the congressmen's districts.

Rep. Clarence Cannon (D-Mo), chairman of the Appropriations Committee, said his group will go to work on a new bill. It voted 23-19 for a subcommittee to do the work.

A top Democrat explained to a newsman: "We want to take a close look at some of these projects."

"Many of them are in districts represented by members who voted to uphold the veto for economy reasons. We may decide to give them some real economy right in their own backyards," he said.

This could be done by reducing or eliminating funds for selected projects.

Eisenhower vetoed the $1,216,000,000 bill because, he said, it contained 67 projects which were not in the administration's budget. They were in 32 states, and called for spending $51,510,600 at the start and $804,526,000 eventually.

AF Flies Out Bodies Of Alaska Crash Dead

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — The Air Force prepared Thursday to bring out the bodies of six young magazine salesgirls, their crew chief and a pilot who died in a central Alaska plane crash Tuesday night.

Rescuers reported from the scene the bodies were nearly unrecognizable. The chartered plane crashed, exploded and burned near McGrath, about 250 miles northwest of here.

The magazine-selling crew was homeward bound to Seattle after completing an aerial swing through Alaska that carried the girls and their supervisor as far as the arctic village of Kotzebue on the Bering Sea.

Laos Town Awaits All-Out Red Attack

SAM NEUA, Laos (AP)—Communist rebels were reported massing 27 miles north of Sam Neua Thursday for an all-out attack on this royal army headquarters for northern Laos. The commanding general predicted an assault will come within 10 days.

"It's not pretty," he said in a terse assessment of the situation.

The town of 2,500 prepared for a last-ditch defense. Army officers issued submachine guns and ammunition to government workers and school teachers. A handful of paratroopers was moved into thin outlying defenses.

The commander of northern military headquarters, Brig. Gen. Amkha Soukhaving, said Communist advance units were probing his advance lines only 18 miles away.

"They will attack within 10 days at the most," he warned.

He said Laos rebels and regulars from Communist North Viet Nam were gathering in the jungle-covered mountains 27 miles north of Sam Neua. There are 4,500 Red supporters concentrated in the area between the town and the North Viet Nam border, 40 miles to the northeast, he added.

Amkha said he had only one battalion of infantry in Sam Neua but another battalion is expected soon. A Laos battalion ranges from 400 to 800 men.

"We have six more battalions elsewhere in the province," Amkha said, "but I cannot get them here. The world knows our problem. Why don't they send us helicopters and planes which could bring troops in and take out wounded"

Despite the military commander's gloomy assessment, the town of Sam Neua was sleepily quiet. Residents strolled in the streets, shopped and lounged in the shade, watching the troops moving north. Even those issued guns showed no excitement.

Earlier, Defense Secretary Phoumi Nosavan said at least one battalion of Communist Vietnamese regulars were in the field on the Sam Neua front.

Nosavan talked to reporters in Vietiane, the administrative capital 200 miles south of Sam Neua.

The Laotian rebels belong to the Communist Pathet Lao movement, that controlled the northern provinces of Sam Neua and Phong Saly until two years ago.

Royal troops are being shoved back on a 35-mile front by the insurgents who are bolstered by Vietnamese heavy artillery, Nosavau said.

Eight Governors Of 'Steel States' Appeal To Ike

NEW YORK (UPI) — Eight "steel state" governors asked President Eisenhower Thursday to meet with them "at the earliest possible moment" to discuss the eight-week-old steel walkout.

Their telegraphed plea to Eisenhower came just before David J. McDonald, president of the United Steelworkers, reported that there was no progress in the contract negotiations with management. He offered no hope of an early settlement.

The governors told Eisenhower that "the damaging effect of the steel stoppage on our respectibe states is already critical and growing more so every day."

Refrigerator, TV Moved To Castle For Ike's Visit

TURNBERRY, Scotland (AP)—For President Eisenhower's stay at Culzean Castle his hosts have moved in an American refrigerator, a British TV set and a Scottish lord.

Eisenhower arrives Friday for a rest after his tour of the Bonn-London-Paris diplomatic circuit.

He will drive to Culzean—pronounced Cullane — Castle from nearby Prestwick Airport.

Scotland long ago gave Eisenhower a 16-room apartment on the third floor of the castle as a token of its appreciation for his command of Western Allied forces in World War II. The spacious and well-furnished apartment is his for life.

The castle and its surroundings were the scene of swarming activity Thursday in the preparation for the President's arrival.

The 33 - year - old Marquess of Ailsa moved in from his own nearby castle, called Casillis. He gave Culzean to the National Trust, an agency that preserves and administers national monuments and beauty spots.

The refrigerator was borrowed from the U.S. Air Force.

The TV set was rented from a Scottish electrician.

The marquess thought it would be a nice gesture to move into the castle while Eisenhower is here He plans to welcome the President at the gates.

The blue-eyed, kilt-wearing marquess and the marchioness will live on the ground floor while Eisenhower will stay on the third.

Eisenhower is due at Prestwick at 10:30 a.m. His drive along the coast will take him through several vacation resorts and the fishing village of Dunure.

New Algeria Policy Given Green Light

Agree Summit Talks Should Be Held Only If Chance Of Results

PARIS (AP)—Presidents Eisenhower and De Gaulle Thursday night wound up two days of "very friendly" talks ranging from summit conference possibilities to the Algerian rebellion.

A communique on meeting of the American and French leaders was issued after President Eisenhower told his Western Allies peace is assured if the West remains firm in principle, flexible in tactics and patriotically devoted to the North Atlantic alliance.

"Then there will be no war," Eisenhower said.

Although the communique said only that North Africa was discussed by the leaders, White House press secretary James Hagerty later disclosed they had taken up a new policy toward Algeria. Hagerty said De Gaulle is to disclose the policy after Eisenhower leaves France Friday for a Scottish holiday.

Hagerty said "it would be inappropriate for us to make any comment until De Gaulle has made his statement."

U.S. Statement Planned

Asked if the United States would have something to say after De Gaulle makes his public disclosure, Hagerty replied, "Yes."

Eisenhower and De Gaulle agreed that a summit conference would be useful in principle, but said one should be held "only when there is some possibility of definite accomplishment."

Their communique said they were in complete agreement on the question of Berlin.

It also said they reaffirmed the importance they attach to the resumption of negotiations on general and controlled disarmament and to the problem of assistance to underdeveloped areas.

Hagerty said De Gaulle and Eisenhower took up the French President's desire for closer coordination of Western policy by the United States, Britain and France.

"They had a general discussion of how to keep in touch," Hagerty said. "This is to be informal."

As for their accord on Berlin, Hagerty said:

"I think the position of both our countries, and indeed the free world, is clear. The integrity of Berlin must be preserved. Our right of entry must be maintained."

Invitation Still Stands

Asked if Eisenhower had invited De Gaulle to the United States, Hagerty said the French leader had been given an invitation the day he took office and it still stands. He said Eisenhower would be delighted to see De Gaulle in the United States but that he understood De Gaulle's schedule precludes any visit soon.

Eisenhower's words on assuring peace were spoken before the 15-nation NATO Council in a surprise visit sandwiched between talks with De Gaulle and other Western leaders.

"NATO is a matter of spirit, of determination to work as partners

Khrush To Land At Andrews

WASHINGTON (AP) — Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev will land at Andrews Air Force Base in Maryland instead of Washington National Airport when he arrives Sept. 15.

These are the present plans, because the heavy TU114 Russian jet can not land as safely at Washington airport as it can at the larger Andrews runway.

Khrushchev's arrival at Andrews would mean a longer ride for President Eisenhower in his announced plan of greeting the Kremlin leader at the airport. Andrews is about 15 miles from the White House, compared with about 3 miles for the National Airport where foreign dignitaries usually arrive.

The schedule calls for a ceremonial profession through the capital city after Khrushchev's big plane gets in at 10 a.m. Sept. 15.

Washington police have charted a procession route leading from Andrews, to 14th Street., which is usually used for processions coming in from National Airport on the Virginia side of the Potomac River.

After reaching 14th Street., the Khrushchev party is slated to proceed to Blair House—the President's guest house across Pennsylvania Avenue from the White House.

15 Argentine Generals Face Arrest In Revolt

Garrisons Defy War Secretary

BUENOS AIRES (UPI)—Fifteen top officers involved in a "generals rebellion" in the Argentine army were ordered arrested Thursday.

One of the generals was reported to have eluded capture and gone to Cordoba to take command of the dissident garrison there. The officers Wednesday refused to accept the ouster of Gen. Carlos S. Toranzo as commander of the army.

The missing officer was identified as Gen. Rosendo Fraga. He and the other dissident generals were ordered tried by court martial.

Toranzo was fired Wednesday by Secretary of War Gen. Elbio C. Anaya following reports the commander planned to dismiss a number of subordinates without consulting the secretary of war.

Military garrisons throughout the country, led by the Cordoba garrison, refused to accept the ouster and informed Anaya they would accept orders only from Toranzo.

Gen. Pedro S. Castineiras was slated to be sworn in to replace Toranzo.

The crisis came only two months after a similar generals rebellion in which Gen. Hector Solanas Pacheco was ousted as secretary of war and replaced by Anaya. In that crisis, the Cordoba garrison also played an important part.

The crisis apparently was a new outbreak of friction between the army men who overthrew dictator Juan D. Peron in 1955 and a Catholic nationalist faction in the army called the "Green Dragon Lodge," which sympathized with Peronist policies.

The faction opposing the Green Dragon Lodge is composed of anti-Peronistas such as Toranzo, known as "Gorillas," who fear a return of Peronista influence. This faction points to the two million Peronista votes President Arturo Frondizi got in last year's election.

Air Force Halts Search For Crew Of 'Ghost Plane'

WIESBADEN, Germany (AP)—The silence of the North African desert has settled again over one of the mysteries of World War II. The U.S. Air Force Thursday called off a search for the remains of the nine crewmen of a "ghost bomber" that came down in the Libyan wastes 16 years ago.

The bomber, a B24 Liberator named "Lady Be Good," was found by a team of geologists last spring about 440 miles southeast of the Libyan port city of Bangasi. The plane was virtually intact and apparently had made a pilotless belly-landing on its return from a bombing raid on Naples, Italy, in the moonless night of April 4, 1943.

The log book, instruments and other equipment were untouched. Water jugs and coffee flasks were still full. The crew had bailed out over the desert without any means of survival. But why? And how did the men die?

To answer these questions, Air Force-directed search teams covered thousands of square miles on ground and by air in the lifeless area of sand. All they found were a trail of parachute markers, the mummified body of a nomad who presumably died more than half a century ago, and the bones of a few camels.

Tawes Praises Maryland Fire Control Record

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP)—Gov. J. Millard Tawes, an old fireman, praised Maryland's outstanding record Thursday in fire prevention but said it should be better.

Tawes reminded volunteer firemen here for the University of Maryland's annual short course in fire fighting and prevention that 92 persons lost their lives in Maryland last year "in fires that could have been, and should have been, prevented."

In addition, he said, the insured property loss from fires in the state came to $10,958,000.

The state's record in fire control was still good enough for insurance companies to reduce premiums on a statewide across-the-board basis by 7 per cent and on residential property by 25 per cent effective June 1.

Tawes said the insurance commissioner advises him Maryland citizens will save $1,750,000 annually on their fire insurance premiums as a result. The achievement, he said, is something in which Maryland and all of its fire fighters can take pride.

"Our record is good . . . but it is not good enough," Tawes added. "And as governor, I shall not be satisfied with the record until improvements are made."

Segregationist Slain; Officers Quiz Daughter

MILFORD, Del. (AP) — The 19-year-old daughter of a Delaware segregationist was questioned Thursday after the fatal shooting of her father during an argument at their home.

State Police at Georgetown said Nelson W. Abbott, active in the National Assn. for the Advancement of White people, was shot in the chest with a 25 caliber revolver. The shooting followed an all-night argument involving the man, his wife and daughter, police reported.

The daughter, Kathleen, was being questioned.

Abbott was a leader in the organization formed to oppose integration at Milford High School in 1954 and was an associate of Bryant Bowles, leader of the NAAWP.

Baltimore Tot Is Smothered By Plastic Bag

BALTIMORE (AP)—A 9-month-old infant girl smothered to death in a plastic bag Thursday at her Baltimore home.

Police called to the house found Remus Burnett, 22-year-old Negro, holding his daughter, Bernadette, in his arms, ready to rush her to the hospital. Attempts to revive her failed and she was pronounced dead at Franklin Square Hospital.

The father said he and his wife were downstairs when his stepfather, Wallace Gregory, 42, called down to say he had found the child unconscious. A plastic bag used by a dry cleaner was wrapped around the baby's head and arms.

Burnett said the child had been put to bed about an hour earlier and somehow had gotten off the bed onto the floor, where she was found.

Motherwell Extradition Hearing Set

ATLANTA (AP)—A hearing was set for next Wednesday on a California request for extradition of Larry Lord Motherwell, accused of murdering a wealthy Washington widow.

Motherwell, 43-year-old carpenter, is accused of killing Mrs. Pearl Ida Putney, whose bones were dug up in Sierra County, Calif., by a tourist looking for pine cones on Aug. 16.

He was arrested by the FBI at the Atlanta Airport Aug. 25 and held on a charge of unlawful flight to avoid prosecution for murder.

The extradition hearing was set by Henry Neal, assistant attorney general, legal aid to Gov. Ernest Vandiver, after a conference with Sheriff W. Dewey Johnson of Sierra County and Kenneth Horton of the California Attorney General's office.

A hearing for Motherwell was requested today by letter from Samuel Klein of the Washington, D.C., law firm of Reges and Reges, attorneys for Motherwell's wife.

Butler Asks Convention Rule To Head Off Any Dixie Revolt

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chairman Paul M. Butler has notified Democratic National Committee members in writing that he will ask the committee to readopt a 1956 rule to lessen chances of any Dixie revolt at the party's 1960 convention.

The committee made public here Thursday three resolutions Butler will ask the 108 members to approve at a meeting here Sept. 16.

One deals with the good faith of convention delegates. It is the most controversial despite its unanimous acceptance by the committee and convention in 1956.

The 1956 rule, approved in a North-South compromise as a substitute for a more strongly worded loyalty oath, conceivably could bar from the convention next year delegations from any state omitting names of party nominees from its ballot or electing unpledged electors.

When a committee spokesman said recently that Butler would ask the committee to recommend the same 1956 rule to the 1960 convention, many Southerners demanded Butler's ouster or resignation.

The rule implies that a convention delegation may be challenged if its state fails to assure its voters an opportunity to vote for the convention nominees under the regular party label, and for electors pledged formally or in good conscience to the Democratic candidates.

Other resolutions Butler will ask the committee to approve concern composition of convention committees, and time-saving procedure for polling delegations on the convention floor.

Two Expansion Plans Weighed By U. Md. Unit

BALTIMORE (AP)—A University of Maryland study commission set out Thursday to weigh the relative merits of two methods of dealing with swelling college enrollments.

One way would be expansion of present campuses at College Park and Baltimore at a cost of 46 million dollars. The other would be charting a new group of smaller, scattered institutions.

The university estimated the cost of a 10-year expansion at College Park, aimed at absorbing an enrollment increase of 11,000 students, at about 26¼ million dollars.

The cost figure was almost 15 million dollars for expanding the Baltimore campus to overcome deficiencies and strengthen medical training, as well as accommodate more students.

"A more fundamental question," said Maryland President Wilson H. Elkins, "appears to be whether it is advisable and economically feasible to make public higher education available to a larger number of people by establishing branches in suitable locations."

Dr. Elkins did not specifically state his preference but said a subcommittee he heads felt the College Park campus "could expand to take care of additional enrollment, and that regardless of the establishment of branches it will expand considerably."

Dr. Elkins conceded that great size alone can reduce the quality of an institution but said College Park with 10,000 students is past the point that would make a difference.

"If we are going for expansion," he said, "we should go first class or not at all."

The study group headed by Edwin Warfield III of nearby Ellicott City is under legislative mandate to explore the long range needs of the university for expansion.

The commission agreed that its ultimate findings must take into account the five existing state teachers' colleges operated by the State Education Department and the growing group of junior colleges being operated by some counties.

and to preserve the ideals we all cherish," he said.

"If we are firm among ourselves, if we refuse to retreat one inch from principle, if we remain flexible so far as tactics are involved, if we give NATO the same patriotic, deep devotion we give to each of our nations, then there will be no war. There will be peace."

The appearance of the 68-year-old President at the NATO headquarters was designed to calm fears of some powers that his coming meetings with Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev mean a lessening of their roles in the alliance.

Eisenhower and De Gaulle talked in gray-towered, 600-year-old Chteau Rambouillet 35 miles outside Paris.

These talks climaxed Eisenhower's two-day visit to France and wound up the diplomatic mission that had previously taken him to Bonn and London.

Story Of 'Chuting Soviet Agents Hoax

MAINZ, Germany (AP) — A story that five Soviet agents parachuted into West Germany was exposed as a hoax Thursday night by West German police.

A district police officer at the Rhineland town of Pruem said the man who told the story was a swindler with a police record of vagrancy and theft. They identified him as 32-year-old Wilhelm van Itter.

Van Itter was arrested Thursday morning near Pruem after he told police in broken German that he was a Russian parachutist. He said he was a lieutenant in the NKVD—the Soviet secret police whose name has long been changed to MVD.

Investigators were immediately skeptical about his tale but the Rhineland-Palatinate Interior Ministry issued a report on the incident which set off a search for four companions he said accompanied him.

Pruem is near the Luxembourg border and near various American defense installations.

Home Management Prizes Won By Boys

TIMONIUM, Md. (AP)—It's not often that boys enter the 4-H home management contest at the Maryland State Fair and it's even rarer when they win top prizes.

Two young boys did just that Thursday.

William Foreman, 13, of Jessup and John Campion, 10, of Hanover, won first and second prize in the division. Each exhibited his own style of shoe-rack.

Campion built a rack which can be set against a wall and which holds the shoes by a parallel rod. Foreman's shoe-rack can be rested on a table or floor.

They were the only boys to compete with the girls in this, and for that matter, most of the other 4-H home arts exhibits.

French Gift To Ike

RAMBOUILLET, France (AP) —As an official gift from the French Republic, President Eisenhower has received Sevres porcelain busts of George Washington and Benjamin Franklin.

The busts are from the sculpture of Jean Antoine Houdon, a Frenchman. Franklin and Washington sat for him in 1785.

"Quarantine" Space Station Need Forecast

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (AP) —If interplanetary travel becomes a reality, "quarantine stations" in outer space will probably be needed—to protect the earth from the possibility of deadly germs being carried back by returning space ships.

This warning was sounded Thursday by Dr. P. C. Trexler of the University of Notre Dame who asserted: "Conceivable the contamination of the earth by forms of life from another planet could be as destructive to life as we know it as an all-out nuclear war."

Trexler spoke at a special symposium on space age biology sponsored by the Society for Industrial Microbiology. It took place at the closing of the annual meeting of the American Institute of Biological Sciences at Pennsylvania State University.

Saying there is some evidence of primitive microbial and plant life on Mars, the scientist asserted that some of these organisms conceivably might be so bizarre and powerful as to be resistant to the poisons and other measures man now employs to fight the germs on his own planet.

Thus, he said, some form of sterilization method probably would be needed in quarantine stations set up in satellites orbiting high above the earth.

Club Hears Talk About Czech Food

A talk by Miss Brunhilde Seidel, summer trainee, and appointment of a nominating committee featured the meeting of the Valley Road Homemakers Club, held Wednesday at the Central YMCA, with Mrs. Irene MacDonald presiding.

The nominating committee consists of Mrs. Karl Bachman, Mrs. John S. Cook and Mrs. George Kraft. Announcement also was made of the Rural Women's Short Course dinner, which is to be held October 22 at 6:30 at Central YMCA.

Miss Seidel told of foods in her native Czechoslovakia, and compared them with the ways they are cooked in America. She also spoke of the rich pastries and fancy decorated cakes and cookies, which are used every day instead of just for parties. She also described the food cellars under the homes, which are divided into different rooms for fresh vegetables, fruits and meats; and how they are kept fresh without freezers.

Mrs. MacDonald opened the meeting reading a prayer composed by former New York Governor Thomas Dewey. Roll call was answered with ways to stretch the family food dollar. They included buying, preparing and consuming, with emphasis on keeping a trim figure. Mrs. G. Frank Malin, discussing the adult camp at Pleasant Valley, listed camp activities from exercises through the vesper service, making chenille Christmas trees, candles and holders and enameled copper jewelry. Mrs. H. J. Rolley, Fair chairman, reported Mrs. Frank Perdew and Mrs. Cook received prizes for the tailored suit and afghan they exhibited respectively. Two guests and 34 members attended.

Older 4-H Will Hold Dance

Two committees were appointed and plans were formulated for a square dance at the meeting of the 4-H Older Youth organization, which was held Wednesday evening in the extension office of the Court House. Patricia King presided.

A nominating committee was named. It consists of Patricia King, Rita Daniels, Charlotte King, Merwin Hast and Paul Miltenberger. It is to report at the October meeting.

The square dance, for members only, is to be held next month. The committee to choose the date and place is composed of Herbert Scyhes, Merwin Hast, Pauline Miltenberger, Rita Daniels and Charlotte King.

Miss Brunhilde Seidel, summer trainee at the extension office, was guest speaker. She told of being captured by the Nazis and of life under them and the Russians, prior to coming with her family to the United States, when she was about 10 years old.

Cresaptown Young Adult Fellowship will meet at the Borror cottage on the North Branch today.

Johnson Will Keynote Young Demos Conclave

SILVER SPRING, Md. (AP)—Rep. Thomas F. Johnson (D-Md) was named Thursday as keynote speaker of a Maryland Young Democrats convention which could produce some fireworks on the subject of a preferential primary for U.S. president.

Western Maryland delegates were reported preparing a resolution on the subject for the convention to be held in Ocean City, Md., Sept. 11-12.

One source said the resolution would propose that Gov. J. Millard Tawes be sent to the National Democratic Convention next year as a "favorite-son" candidate for president. In effect, this would leave Maryland delegates to the convention uncommitted to any major candidate beforehand and leave them free to bargain with major candidates for their support.

Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass.) has made clear he intends to run in the May 17 primary, despite Tawes' expressed wish that major candidates stay out of the primary. Kennedy supporters could be expected to oppose adoption by the Young Democrats of a resolution aimed at discouraging his candidacy in Maryland.

Edwin Collier of Silver Spring, chairman of the Young Democrats convention committee, announced Johnson as the keynote speaker and Rep. John R. Foley (D-Md) as principal speaker for the Sept. 12 convention banquet.

Most prominently mentioned among possible successors to J. Thomas Ellicott of Towson as president of the under-40 Democratic group is Trial Magistrate Leonard H. Lockhart of Elkton.

PRR Service Satisfactory

BALTIMORE (AP)—The Pennsylvania Railroad used some defective coaches on passenger runs in Maryland during July and August but service was "generally satisfactory," the Maryland Public Service Commission said Thursday.

The PSC inspected Pennsy operations on its own motion. The study followed complaints by Baltimore area commuters protesting abandonment of a commuter line several months ago.

The commission listed dirty floors, dirty seats, broken windows, bad carpeting and defective air-conditioners on 46 of 89 coaches examined. The survey covered 19 trains making more stops within the state.

Joseph L. Lau Jr., a member of the PSC staff, reported that stations, platforms and other buildings "generally appeared to be maintained in good condition."

At the time the inspections were ordered last April, PSC Chairman Stanford Hoff said he and other commissioners "feel that the service. . .could be improved."

In reply to Lau's report, the railroad said it was "pleased that the commission found the service generally satisfactory" and that trains were running on time.

The Pennsy said the condition of passenger cars "could be better" but this defect was due to financial difficulties caused by "governmental regulation, subsidization of our competition and unfair taxation."

These three factors "sometimes makes it necessary to operate equipment which is in need of minor repairs or maintenance," the railroad said.

Montgomery Co. 4-H'ers Win Prizes For Swine

TIMONIUM, Md. (AP)—Montgomery County youngsters just about swept the field Thursday in the judging of 4-H swine at the Maryland State Fair.

Of the first six grand champions to be selected, five were from the populous county near Washington. The sixth was from Baltimore County.

Hazel Geisbert, 14, and her brother George, 18, of Laytonsville, Montgomery County, were grand champion and reserve grand champion, respectively, in the judging of 4-H Chester White swine.

They and their younger sister, 12-year-old Donna, swept the field in seven classes of Spotted Poland China swine. In this division, Hazel was grand champion and Donna was reserve grand champion.

The Geisberts have been showing swine at the State Fair since each joined the 4-H program at age 10. The children, whose older sister Emilie was also a 4-H member, help their parents run a 600-acre farm containing 300 swine. They attend the Gaithersburg School.

One of their neighbors, 14-year-old William Lechlider of near Laytonsville, won both grand champion and reserve grand championship awards in the Poland China swine judging.

Lechlider, a small boy who suffered a serious illness at age 3, won five of seven possible first prizes in the judging of that breed. He also plans to enter the open swine competition against the adults next week.

The youngster has been in 4-H activities for four years and lives on his family's 239-acre farm. He attends the Laytonsville Elementary School.

Other winners from Montgomery County in 4-H swine judging included Sandra Wightman of Gaithersburg, who showed the best Hampshire, and Barbara Windham of Gaithersburg, grand champion in the Yorkshire judging.

The judging of swine and sheep Thursday closed out competition in in 4 - H animals. Remaining 4 - H events this week include a tractor operators' contest Friday and a contest to show ability in judging livestock Saturday.

Sunny skies and a show of Arabian horses brought out more thousands to the fair on this, the fourth, day. Attendance for the day was 16,434, including 5,612 at the race track. Fair officials said this was a good turnout for a weekday.

A large crowd jammed the grand stand of the pony ring to watch the judging of Arabian horses from all parts of the nation. Al - Marah Arabian Horse Farm near Bethesda had the largest number of entries and received five first prizes in eight classes.

Irregularities Hinted By SRC

HAGERSTOWN (AP) — State's Atty. James F. Strine said Thursday he will go before the Washington County grand jury with evidence of impropriety in land transactions involving State Roads Commission right-of-way.

Strine, refusing to disclose details of the case, said the evidence was uncovered by roads commission personnel. He said it would be submitted to the grand jury after it convenes Sept. 14.

John B. Funk, chairman of the SRC, acknowledged that the probe had been started by the commission.

"The matter that the Washington County state's attorney is going to present to the grand jury was brought to my attention several weeks ago by State Roads Commission right-of-way agents who had cause for concern that the state's interests might be imperiled in land acquisition for construction of a new section of Route 40 near Hagerstown," said Funk.

"At that time I asked the commission's legal staff and right of way department to thoroughly investigate the matter, and in order to protect the state's interests this investigation was diligently carried out and the results turned over to the Washington County state's attorney."

Strine said the grand jury will receive all evidence in the case "before anything is made public."

Condition Is Good

ROME (UPI) — Federico Cardinal Tedeschini, 85, who underwent an emergency intestinal operation Wednesday, was reported in good condition Thursday. The cardinal spent a "tranquil" night. By midmorning, his condition had improved to the point that he was permitted to leave his bed and walk in his hospital room for a few minutes. Doctors said that barring unforseen complications, the cardinal could be expected to leave the Rome Clinic in about 10 days.

River Dredge Funds Sought

WASHINGTON (AP) — Army Engineer funds for dredging the Potomac River to serve Maryland navigation needs were urged Thursday by Sen. John Marshall Butler (R-Md).

Butler wrote Maj. Gen. Emerson C. Itschner, chief of Army Engineers, that the minimum depth of the river between Smith Point and Thomas Point has been silted up, interfering with the economy of Marylanders depending upon a smooth flow of river traffic.

Army Engineer approval of the dredging also would help Southern Maryland residents in their plans to increase trade along the river, he said. He added it is the hope of these residents to have the Potomac deepened to 30 or 35 feet to accommodate heavier ships and barges.

"But such a proposal will not be given serious attention if the present minimum depth is not maintained," Butler said.

The senator told Itschner he has been informed the present depth between the two points now has silted up to 20 feet at low tide and that a minimum depth of 24 feet has been agreed upon as necessary for current shipping. The 4-foot difference, he said, is one which prohibits the passage of certain ships and barges up the Potomac.

Transfer Of Accused Cop Killer's New Trial Denied

CAMBRIDGE (AP) — Attorneys were unsuccessful Thursday in an attempt to have the second murder trial of Johnny Brown transferred out of Maryland's First Judicial Circuit.

They contended that publicity prevented Brown, accused of killing a Salisbury policeman, from receiving a fair trial on the Eastern Shore.

The motion was denied by Judges E. McMaster Duer and Godfrey Child.

Brown, 38, a Negro, was charged with shooting Patrolman Henry Stephens in an alley Sept. 6, 1958. The trial was removed to Dorchester County and Brown was convicted of first degree murder last Nov. 19.

He was sentenced to death in the gas chamber but the Court of Appeals ordered a new trial on the ground that jurors had not been questioned on whether racial prejudice might influence their decision.

In seeking to remove the trial from the Eastern Shore, Attorney Richard Pollitt argued that newspaper accounts of the crime had been "inflamatory."

Although that motion was denied, another by Brown's attorneys was upheld. The court agreed to the transfer of Brown from death row at the State Penitentiary to the Wicomico County Jail in Salisbury pending the second trial.

No date was set for the new trial.

Victims Identified

PARIS (UPI) — U. S. army officials Thursday released the names of the two soldiers killed when their car collided with a 10-ton truck Monday. The wife of one of the soldiers also died in the accident near St. Dizier in eastern France. The victims were identified as: S5C Raymond Di Carlo and his wife, Hildegard, survived by a daughter who lives with Di Carlo's sister, Mafalda Tedesco, of Schenectady, N. Y. S5C 5 Gerard N. Levesque, Nashua, N. H., survived by his wife and four children.

Two Men Charged With Kidnap-Rape

BALTIMORE (AP)—Two Washington men have been charged with the kidnaping and rape of two Federal Bureau of Investigation Clerks early Sunday morning, the FBI reported Thursday.

James Kelly, agent in charge of the Baltimore office, said Ronald Edward Garrison, 27, and Joseph Lee Price, 30, were charged in the warrant signed by U.S. Commissioner Ernest Volkart.

The men are accused of getting into a car in which the girls were riding about 1:30 a.m. Sunday in the District of Columbia, driving to Norbeck, Montgomery County, and raping the 23-year-old Washington FBI office clerks at knifepoint.

Construction Co. President Begins Serving Sentence

BALTIMORE (AP) — Murray B. Silverman, president of a Washington construction company, surrendered Thursday to the U.S. marshal to begin serving a nine-month prison term imposed by Federal Judge Roszel C. Thomsen last July 2.

Silverman, 30, of Silver Spring, was convicted by Judge Thomsne on a charge of submitting fake letters to the Navy in support of cost estimates on a contract his firm had to build a $244,000 transmitter building for a reflector in Annapolis.

Disturbing News:

Boss, Just Like Employes, Wastes Time With Trivia

By ARTHUR EDSON

WASHINGTON (AP) — The boss, it turns out, is just like the rest of us.

He, too, ducks the hard tasks, invents chores that really don't help him with his work, and fritters away his time—but in a high old executive fashion.

This disturbing news comes today from the Small Business Administration, which has put out a four-page leaflet called Management Aid No. 103. It is written especially to help the man who owns and manages his own business.

The leaflet begins with an observation.

"Of course, most executives do have to work hard. But—and this is the important question—are they working hard at the right things?" it says.

"Unfortunately, in many cases the answer is a resounding No."

It then turns to the mythical but sad case of Harvey Winston, a manufacturer.

The leaflet doesn't say what Harvey manufactures, but let's suppose it's something like paper clips. Anyway, he inherited the business, and now after five years he finds he's making money and everything is fine except for this: Each night he has to tote a briefcase full of work home with him. Why? Why?

Harvey calls in "a well-qualified consultant," who seems to be a square shooter, though a bit on the poetic side.

He says Harvey spends too much time on details and not enough on managing, and then soars into speech.

"A business, particularly a small business, is a creative work. Don't smile—it is. It's in its way as creative as a song, a painting, a statue. The difference is this: That the work of art is finished at some point. But an active business reaches no such point of completion. And the creator — you, the businessman — must forever keep on creating and improving his creation," says the speech.

Here are a few "busy, busy bosses" Harvey identified:

The detail hugger: Checks up on everything, every day. "Terribly interested in the amount of string used for packages."

The conference caller: "Won't let anyone order a dozen paper cups without the trappings of a time-killing executive summit meeting."

The dream merchant: So busy saying what he's doing tomorrow he has no time left to do anything today.

Well, Harvey finally concludes that what ails all these men is that they are avoiding work that has to be done. Filled with food resolutions about self-discipline, he returns to his work.

"Harvey Winston's factory is the best-run in its field," the leaflet proudly says.

And he's free! Free! Free to spend his nights like any other red-blooded American, to watch TV, to bark at his kids, and to burn the steak on the outdoor barbecue.

IT'S A REFRIGERATOR—Anne Everest, 24, a former fashion model now an engineer, and Dr. Howard O. McMahon view a super refrigerator during press conference in Berkeley, Calif., yesterday. Rodeo Steers Fierce But Horns May Be False

LEMON COVE, Calif. (UPI)— The steers brave cowboys rope in rough-riding rodeos may not be quite so fierce as greenhorn audiences think.

Chances are, in fact, that the steers' horns may be falsies.

Rancher Richard E. Ayres is responsible for the attachments. They are made of fiberglass, plastic and foam rubber.

Until Ayres put his inventive mind to work, it was well nigh impossible to rope a domestic steer.

U. S. bred bulls either are dehorned or have stubby and fragile horns.

That meant steers for rodeo roping had to be imported, usually from Mexico, at considerable cost.

Ayres, 35, who owns the 15 acre Shady Acres Horse Ranch in the Sierra Nevada foothills, sells his "Handy Horns" for $30 a set. He has two models — the 18-inch spread for roping and the 25-inch for bulldogging.

The horns are made of molded fiber glass mounted on a plastic cap lined with foam rubber. Straps connect the cap to a plastic plane under the jaw with the plate turned down to allow freedom to the animal's jaw and lip.

It took Ayres more than a year of painstaking trial and error to get all the kinks out of the horns.

"I've sold about 400 sets and guaranteed them for a year," reported Ayres. "I clear about $10 on each set."

"The Mexican steers have pretty good natural horns but after a lot of roping and bulldogging they become injured about the head—rope burns and bruises," he said.

The principal head covering of Roman and Greek ladies was a veil, supplemented by a hood of linen or wool in cold or wet weather.

Tritium Provides Possible New Lead In Cancer Fight

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (AP) —Radioactive tritium, an ingredient of the fearsome H-bomb, has helped turn up a possible new lead for the research fight against cancer, a University of Pennsylvania scientist said Wednesday.

Made to act as a kind of tail-light on one of the key substances of all living cells, tritium apparently has demonstrated an entirely new concept of what takes place in one of the very earliest stages of the normal cellular growth process—and perhaps even in that of cancerous cells.

This was reported by Dr. Lester Goldstein to the annual meeting of the American Institute of Biological Sciences at Pennsylvania State University. He amplified his report in an interview.

Specifically, the aim of the research was to pin-point within the nucleus or heart of a living cell the site of origin of a substance known as ribonucleic acid—RNA for short.

RNA when formed within the cell is presumed to act as a kind of messenger boy for another key substance — called deoxyribonucleic acid or DNA—which is the main constituent of the hereditary genes that are carried by the chromsomes.

In effect DNA acts as a kind of storehouse for the hereditary traits that determine whether a baby will be blue-eyed or brown-eyed, tall or short and so on.

And RNA is presumed to be the carrier of such information to other parts of the developing cell.

For years scientists have sought to determine the exact point within the cell where the messenger boy himself is synthesized or born.

Up to now the usually accepted concept is that RNA is formed in cellular materials that are relatively distant from the chromosomes and the DNA storehouse—presumably entailing a pickup trip by the RNA messenger service.

But Dr. Goldstein's work appears to show that the messenger boy is born on the chromosomes—right handy to the storehouse.

'Robin Hood' Banker Returns From Prison

ELLENVILLE, N. Y. (UPI) — Former banker William (Uncle Bill) Rose, whose "Robin Hood" lending policies once plunged this Catskill Mountain connunity into a financial crisis, returned home from prison Wednesday.

The only person waiting to welcome him was his 86-year-old mother. She had been sitting patiently in a rocker on the porch of the big white house atop a knoll.

The portly Rose, 53, had been at the forefront in civic affairs in this village of 4,500. He had made about $30,000 a year as president of the Home National Bank which his grandfather founded. Then he was charged with misapplying $1,195,000 in funds and the bank collapsed.

Rose came home to take a job as a salesman in the Rose and Douglas Hardware Store, which adjoins the bank.

Protestant Missionaries Facing Challenge In Hawaii

By CLAIRE COX
United Press International

NEW YORK (UPI) — The new state of Hawaii confronts Protestant missionaries with an unusual challenge, church leaders report.

Instead of gaining ground in the 50th state of the union as they have in the other 49, Christians have been losing out to the followers of the ancient eastern religion founded by Buddha.

The Methodist Church, the largest religious body in America, reports that Hawaii once was almost 95 per cent Christian. But there has been an upsurge of Buddhism since World War II, according to the Methodists.

With 160,000 followers, the Buddhist sect now is the largest single religious group in the islands, Methodists report.

The National Council of Churches said that only one of every three Hawaiians is Christian. That is a total of about 215,000 out of an estimated population of 640,000.

The rest are Jews, Pagans, Buddhists, Shintoists and followers of Confucianism, making Hawaii what churchmen call "a garden of religions."

The Buddhists have scored their success, according to Methodist leaders, by adopting western techniques of spreading their eastern beliefs. Young Buddhist associations, for example, have adopted many of the western social methods of Protestant youth groups.

The first known American missionary group to reach the former Sandwich Islands was a band of New England Congregationalists who arrived there in 1820. This was some years after two English missionaries went there in 1794 at the request of the islands' king. Their first convert was the queen, who died clutching a Bible.

As a result of being the first organized missionary group to go to the islands, the Congregationalists have the largest Protestant membership—15,000 to 18,000 in 113 churches.

After the congregationalists came the Mormons, now second in membership; the Methodists, who have 4,000 members in 27 churches, and the Protestant Episcopalians. They were followed by Lutherans, Seventh Day Adventists, Disciples of Christ, Southern Baptists, Pentacostals, and Assemblies of God missionaries. The Presbyterians only recently established their first church in Hawaii.

Church officials said the original inhabitants of the islands, the Polynesians, were pagans. They could not read or write. Missionaries educated them and converted them in growing numbers.

The American Bible Society published its first Hawaiian New Testament in 1832, seven years after the islands' first code of laws was enacted, with the 10 commandments as a guide.

The first Jewish residents of Hawaii were English and German traders who went there in 1845. An American Jew established the first coffee plantation in Hawaii. The first known Jewish marriages were performed in 1881, but it was not until after Hawaii became a U.S. territory in 1898 that the first regular Jewish religious services were held there.

The Honolulu Council of Churches was formed by the Protestants in 1945. It now has 82 member churches and provides bus service every Sunday from Waikiki to Honolulu houses of worship.

The Rev. Abraham Akaka, vice president of the council and pastor of Kawaiahao Church, has the largest church in the islands. It was built of 14,000 coral reef rocks passed hand-to-hand for a quarter of a mile by church members in 1841.

Akaka preaches in Hawaiian and English in his church, which is called the "Westminster Abbey of the Islands."

The Methodists claim what possibly is the only U.S. church in which members worship in three languages. The 9 a.m. service at Lahaina Methodist Church is deliverd by a Philippine-born minister in a Filipino dialect. At 10:45 a.m., the sermon is in English. The evening service is conducted by a Japanese-born minister.

Methodist leaders feel that this church is a true symbol of the Hawaiian melting pot.

KARACHI, Pakistan (UPI) — Pakistan had filed two protests against "abusive propaganda" broadcasts by Radio Kabul with the government of Aghanistan, it was reported Thursday.

Polio Pattern Shows Vaccine Effective

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Surgeon General Leroy E. Burney said Wednesday that the pattern of polio cases so far this year showed the effectiveness of Salk vaccine.

Burney issued a statement noting that a survey of 1,446 of the 3,434 paralytic polio cases reported this year showed 83.7 per cent were unvaccinated or only partly vaccinated. He also noted that in 1952, there was a total of 57,895 cases of polio against this years so far much smaller total.

The surgeon general pointed out, there were more than 50,000,000 persons in the under 40 age group still not fully vaccinated.

The ultra - shortwave transmitters used to broadcast simultaneous translations at the Interparliamentary Union Conference here were knocked out by a Warsaw power failure.

Without translations or loudspeakers, the parliamentarians were helpless and eventually had to call a recess.

The power break occurred just as Rep. Katherine St. George (R-N.Y.) was scheduled to speak on a resolution for the protection of individual rights.

Danzig, Mass Of Rubble 20 Years Ago, Booming Again

By STANLEY JOHNSON

GDANSK (DANZIG), Poland (AP)—Left a smouldering heap of ruins by the war that erupted here 20 years ago, this Baltic city has come to life again.

When Hitler screamed that the city, set up as a free entity under the League of Nations after World War I, should be turned over to his Reich, the disillusioned youth of 1939 asked: "Die for Danzig?"

Millions around the globe did die, and the city died with them.

But Danzig, now called Gdansk by the Poles, is booming again with workers' housing, industrial plants, schools and public buildings springing up on all sides.

"It's a miracle," says an American who last saw the city when it was a mass of rubble.

Billions of zlotys—no exact figures are available — have been spent to restore the war-ruined medieval city, whose history goes back to the 10th Century. The docks, the shipyards, and the factories and the housing. Billions more are needed to complete the ambitious plans. This year alone, for example, it is planned to put up two million cubic yards of apartment space.

Its ancient buildings have been scrupulously restored. But many visitors miss a feeling of permanence and continuity.

"We are not like London, or even Nuernberg," says an authority on local history. "We have been fought over too often, and finally almost wiped out. Then, again, the people who live here now almost all had their roots elsewhere."

Gdansk had a population of about 400,000 persons in 1939 — 90 per cent German and only about 10 per cent Polish.

Today, a local authority says in a population of some 270,000, there are no more than 20 or 30 Germans. The rest, he adds, either fled with the Nazi troops before Soviet advances in 1945 or were repatriated when administration of the city was handed over to Poland.

Poles poured in from other regions to fill the vacuum. It is they who restored it to life. Poles fill its seven institutes of higher education, support the famed Baltic Opera and Ballet Company, staff the Medical Academy.

But, inevitably, the atmosphere is not the same as in cities where some have followed fathers and grandfathers for generations. Now it is molded into a Communist pattern.

Gdansk is one of a trio of cities, the other two being the old resort of Sopot and the seaport of Gdynia which Poland built between the two world wars to rival the old free port.

When the blitz struck, Polish forces were gradually forced back until they made their last defense at the peninsula of Westerplatte.

Tragically outgunned and outmanned, cavalry forces which had found their horses were no match for Hitler's tanks found they could not withstand the pounding of the cruiser Schleswig Holstein.

Late in September, 1939, these remnants were overwhelmed. The first phase of World War II had ended.

A simple monument now marks the spot but it has few visitors.

"We look to the future, not to the past," explained one Pole. "The way we have rebuilt Gdansk our labor for its future as a Polish city, that is the real monument—not this little stone in the woods."

Minister Resigns

BRUSSELS (UPI) — Maurice Van Hemelrijck Thursday resigned as minister for the Congo in a dispute with other cabinet members over Belgium's future policies in the vast African colony. Van Hemelrijck for months has sought a speed-up in the government's "independence by stages" plan. Premier Gaston Eyskens and other cabinet members favor the go-slow program.

Shareholders Approve

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Shareholders of Fidelity Trust Co. and Peoples First National Bank & Trust Co. approved a merger of the two Pittsburgh banks into a new bank to be called the Pittsburgh National Bank. Preliminary approval was given by the comptroller of the currency in July.

As payments are made and the balance owed declines, further charges may be made at any time, as long as the total outstanding does not exceed $12.00, the difference will be payable at time of purchase.

Communism May Become Great Unifying Force On Indian Subcontinent

By J. M. ROBERTS
Associated Press News Analyst

International communism now shows some signs of replacing British rule as a great unifying force on the Indian subcontinent.

During the first half of the century, Hindus and Moslems rallied to a single cause, independence from Britain.

Since then they have been divided into separate states, India and Pakistan, have exchanged some blows, and have been at loggerheads over possession of Kashmir and control of the great northern river system.

Both maintain considerable armed forces poised against each other.

The world has considered it a pity this should have happened to the two peoples who put up such a consistent fight for independence, and whose poor economic status cries out for cooperation.

Under a program devised by the World bank, some hope has arisen that the water dispute will be settled and eventually 'ead to a compromise over Kashmir, a largely Moslem state formerly ruled by a Hindu prince who sought to cede it to India after independence.

Now come the Communists with their aggressive actions, their border violations and their aid to Afghanistan in building roads along the ancient West-East invasion routes by which the Moslems first came to India.

Bitterness between India and Pakistan seems to be cooling somewhat under the pressure.

Prime Minister Nehru of India and President Ayub Kahn of Pakistan met briefly at an airport this week in an atmosphere of friendliness.

This followed a statement by the Pakistan leader some weeks ago that the Pakistani and Indian armies, instead of facing each other, should stand side by side for defense.

Nehru then asked, "Defense against whom?"

The neutralist leader has had to revise a lot of his ideas in the past few weeks, and probably could answer his own question today without any fumbling.

Pakistan already is receiving American military aid. India refuses it. But Nehru knows that in a showdown with Red China he would have it quickly.

And the Western Allies would insist on a pooling of the entire area's defenses.

India and Pakistan would then be forced into a cooperation which would be comparable to that welcomed somewhat grudgingly by Winston Churchill when, because of common peril, the Soviet Union and Britain became allies during World War II.

Mouthwatering Fruit Pie

You might call this Fruit Pie a la Grapefruit! It's a colorful and tempting dessert, by any name. Two summertime favorites, watermelon and canned Florida grapefruit sections, combine simply and the result is so mouthwatering you'll be sorry you didn't think of it sooner.

Plump, juicy and tangy, you'll find canned grapefruit sections are every bit as good as their fresh counterpart. No flavor or juice is lost during processing and we are assured fine fruit all year round at budget-prices. Canned grapefruit sections have the added advantage of being available in all food stores and require no special handling when you buy them nor do they take up precious refrigerator or freezer space. Store a good supply of the handy one-pound cans anywhere you have the room, keeping just one or two chilled for spur-of-the-moment use.

Grapefruit's tart flavor is especially refreshing during hot weather and provides a most pleasant method of replenishing the vitamin C you use up daily.

To serve watermelon and grapefruit attractively, slice a chilled quartered watermelon into nice thick pie-shaped wedges. Top with frosty grapefruit sections, decorate with a bit of mint. We predict it will have many repeat performances this summer.

Zippy Soup

In tune with summer eating, serve this zippy soup. Combine 1 can each condensed cream of chicken soup and cream of mushroom soup; stir until smooth, then add 1½ soup cans water, a cup of shredded sharp cheese, touch of Worcestershire sauce and a hint of prepared mustard. Heat slowly until cheese is melted and soup is hot before serving to 6.

Especially colorful garnishes add to appetite appeal. Frozen condensed cream of potato soup . . . when heated . . . makes a nice contrast for crisp, bright grated June carrots.

Easy Party Dessert

Rich and delicious, this strawberry roll is an excellent party dessert and one that can be made ahead of time and stored in the refrigerator or freezer. The cake is baked in a heavyweight foil pan, filled with strawberries and whipped cream and rolled like a jelly roll.

Strawberry Jeweled Roll

¾ cup sifted cake flour (or ¾ cup all-purpose flour, less 1½ teaspoons)
1 teaspoon baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
4 eggs, separated
¾ cup sugar
2 tablespoons water
1 teaspoon vanilla
1½ cups heavy cream
6 tablespoons powdered sugar
3 cups strawberry halves

To make the foil pan, tear off a strip of 14-inch heavyweight foil to measure 18 inches long. Fold over 1-inch on all sides. Turn up a ¾-inch edge to form the sides of the pan. Make diagonal folds at the corners, folding the triangular tab against the sides of the pan. Oil the bottom and sides of the foil pan well.

Mix and sift together the flour, baking powder and salt. Beat egg whites until stiff. While continuing to beat the egg whites, add ½-cup of the sugar, a tablespoon at a time, beating until the sugar is completely dissolved. Next, beat the egg yolks until thick and lemon-colored. Add the remaining ¼-cup of sugar, the water and vanilla. Continue to beat until thick. Gently fold in the egg white meringue, and then

Entertain With Deviled Ham And Cheese Fondue

After the ball is over and it's time to entertain with that midnight supper, why not try serving this excellent Deviled Ham and Cheese Fondue. Your guests will love it. To top the main dish, you'll want a light dessert so serve freshly boxed summer candies with their dainty pastel coatings and cellophane wrappings.

Deviled Ham and Cheese Fondue
(Makes about 6 servings)

2 cups coarse soft bread crumbs
2 cups grated process American cheese (about 8 ozs.)
2 tablespoons dehydrated minced onion
1 2¼ ounce can delived ham
1 teaspoon seasoned salt
1 teaspoon dry mustard
4 eggs, separated
2¼ cups milk
Pimiento strips
Parsley sprigs

Combine crumbs, cheese, onion, ham, salt, and mustard. Beat egg yolks and add milk. Add milk mixture to crumb mixture; mix well. Beat egg whites until stiff but not dry and fold into milk and crumb mixture. Turn into buttered 2-quart casserole. Set casserole in pan of warm water. Bake in slow oven (325°) about 1½ hours, or until knife inserted in center comes out clean. Garnish with pimiento strips and parsley.

Kidney Bean & Cheese Casserole
(Makes 6 servings)

2 1-pound cans kidney beans, drained
1 cup chopped green pepper
1 teaspoon celery seed
½ teaspoon salt
1 medium sized onion, chopped
2 cups grated process American cheese (about ½ lb.)
¼ teaspoon pepper

Combine all ingredients; mix well. Turn into greased 2-quart casserole. Bake in moderate oven (350°) 45 minutes.

Spiced Beans

Returning from India, the Orient and South America, adventurous explorers brought back ships laden with exotic spices that were every day staples in dishes native to foreign lands. Since then, American palates have learned to savor the tang of curry, the lively taste of ginger and the musky flavor of nutmeg. You may not think of spices like these when cooking navy beans, but adding just that unusual touch can result in a "surprise" dish that will win raves from family and friends. Here are two such recipes that are simple to fix, don't need watching and turn out deliciously every time!

Beef Balls And Beans

2 lbs. hamburger
1 large onion, chopped fine
Salt and pepper to taste
3 cups cooked navy beans
2 cups sour cream
½ t. ginger or 1 t. nutmeg
Buttered bread crumbs
Slivered almonds

Thoroughly mix onion, salt and pepper with meat and form into small balls no more than an inch in diameter. Brown in butter. Cover and cook til tender, adding a little water if necessary. Allow meat balls to cool and mix with beans, sour cream, the spice, and gravy from the frying pan. Put in casserole sprinkle with bread crumbs and almonds. Cover and heat thoroughly in 350 degree oven.

Lucky Pot Beans

1 lb. dried navy beans
½ lb. salt pork, cut in cubes
½ lb. onions, chopped
1 med. can tomatoes
1 cup green peppers, diced
1 t. curry powder
Pepper to taste

Soak beans overnight. Add more water next day, if necessary, to cover. Add pork and onions and simmer in covered pot till beans are tender. Add tomatoes, green peppers and seasoning. Simmer another 15 minutes or until all is thoroughly blended.

THE LITTLE WOMAN

"Herbert should be here in a flash! I phoned him and said I was about to buy a new fur coat."

There are more than 35 thousand swimming pools in the United States. Approximately one-half of these are private.

How They Fry Chicken From Coast To Coast

"Souther fried chicken" is famous all over the world, but there are at least a dozen ways to "southern fry" chicken in our own South, as well as variations from the Midwest and North.

Chicken has been an all-American favorite dish since the Pilgrims established their first farms. Because the United States is so big and so varied in population, there are probably more ways of cooking chicken here than anywhere else in the world.

Besides such recipes as Texas Chicken-Tamale Pie and Pennsylvania Dutch Chicken-Corn Chowder, there are other regional ways of frying chicken. In most of the South, cooks let the chicken stand in milk or buttermilk before frying it. In the farm belt and in Delaware, mashed potatoes are the traditional accompaniment to fried chicken. In Kentucky, they serve it with griddlecakes, and in Virginia, waffles and cream gravy go along with the chicken.

Alabamans dip the chicken pieces in egg as well as flour to insure a crispy crust. In New York, they simmer the chicken to tenderness before frying it. And in Kansas they simmer the browned chicken pieces in cream.

The Georgia version of fried chicken is almost sure to include grits and gravy or candied sweet potatoes. Along the Gulf Coast, the chicken is rubbed with lemon before frying, then served with beans and rice. Hot biscuits and cream gravy go along with fried chicken in North Carolina. In Connecticut, they add a touch of sugar to the gravy.

Hoosier Fried Chicken

2 3-pound ready-to-cook broiler-fryers, cut up
¾ cup flour
3 teaspoons paprika
3 teaspoons salt
¾ teaspoon pepper
Shortening or salad oil
Parsley

Wash and wipe chicken pieces dry. In paper bag, mix flour, paprika, salt and pepper. Drop chicken, two or three pieces at a time, into bag; shake until coated.

In large, deep skillet, place ½ inch shortening; heat until a drop of water sizzles in it. Brown meaty pieces of chicken in hot shortening, uncovered, turning now and then with tongs. As meaty pieces brown, slip in less meaty pieces. When all chicken has browned, reduce heat, and cook, covered, 20 to 25 minutes, turning once, until large pieces are fork-tender.

Uncover chicken and recrisp over moderate heat about 10 minutes, turning once. Heap the chicken in a napkin-lined wooden bowl; garnish with parsley. Serves 4 to 6.

Blue Cheese Bonus On Lamb Chops

Broiled Lamb Chops — Blue Cheese Topping may sound like a most unusual combination . . . in one sense it is.

We are all undoubtedly familiar with blue cheese served as an appetizer or salad booster but now this nippy flavored cheese proves its food compatibility in another field . . . that of meat cookery.

This blue cheese topping is simply a combination of blue cheese, green onions, salt, pepper and margarine.

The lamb shoulder chops are broiled on one side, seasoned, turned and broiled on the second side until almost done. The chops are removed, spread with the cheese mixture and returned to the broiler for about 2 minutes or until the cheese is lightly browned.

For those friends who are continually searching for new ideas pertaining to meat cookery, simply prepare this recipe once and watch them mentally tuck the idea away for future use.

Broiled Lamb Chops
Blue Cheese Topping

- 6 lamb shoulder chops, cut ¾ to 1 inch thick
- ½ cup blue cheese, firmly packed
- 2 tablespoons sliced green onions
- ⅛ teaspoon salt
- Dash of pepper
- 2 tablespoons softened butter or margarine

Set regulator for broiling. Place chops on broiler rack. Insert broiler pan and rack so the top of the chops is 3 inches from the heat. Broil first side until browned, about 8 minutes, turn and brown second side, about 4 minutes. Combine cheese, onion, salt, pepper and butter or margarine. Spread about 2 tablespoons of cheese mixture evenly over each chop. Continue broiling 2 minutes or until cheese is lightly browned. Yield: 6 servings.

Salad time . . . bean time . . . a bean salad is perfect for summer eating especially when you combine a 1 pound can of pork and beans with tomato sauce with about ½ cup celery, a bit of minced onion, and a tablespoon of thick French dressing; chill and fill salted tomato cups.

Market Falls As Caution Pervades Wall Street

NEW YORK (UPI)—Another $4 billion was slashed from stock market values as Wall Street used tight money—specifically an anticipated boost in the discount rate—as an excuse for selling.

The Federal Reserve Board, however, made no change in the discount rate, that which it charges on loans to member banks. Tight money has been the chief market influence since Tuesday when leading commercial banks boosted the rate they charge on top-rated loans to a 29-year high.

The selling did not generate any substantial volume. Turnover in the session totaled only 2,330,000 shares compared with 2,370,000 on Wednesday.

Of a total 1,198 issues traded, 829 were lower while only 190 managed to advance.

Some of the heaviest losses came in chemicals where Du Pont lost 4½; Allied 2¼. Among electronics, Litton rose 4¾ while Texas Instruments fell 4 and RCA 2⅛. Steel losses ranged to nearly 3 points in U. S. Steel. Among oils, Texaco, Socony-Mobil, Sinclair, Gulf, Skelly and Amerada lost a point to more than 2 points.

Motors had losses running to 1½ points in Chrysler and Ford and General Motors lost a point. American fell ⅝ point on the day's heaviest turnover.

Rails joined in with Louisville & Nashville and Norfolk & Western down nearly 2 each, Southern Pacific and Great Northern down 1 ¼.

Chicago Grains

CHICAGO (UPI)—Selling prompted by an optimistic private crop estimate eased most grain prices Thursday on the Chicago Board of Trade.

At the final bell, wheat was unchanged to off ⅜; corn unchanged to off ¼; oats up ⅜; new oats unchanged to off ⅛; rye unchanged to off ½; and soybeans off ⅜ to up ⅜.

The private report issued early Thursday predicted wheat, oats and soybean crops would be larger than the last government estimate. The corn prediction for a record crop was little changed.

The wheat market grew quiet after a flurry of selling followed issuance of the report. The market recovered partially from lows and closed easy. Some deliveries were unchanged. Some of the early selling was in the form of liquidation by local longs.

Corn was steady. There was a demand for December, which commercial houses bought early. Selling was mixed. Spot corn sold at 11¼ cents above September.

Oats held about steady. Commission houses liquidated September, and cash houses were buyers. Some December oats were also sold.

Liquidation in September rye dropped the price more than a cent before a late rally.

Soybeans fell off following the crop estimate. September led the decline on liquidation. Fair buying developed on the dip. The deferred contracts closed firm.

Meals were easy. No export sales were reported.

Outside markets were mostly lower.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West

Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Queen of ♠.

A slight error in timing cost declarer a doubled game contract today.

The final contract of three no trump was reached in almost less time than it takes to tell about it. Holding two aces and a readily establishable suit, West bided his time and then leaped in eagerly for the kill. Whether or not his double was a tipoff to declarer is another question.

West opened the queen of spades, which was taken by South with the king. He reached an immediate count of eight tricks, and hope for the ninth seemed to rest with an end play. With the purpose of embarrassing West, he decided to run the diamond suit.

West realized it would be fatal to part with the queen of clubs and not wishing to let go more than one establishable spade discarded the ten of clubs, the deuce of spades, and then two hearts. Now South led the deuce of hearts. West grabbed the ace and returned the jack of spades, establishing the suit and simultaneously driving out dummy's entry for the heart suit. This sent the contract down to defeat.

South's heart play came much too late. It should have been made at declarer's first opportunity. When South wins the opening lead he plays the low heart at once, knowing that West has the ace. West must duck, else declarer will pick up the entire heart suit. The trick is won with the queen, and now as declarer runs the diamond suit West must find one additional discard. He can afford to discard the jack of hearts, but the discard on the fifth diamond is more irksome. If he lets go a spade, retaining the ace and queen of clubs, declarer can score with his king of clubs by playing the ace and another spade, throwing West into the lead. If he throws the queen of clubs declarer can win the contract by playing a club out of his own hand, establishing the king.

Chilled Soup

Chilled soup gets raves as appetizers during sizzling weather. This quick Vichyssisoe wins return engagements . . . defrost 2 cups frozen mashed potatoes over hot water, add a bit of butter, a can of condensed cream of chicken soup, and a hint of onion salt. Beat well and force through a sieve before adding a cup of light cream and 1½ cups milk; after chilling garnish with chopped chives, then serve to 4.

Sauce your hamburgers with a combination of canned condensed cream of mushroom soup and beef gravy which have been heated together over a low flame.

Try Tropical Sauce For Barbecues

¼ cup unsulphured molasses
¼ cup prepared mustard
¼ cup vinegar
2 tablespoons Worcestershire Sauce
½ teaspoon Tabasco

Put molasses, then mustard, into a 1-cup measure. Stir to blend. Add the remaining ingredients; mix well.

YIELD: Approximately ¾-cup—enough for 3 broiler-fryer chickens; or for 12 to 18 hamburgers or frankfurters.

NOTE: If desired, recipe may be doubled or tripled.

Barbecue Chicken

Sprinkle 3 broiler-fryer chickens, halved, with salt, pepper and Accent. Place chicken, skin side up, on grate set 6 to 12 inches from heat. Brush chicken with Tropical Barbecue Sauce. Cook slowly until tender, turning and basting occasionally with the sauce. Allow 1 to 1¼ hours total cooking time. To test for "doneness," leg should twist easily out of thigh joint, and pieces should be fork-tender.

Barbecue In Oven

Set oven to moderate (350°F.) Line shallow baking pan with aluminum foil. Place chicken, skin side down, in pan; brush Tropical Barbecue Sauce over cut side of chicken. Bake 30 minutes, brushing occasionally with the sauce; turn and brush with sauce. Bake 30 to 45 minutes longer, brushing occasionally with sauce.

To Barbecue Hamburgers

Place hamburgers on grate set 4 to 6 inches from heat. Brush with Tropical Barbecue Sauce. Broil 4 to 8 minutes, depending on desired degree of "doneness"—turn once during broiling and brush with the sauce.

The Mighty Mousse

Cool as seafoam and considerably more substantial is this main-dish chicken mousse. "Mousse" means "foam" in French. Translated into American cuisine, it can mean a foamy combination of evaporated milk—thrifty in pennies and calories, gelatine, and chicken-plus-seasonings. "Mighty" mousse requires little trouble and less time—easy to prepare for a special luncheon or an "adventure dinner."

Whipped evaporated milk is the backbone of this mousse. Low in cost, easy to store on the pantry shelf, evaporated milk whips to triple its volume. Simply chill it in a refrigerator tray until ice crystals form around the edges. Then whip with a cold beater in a cold bowl. This mousse can be made in a spare moment in the morning and then chilled in the refrigerator until mealtime.

Chicken Mousse

1 envelope unflavored gelatine
½ cup cold water or chicken stock
¼ cup mayonnaise
2 tablespoons lemon juice
¼ teaspoon curry powder, optional
¼ teaspoon Tabasco
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup diced chicken
½ cup diced celery
⅔ cup icy cold evaporated milk

Sprinkle gelatine on water or chicken stock in saucepan to soften. Place over medium heat, stirring constantly, until gelatine is dissolved. Remove from heat. Gradually stir into mayonnaise; add lemon juice, curry powder, Tabasco and salt. Add chicken and celery. Whip evaporated milk; fold into gelatine mixture. Turn into a 4-cup mold. Chill until firm.

Yield: 4 to 6 servings.

Next time you make your favorite chicken salad sandwiches, use canned boned chicken . . . . handy and economical too . . . no cooking, no waste. For color and a flavor lift add a little chopped parsley.

Luncheons take on new hues when you add a little curry powder to a can (10½ ounces) of chicken a la king while heating. Pour over sliced hard-cooked eggs on toast . . . for a quick treat.

Turn your soup tureen into a kaleidoscope of color. Heat frozen condensed New England style clam chowder with a cup each diced cooked ham and canned whole kernel corn. Makes 4 generous luncheon-size servings.

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN: I never thought I'd wind up on your "couch" in print. But then I suppose they all say that!

I went with this perfectly beautiful girl four months. She was so magnificent that for three months I was mesmerized by her indescribable beauty.

I read her poems by Pound and Kunitz. She was a quiet listener. I bought her albums of Chopin and Brahms. She smiled her thanks. Then suddenly I saw the bare face of truth. What I had imagined was tranquility, depth and inner security was only silence—borne of ignorance.

When I tried to recall a single statement from this girl which reflected an original idea, I was stymied. She was a fraud.

I have three degrees, Ann, but this idiot-beauty who I'm sure never saw the 10th grade, duped me. Please pass the word along. It may save another idealist four months, and $1,000 in books, records, flowers and gifts.

VOLTAIRE.

DEAR VOLTAIRE: Why is the girl a fraud? Did she tell you she was on the faculty at Harvard?

You were so snowed by her looks that all your male impulses went on active duty and your brains went AWOL. You tried to build a dream castle and move this brainless female in. Your attempt to spin a shimmering cocoon of magic around a beautiful (but dumb) dame didn't work. It never does. So—take your medicine like a little man.

DEAR ANN: Maybe if you publish this letter it will help my cause.

I got my driver's license a few days ago. I passed the test with flying colors. Now my folks won't let me drive unless one of them is with me. I've been practicing for three years and I'm as good a driver as either of them. Yet they say I havn't had enough experience to take the car alone.

How can I get experience if they won't let me have the car? If you can explain this I'll be grateful. LIZ.

DEAR LIZ: Be patient, Lamb—your time will come. Drive whenever you get the chance. After a while they'll get used to the idea that you're a competent driver. Then you'll be permitted to take the car on your own. Nagging and begging is a sign of childishness, so lay off and you'll achieve your goal sooner.

DEAR ANN: Lately I've been reading articles entitled "Is Dad just a meal ticket?" "Are American wives pampered?" "Has the male lost his place as head of the American Family?"

I'd like to ask the following questions: "Is Mom just a housekeeper?" "Do American men have life too soft?"

True, women don't work as hard as their grandmothers did, but neither do men. Today the 40-hour week is considered "too long." They want 35. The young man out of college who is looking for a job wants to know what the pension plan is before he'll consider it. Mom doesn't get any such deal. Being a wife and mother means 24-hours-a-day duty.

This malarky about a woman being boss is a joke. I've yet to see a wife who could watch the TV program of her choice when a fight or or a cowboy movie was on.

If there's any pampering going on it's the men who are getting it. American husbands are the most spoiled males on the face of the earth. Mom starts it and the wife takes over from there.

2 Men Named To Faculty At Allegany High School

Two teachers have been appointed to the faculty at Allegany High School.

Richard T. Rizer, assistant superintendent of public schools, said Thomas P. Shaffer, 233 Cumberland Street, has been named to teach English in the eighth grade. This is a new position caused by an increase in the enrollment at the school, Rizer said.

John F. Watack, Winchester, Va., has been named a teacher in the Commercial Department. He will instruct in bookkeeping and commercial law. He will replace Ralph Scarlett, who resigned to accept a position in Hagerstown.

Shaffer, a graduate of LaSalle High School in 1950, served in the Army from 1953 through 1955. While in the Army he took the University of Maryland overseas education program at the University of Heidelberg.

On his return from military service he enrolled in Frostburg State Teachers College and graduated last June. He did his practice teaching at Allegany High. Shaffer is married to the former Miss Patricia Kirk of Cumberland.

Watack, who graduated from Ambridge (Pa.) High School and Shepherd College where he majored in business education with a minor in physical education. In 1952 he received his master's degree from the University of Pittsburgh. He has also done graduate work at the University of Virginia, West Virginia University and George Washington University.

He taught four years at Capon Bridge High School and five years at James Wood High School in Winchester. Watack is married and has two children. The family will reside in Cumberland.

Celanese Honors Three Employes

The Amcelle plant of the Celanese Corporation honored three employes recently in recognition of 25 years service with the company.

Honored were Richard C. Kiser, extrusion manufacturing; Frederick T. Bowden, accounting, and Leona K. Webster, textile manufacturing.

W. E. Crooks, plant manager, presented gold watches to the three employes and section superintendents marked the occasion by awarding five-star service emblems.

Man Sentenced On Assault Count

James Ray Lewis, 38, of 504 Park Street, has been sentenced to 30 days in the County Jail after he was found guilty of an assault charge at a hearing in Trial Magistrate Court.

Magistrate F. Allan Weatherholt sentenced Lewis after finding him guilty of assaulting his wife, Marlene Lewis, 18.

Pupil Transfer Plan Announced By School Head

A program calling for the transfer of students to three schools as the result of the closing of Carver School was announced by Ralph R. Webster, superintendent of Allegany County Schools.

Webster said 19 Carver children will go to Gephart School and 28 to Columbia Street School. The 28 going to Columbia Street will come from the general area of the 300 block of Frederick Street.

In addition 45 children who have been going to Gephart will go to Northeast School by bus. This is known as the Pea Vine Run bus. This bus also picks up children on Mason Road, Union Grove and Hazen roads.

This transfer means there will be 26 fewer children at Gephart than last year. Webster said the average per room at Gephart will be reduced by three as a result of the move.

The superintendent explained an additional teacher will be assigned to each Gephart, Columbia Street and Northeast. The instructor at Gephart will be a helping teacher.

Local Girl Promoted In Salvation Army

Miss Jacquelin Langley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Langley, 13 G, Jane Frazier Village, has been commissioned a sergeant in the Salvation Army.

She was home on leave for 15 days and is in charge of new cadets at the Atlanta, Ga., Training College of the army.

She is a graduate of Fort Hill High School.

State Legislative Council Plans Visit To This Section

The Legislative Council of the General Assembly will visit Allegany and Garrett counties from Thursday, September 24, through Saturday, September 26, State Sen. Charles M. See said yesterday.

The council, the legislature's between-sessions study group, met Wednesday in Baltimore's City Hall to make definite plans for the tour.

Dr. Carl N. Everstine, director of the State Bureau of Legislative Reference, and the council's secretary, said Sen. See will be in charge of arrangements for the stay in Allegany County.

Sen. See said the group of 25 council members, staff personnel and representatives of the governor's office will arrive in Cumberland Thursday, September 24.

They will stay here Thursday night and Friday morning Sen. See said he will set up a meeting in the City Hall.

This will give the city and county officials along with any interested group or individual an opportunity to bring their problems before the council.

A check will be made by some of the party of Route 40 projects east of here and at noon Friday the council will be guests at luncheon at Frostburg State Teachers College.

In the afternoon the council will go to Oakland where a dinner will be followed by a public meeting with political and civic leaders.

The group will spend the night at Deep Creek Lake. Saturday, there will be an informal program devoted to checking the various state parks in the county.

That will include the new Deep Creek State Park which opened July 4, Herrington Manor, Swallow Falls and spots in state forests.

The group will return to Baltimore from Oakland on the B & O Railroad.

A New Cohesion In The Alliance

Whatever may come of President Eisenhower's meeting with Nikita Khrushchev later this month, his trip to Europe created an upsurge of goodwill which is a force in itself to be reckoned with.

One of the results, of course, is the greater strength and cohesion which has been given to the Western Alliance. There has been a tremendous display of cordiality toward Mr. Eisenhower personally and of confidence in him as a man who can be counted on to lead the way toward peace.

This has its dangers, but temporarily at least the ice seems to be cracking under the warmth of Mr. Eisenhower's smile. Even Khrushchev has felt compelled to recognize publicly the President's sincere dedication to the cause of peace.

But the President continues to reiterate that he will not be a party to a summit conference doomed to futility from the start.

"We must have some promise of fruitful results," he says. Barring that single exception, "there is nothing they cannot ask me to do."

There is frequent mention, with dismay, of Soviet successes in the field of propaganda. This time, it seems, Mr. Eisenhower has succeeded triumphantly in impressing on the people of the world the genuineness and sincerity of his mission.

This is not the sort of triumph which will win concessions from Nikita Khrushchev. But it has its own value, if Mr. Eisenhower and his advisers are wise enough not to overestimate its worth.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

Tough Going

It would seem that whenever a man rises to speak about Russia, he must provide credentials as to his knowledge of the subject. For instance, when Vice President Richard Nixon spoke before the American Legion at Minneapolis, he said:

". . . May I . . . remind you of the background from which I speak. I have made a comprehensive study of the philosophy, tactics and strategy of Communism as set forth by Marx, Lenin, Stalin and other Communist leaders. On the basis of those studies, I know that Communists throughout the world are united in working for one objective—Communist rule over all the people of the world."

Nixon went into this subject after he drove to Whittaker Chambers' farm in Maryland to uncover the Pumpkin Papers.

Unfortunately, not too many Americans have taken the trouble to do any solid homework on the subject of Russia and Communism and the operations of the Communist International. Therefore, their conclusions are often intuitive and incorrect.

To grasp what has been the motivation of the Communists throughout the world, one must recognize that only absolute faith in a principle can unleash such fanatical energy and sacrifice. The principle may be wrong, as the Christians at the time of the Crusaders believed that Islam was wrong, but faith does not question the correctness of its beliefs.

An ideal can be an undefined word. There are many brands of socialism and there are many different kinds of socialist parties. What they all agree upon is the inevitable success of socialism. In the short period of 42 years that the Bolsheviki have controlled Russia, there have been varieties of practice and numerous deviations from the pristine purities of Marxism. Nevertheless, Soviet Russia has been able to introduce the speed-up in production and to beat Great Britain, France and Germany in steel productivity.

A distinction must be made between Leninist socialism as an ideal and Stalinist Bolshevism as a method of operations. The difference is between writing articles and making speeches, to which Lenin devoted most of his life, and putting ideas into operation, to which Stalin devoted most of his life.

Khrushchev comes into this picture belatedly, when the orthodoxy of the faith in the inevitability of socialist success has been fixed, and the application of Stalinist devices requires reform and modernization.

The empire that Stalin built is in danger of collapse because of a war which neither side can avoid losing. Nikita Khrushchev, a second generation Communist Party official, must realize that, for he has been trained to a "scientific" approach to problems, which means that he recognizes peril. He has tried bluster, threat, ultimatum, jokes, everything and anything, but he has not found a formula for getting the United States and the Western European nations to accept him as a conqueror of the world.

Nixon put it correctly in his American Legion speech:

"I know from experience that the Communist Party in the United States, like all Communist parties throughout the world, is directed and controlled from Moscow and has in the past and will in the future engage in espionage and subversion in order to serve the interests of Communist governments wherever they are opposed to those of the United States or other free nations . . ."

But war also is not now the solution. And that Khrushchev knows as well as the United States and Great Britain and France know it. Possibly General de Gaulle, obsessed with "Gloire," can find some answer in war but there is not even a Maginot Line to protect France now. The next war will not be fought with brave hearts and intrepid spirits; it will be a short rain of bombs, rockets and missiles and death. This kind of war can only be recognized in all its horrible magnitude by those who have to deal with its preparation. In a word, Khrushchev would know that such a war can completely wipe out all the fruits of the Russian Revolution.

Just as Winston Churchill did not feel called upon to preside over the dissolution of the British Empire, so Khrushchev undoubtedly does not feel called upon to preside over the death throes of the Soviet Universal State.

This is the realistic motivation for the Summit Conferences. Having faith in the "scientific" inevitability of socialism, Khrushchev undoubtedly believes that if not destroyed by war, his regime will conquer the world.

America Must Share Responsibility For Laos

By Joseph Alsop

VIENTIANE, Laos.

Judging by President Eisenhower's words and action, the President himself has not yet entirely grasped the key fact here. Yet the key fact remains that the Eisenhower administration has morally and politically committed the United States to guard Laos against the kind of Communist aggression that has now been attempted.

This American commitment has now become immensely, perhaps even desperately, important. Hence its obscure but undisputed story is worth recording.

The story begins with the situation created in this little country by the partition of Indochina in 1954, which the American government joined in sponsoring. Briefly, the Geneva partition agreement left Laos effectively divided. The King's sovereignty over the whole country was recognized. But the local Communist forces were left in firm control of the two northern provinces Phong Saly and Samneua.

The international control commission set up at Geneva was charged with this problem. The allegedly impartial Indian chairman of the control commission consistently took a pro-Communist line. Thus the commission finally persuaded King Sisavang Vong to name a mixed government headed by the non-Communist Prince Souvanna Phouma but including his brother, the Communist leader, Prince Souvanna Vong.

During all this period, the whole weight of American influence was thrown against the plan for a mixed government. As predicted by the Americans, the Souvanna Phouma - Souvanna Vong government came preilously close to giving the Communists full control of Laos. After the elections in the summer a year ago, the result was a really major political crisis.

The American moral and political commitment was made during this crisis. In brief, the King and other Laotian leaders had to decide at once whether to make an all-out effort to save their country. Yet the installation of a strong anti-Communist government would quite obviously tend to provoke reprisals and even intervention by the much stronger neighboring Communist government of North Vietnam. There the Communists in Laos had their real base.

The Laotian leaders emphasized the risk to the Americans. For example, before taking his young Laotian party into the new government, the present Foreign Minister, Khamphan Panya, went to the American embassy here. He pointed out that the enormous danger of a new course for Laos, and he asked for a formal American guarantee of Laos' territorial integrity.

Crown Prince Savang made the same point and asked for the same guarantee when the present Assistant Secretary of State for Far Eastern Affairs, J. Graham Parsons, visited the country at this critical moment. The American answer was always the same. We promised Laos full support and we asserted that the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization would guarantee Laos against aggresssion.

In other words, just what is now happening was clearly forecast to the American government before the strongly anti-Communist government of Prime Minister Sananikone was even formed. In full awareness of the danger, with all sorts of reassurances to the Laotians, the American government did everything possible to bring the Sananikone government into being. This in itself constituted a solid American commitment.

The commitment was then greatly deepened when American influence was also used to encourage the anti-Communist campaign rapidly launched by Prime Minister Sananikone. The leading Communists were placed under arrest. In the provinces, the more flagrant terrorists were summarily executed. The Communists-controlled units in the army were disarmed (but one of them got away and is now prominent in the fighting). The remaining machinery of Communist control in Phong Saly and Samneua was firmly dismantled.

All these actions, so strongly tending to provoke a forceful Communist reaction, were taken with explicit American approval. Meanwhile, further warnings of the coming Communist reaction were by no means lacking.

In January, the first probe occurred, when the North Vietnamese Communists seized the small frontier district of Khapai. From January onwards, the Hanoi radio telegraphed the coming punch by thundering threats of "grave consequences" of the Sananikone policy.

The Embassy here foresaw and indicated trouble ahead. At least one independent observer, the able Australian newspaperman, Dennis Warner, even predicted the present aggression in some detail. Yet the Americans were not deterred from pressing for appointment of an American training mission for the Laotian army.

This step has now been singled out by the Communists as the specific pretext for their attack on Laos.

In sum, Laos has been attacked because Laos took American advice. It was good advice. Yet a great country which insistently presses such advice on a small country must always assume responsibility for the consequences. The President almost seemed to reject that responsibility in his tepid press conference before going abroad. If he finally does so, the blow to the American and free world position in Asia will be completely irreparable.

Inside Washington

By Henry Cathcart

The yacht President Franklin D. Roosevelt used to cruise the Potomac River and the Atlantic seacoast is up for sale. She is only 25 years old, sleeps eight and can handle 75 on one-day trips. The Mayflower is Diesel-powered, has a speed of 13 knots and can cruise 2,500 miles without refueling.

The yacht's current owner is the state of Maryland fisheries commission, but she costs $50,000 a year to operate with her crew of 18.

President Roosevelt used the yacht for fishing and weekend relaxation. After 10 years' service as the Presidential yacht, former President Truman ordered her sold in 1946. No date has been set for the sale, and she's at her home port in Annapolis, Md., waiting for the auctioneer's gavel to fall.

Why Some Ex-Smokers Gave Up Cigarets

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

The reports linking cigaret smoking to lung cancer and other serious diseases have done more to promote filter tip cigarets than to stop people from smoking. A recent study showed that less than 10 per cent of the smoking population has given up the habit because of the cancer scare. The majority of those who quit did so because they had an unpleasant condition that was made worse by smoking.

These conclusions stem from a study on ex-smokers made by E. Cuyler Hammond and Constance Percy. The over-all survey was made on several thousand men selected at random from the telephone book. Less than 19 per cent (333 men) had given up smoking. Of these, only 6.3 per cent quit because of reports that smoking causes lung cancer; 2.4 per cent did so because they thought smoking might be mad for the health.

More than half of the ex-smokers stopped because of physical complaints. Coughing was the most frequent reason and 30 per cent stated that their cough improved or disappeared after giving up the weed. Others listed sore throat, headache, and disorders of the lips and mouth.

Some blamed smoking for poor appetite, weight loss, or shortness of breath and were gratified with the good results that followed abstinence from tobacco. Only one man said he was worse off as a result of quitting; he was discontented.

Those who gave up because of physicians' orders usually had peptic ulcer, heart disease, high blood pressure, poor circulation, serious cough or a variety of disorders of the mouth, throat or ears.

What happened to their weight? Three out of four gained and the rest remained unchanged. The added poundage was temporary in some. Some regarded the excess weight as undesirable but the majority made no comment.

Many persons give up cigarets for some reason and then go back to them. Those who notice improvement during the nonsmoking interval ultimately give up the habit, even though the original complaint has disapepared.

TWIN OR DOUBLE?

Mrs. T. writes: My two young daughters are ready for regular beds. Half the time or more they sleep in the same bed now, even though they each have their own youth bed. We are buying new bedroom furniture but don't know whether to get the girls a double bed or twin beds. Are there any health advantages to their sleeping alone?

REPLY

Yes, because it is more restful.

CAUSE OF ITCH

E. S. B. writes: What makes the nose itch? I have asked my doctor and he says he doesn't know.

REPLY

Itching of the nose may stem from allergy, infection, habit, or nervousness. A psychological aspect exists. For example, many persons have an irresistible urge to scratch the nose when sitting in a dental chair.

HOT FOOT

D. W. writes: I'm 70 years old and my feet are so hot at night I can't sleep. What would cause this burning?

REPLY

You may have a circulatory disorder known as erythromelalgia. If so, keep the feet outside the covers at night and take an aspirin or two for relief. Other origins of burning feet are neuritis and too much blood.

CHEMICAL BALANCE

L. G. writes: Please explain the term, "maintenance of electrolyte balance."

REPLY

The electrolytes are chemicals such as calcium, sodium, potassium, and magnesium that are kept in a balanced state in a healthy body. This balance may be upset by surgery, severe diarrhea, vomiting, uremia burns, and other disorders.

YOUNG FOR IT

Mrs. F. writes: Can an 8 year old boy have piles?

REPLY

Yes. Hemorrhoids may occur at any age but the condition is more common in mid-life.

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

Try And Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

Harry Kurnitz, playwright and wit, began his career as a violinist, and still starts fiddling at the slightest provocation. "I love to play gypsy music in night clubs," he admits. "When I've had a few drinks, some ancient urge rises in me. Too few drinks, I'm inhibited. Too many, my fingers refuse to function. But there's a period of about forty seconds between the two stages when I'm pretty good."

One of Kurnitz's favorite violins was purchased from the fiddler who used to play sad songs to inspire Gloria Swanson when she was emoting before the camera in Hollywood's good old silent days. "I pick up this instrument," muses Kurnitz, "and before I know it, I'm playing 'Hearts and Flowers'!"

There's a daring little old lady in Cincinnati who prides herself on keeping an open mind. She's a bit baffled, however, by seeing girls' knees these days in places where once you didn't even see girls.

Eisenhower Has Scrapped Major Policies Of Late Secretary Dulles

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON—Watching the eminently successful trip of President Eisenhower through Europe, I can't help but recall a historic day in Washington last May when the flag-draped coffin of John Foster Dulles lay in state in the National Cathedral. Foreign ministers from as far as Japan flew to pay their respects and homage. Even dour Andre Gromyko, Dulles' protagonist at many conferences, and gnarled old Chancellor Adenauer, Dulles' friend at many conferences, took the long trip across the Atlantic.

They came because Dulles' friend, the President of the United States, decreed that the Secretary of State should have a state funeral. Mrs. Dulles had planned a quiet family ceremony, but a deeply grieving President personally took charge of all funeral arrangements, even specifying the type of dress to be worn, and preparing the list of honor guests. He wanted the man who had worked so tirelessly to solve the problems of the world to have, in death, the recognition of the world. As a result, not even Presidents Roosevelt, Harding and McKinley, who died in office, were buried with such ceremony.

It was just two months and five days later that President Eisenhower began scrapping the policies of John Foster Dulles. He would be the last to admit this. And perhaps he didn't even realize he was scrapping Dulles' policies. But he did it first by inviting Nikita Khrushchev of the Kremlin to pay a personal visit to the White House, an invitation which Mr. Dulles had emphatically and consistently opposed unless our rights in Berlin were first guaranteed. They were not guaranteed, but Khrushchev was invited anyway.

Ike went even further by accepting Khrushchev's invitation to come to Moscow, which brought gasps of dismay from close friends of John Foster Dulles.

Ike Becomes A Dulles

Then one by one, the President proceeded to throw overboard or discredit, without specifically naming them or perhaps even realizing that he was doing so, the watchwords and policies of his late Secretary of State. The only policy he kept was that of personal negotiation. Stepping into the Dulles shoes of the traveling-diplomat-salesman, he proceeded to carry his own ideas direct to the trouble spots and troubled statesmen of Europe.

He has been so successful that many diplomats wish the President had become his own Secretary of State long ago. But in so doing, here is what happened to the policies of Mr. Dulles:

"Massive Retaliation" was a basic policy coined by Dulles in warning that the United States had "great capacity to retaliate instantly, by means and at places of our own choosing." In contrast, President Eisenhower told the world in his TV chat with Prime Minister Macmillan: "People want peace so much that one of these days governments had better get out of their way and let them have it."

"Brink of War"—This Dulles policy, outlined in Life Magazine in 1956, completely evaporated at the Geneva Foreign Ministers Conference, when the United States ducked any showdown of power over Berlin and sent Vice President Nixon on a peace mission to Moscow instead.

"Liberate the Satellites"—This basic Dulles policy was thrown out when Mr. Nixon conferred officially with the Communist leaders of satellite Poland, thereby switching the old policy of "liberation" to one of "friendship." Eisenhower further scrapped the liberation policy when, during his Bonn, Germany, press conference, he said he would not discuss the liberation of former German territory—referring to that held by Poland.

"Failure From Within"—Dulles had argued, privately and publicly, that the Soviet-Communist system would come tumbling down of its own errors. As late as Feb. 26, 1956, testifying before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, he said: "They (the Russians) have made little progress in the last few years . . . The fact is that they have failed and they have got to devise new policies."

In Moscow, following Dulles' death, Vice President Nixon, broadcasting to the Russian people, paid tribute to the "thriving productivity of the factory complex of the Urals . . . The efficient modern equipment of your factories . . . The competitive drive for progress evident on every side . . . and most of all the people."

Direct Disarmament—In December, 1956, Harold Stassen, then in charge of disarmament, pleaded with Eisenhower for permission to fly to Moscow to carry on direct disarmament talks with the Kremlin. He was convinced the Russians were ready not only for disarmament, but a 10-year peace pact with the United States. Dulles vetoed the Stassen trip, eased Stassen out as disarmament specialist.

Today, one definite objective of the Khrushchev-Eisenhower exchange is disarmament. There is also hope of new understanding—possibly a 10-year peace pact—between Russia and the United States.

White House advisers won't admit, of course, that Mr. Dulles' policies have been scrapped. But the diplomats will. And among both foreign and American diplomats, it's believed that Mr. Eisenhower's personal assumption of the reins of foreign policy is one of the healthiest developments of his seven years in office.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

By Jim Bishop

The most thoughtless of all conversational crimes is blasphemy. Men use the name of God to punctuate sentences. Sometimes they do it to lend additional emphasis to a story. I have never known a man to do it as a deliberate slur on his God or a prophet in which he believed.

Recently, I watched a top-flight television comedian perform in a nightclub. Whenever he finished a joke, and did not draw a big laugh, he rolled his eyes and said, with amusing disbelief: "Jeez Cri. . ." This got him a bigger laugh. I wondered what it was doing to the patrons who take their religion seriously.

The next time he started a joke, I looked away from him, toward the little postage-stamp tables. The faces were all upturned, half laughing before he finished the story. When he concluded, and there was a small chuckle, he said: "Jeez Cri. . ." I saw some patrons break up into hearty laughter and I saw others shake their heads. I saw a young woman shudder and hold her hands over her ears and I saw one old man bow his head.

Blasphemy is a conversational crutch. It adds nothing to a story — it will not make an unfunny joke funnier — and yet it is as much an unconscious habit as picking the nose. When I was a young reporter, one of the marks of my importance was to blaspheme in every other sentence.

One day when I used it, and didn't know it, an elderly woman stared down her frosty nose at me and said: "I didn't know you knew Him that well.

"What well?" I said belligerently.

"That well. You call God by His first name."

"What are you?" I said. "One of those religious maniacs?"

She thought about it a moment. "From where you stand — yes," she said.

It required a lot of patience to get out of the habit. I was using the name of God without knowing it. It came out of me when I could not find a tie, when I got a busy signal on a telephone, when a light went red as I drove through it, when the children interrupted my work, when the boss asked me to do something distasteful, when a train was late, when a bore bent my ear — I almost gave up trying.

After a long period of time, I won but I almost went mute. It's like drinking. When you stop it, you begin to notice how much others do it. You tend to become insufferably holy and this is as far removed from my true character as crawling into a satellite and blasting off.

Women seldom use the name of God in vain. It lends itself to rough conversation and women do not like to be identified with anything but refinement. This includes the rough ones. The thought occurred to me that blasphemy would take different forms around the world.

"Holy Moses" should be offensive to a Jew. "By Allah's beard," must be unpleasant to a Moslem. "By Jehovah" should hurt everyone, because this name is used to connote the deity by people of many faiths. And yet, as I say, I've never met a man who used any of these terms with the intention of offending anyone.

In March 1957, The United States Bureau of Census made a survey of religion in citizens over 14 years of age. The tally showed that 79,000,000 Americans were Protestants, 30,700,000 were Roman Catholics, 3,900,000 were Jews, 1,500,000 belonged to small sects, and 3,200,000 were of no faith.

Thus about 115,000,000 Americans over the age of 14 believe in God. Of these, about one-third, or 38,000,000 adults are serious communicants who attend their churches and temples regularly and are genuinely afraid to offend God. These are the ones who are hurt, and say nothing, when they hear blasphemy.

The origins of blasphemy are lost in the yellowed centuries of long ago. This much I know: there was never a time, in any age, when a man could abuse the name of his ruler or king without risking punishment or death. Long ago, the scoffers found that the only one who could be mocked with impunity was the King of Kings. . .

War's Anniversary Brings Memories To Policeman

By JERRY GOULD

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—The 20th anniversary this week of Hitler's march into Poland brought back some bitter memories for a member of the West Virginia State Police force.

Although the United States did not enter the war for another two years, Lt. R. E. Schnell, now serving in the Department of Public Safety executive offices here, vividly remembers some of the "hospitality" of the 3rd Reich during 1944-45.

(Lt. Schnell served at Romney barracks of the State Police for several years when he was a sergeant, and was promoted and transferred about threeyears ago.)

After entering the army in 1942 Schnell, a native of McMechen, was commissioned in January 1944 and that spring was on his way to Africa as a B-24 bomber pilot.

After being reassigned to the 15th Air Force in Italy, Schnell flew missions into Germany France and the Balkans.

On his seventh mission, two of the bomber's four engines were shot up and a third went out over Bleckhammer, Germany.

Schnell headed the crippled plane toward the Russian lines some 170 miles away. But it lost altitude rapidly and he ordered his crew to bail out.

When all of his men had jumped Schnell followed and landed in a pasture. He was paralyzed from the waist down and when he got untangled from the parachute, he found several Germans standing over him with rifles.

Schnell learned he had a broken ankle and torn ligaments in both knees but was given no treatment by his German captors. He was taken across the country from jail to jail until he reached an interrogation center at Frankfort-on-the-Maine.

After several days of questioning and trips to the center's dungeon, Schnell was taken to a hospital in Frankfort. By that time his legs were horribly swollen and he was afraid he might lose one or both.

However, the injuries responded to treatment and he was later taken to a prison camp 60 miles southeast of Berlin. He remained there until January, 1945, when the Russians started lobbing shells into the compound.

A long, forced march followed in snow that sometimes was hip deep, to another camp near Munich. It was there that units of Gen. George S. Patton's 3rd Army liberated 80,000 prisoners April 29, 1945.

"I never thought I would like the smell of tank exhaust fumes," Schnell recalled Thursday. "But when Patton's tanks broke through that compound wall, they were wonderful to behold, fumes and all."

Ridgedale Reservoir Area Spruced Up

Improvements have been completed at Ridgedale Reservoir for the season, according to Water Commissioner G. Ray Light.

Earlier this year the big reservoir was cleaned and repaired. The picket fence surrounding the property was painted white, and the posts green.

The work was completed this week as crews, under the supervision of Franklin J. Blaney, sanitary engineer, applied a coat of aluminum paint to valves and hand rails.

Watershed Lumber Plan Recommended

The city's sanitary engineer has recommended that an agreement for perpetual maintenance and management of lumber in the watershed be entered into with the M. C. Houseworth Lumber Company.

The recommendation was made to Water Commissioner G. Ray Light by the engineer, Franklin J. Blaney.

The agreement would include the following restrictions: (1) Watershed areas be placed under definite sustain-yield management to grow forest products for the future. Protect and control erosion and provide the city with a return from its forest holdings; (2) the lumber company shall employ a graduate forester to take charge of managing the watershed area's timber in cooperation with the sanitary engineer so that the proposed plan is properly worked and maintained under professional guidance from both fields; (3) areas be thoroughly examined and inventory and definite cutting plan be drawn up by the forester and engineer; and (4) logging loads and skidroad designs be drawn up before each logging operation is started and such plans be strictly adhered to and placed in a permanent filed.

Payments would be set up as follows:

The lumber company would pay current stumpage prices for timber, depending on ease of access, location, type, etc. A definite system for determining stumpage prices should be devised.

Value of stumpage determined from current lumber prices owed by the lumber company to the city, shall be placed in account for future lumber purchases and in event such lumber is not handled by the contracting lumber company, then the company will be obligated to obtain this lumber for the city at the prevailing wholesale price.

The company would be required to clean up tops from logging operation near roads, streams or reservoirs or any other area considered dangerous from a point of view of fire or mineral contamination of water, by cutting these tops into pulpwood. This would be done by the company and such pulpwood would be considered payment in full for the cleaning up operation.

Blaney also recommended that a committee be set up representing both the city and lumber company to discuss any special matters which may arise during working of the proposed contract. A management plan would be set up for a definite number of years and revisions made depending upon timber conditions as a result of this first phase.

Blaney said he believed a plan to control forestation would be of benefit to the city and added he had discussed the plan with R. H. Bommer, formerly with the Pennsylvania State Forestry Association and presently representing the Houseworth company, and with Charles W. Koontz, Bedford, attorney for the Eyitts Creek Water Company, who, Blaney said, favors the program.

Light said he would study Blaney's report and discuss it with him.

Apple Orchards Hard Pressed By Processors

Area apple orchardists depending on the canning market are being hard-pressed this summer and the Eastern Fruit Marketers Co-op has expressed strongest dissatisfaction with prices announced by two Appalachian processors.

The co-op's board of directors, meeting in Martinsburg this week, said it would not recommend delivery of apples at the prices stated and feels the reactivation of last year's "3-D" program is in order.

That program called for holding up canning apples from the processors. This resulted in a slight increase.

The processors, C. H. Musselman and Co. of Biglerville, Pa., which operates a plant at Inwood, Berkeley County, W. Va., and Duffy-Mott Co., Chambersburg, Pa., listed prices just 25 cents above last year's for the top variety.

For the top canning apple, York Imperial, No. 1, 2½ inches up, the processors are paying $2.25 a hundredweight. Last year this was $2.00.

But for the less desirable grades, the canners are offering prices below last year. In fact, so much so, many of them will be left in the orchards.

There are more of this variety this year due to sectional droughts and the orchardists' feeling that extensive pruning and spraying would not be justified by last year's prices.

One orchardist reported that if the prices were hiked another 25 cents a hundredweight the growers could break even this year.

The "3-D" plan calls for deferring delivery of processors, diverting as much fruit as possible into fresh channels and leaving the poorest portion of the crop on the trees.

The co-op's board of directors said it was unwilling to work a hardship on those financially hard-pressed growers who feel the necessity to deliver varieties now ready for harvesting.

The cooperative is an outgrowth of a dispute with processors last year over prices and was set up to bargain with the canners. There are more than 500 members.

A check of the tri-state apple area shows that the canning plants are operating and apples are being delivered by the hard-pressed growers.

Those orchardists who deal mostly in the fresh market are in better shape as they are getting prices much better than last year's.

Consolidated Orchard Company at Paw Paw, with half of its holdings in Allegany County, said it will not be affected greatly by the canning prices.

Little Hope Seen For Petition

Supporters of a petition which would require a referendum on a proposed charter amendment setting up new rules for city street construction and resurfacing said yesterday chances appeared slim that the required number of signatures would be obtained by deadline time today.

L. V. Lowery, 714 Frederick Street, a spokesman for the group, said work is continuing and petitions are still out but it did not appear they will contain the required 20 per cent of the registered voters to send the issue to a vote of the people. He added he could not estimate the number already signed but did say it is far under the 2,323 necessary.

Petitions will be turned over to City Clerk Wallace G. Ullery whether the required number of voters have signed or not "to let the city know that at least some people are interested," Lowery said.

Lowery added it has been surprising to find the number of people in various walks of life who are not registered to vote in the city.

River Flow Below Normal

The observed mean daily flow of the Potomac River at Cumberland (Wiley Ford gage) during August was 179 cubic feet per second, or 116 million gallons per day.

This is 40 per cent of the 30-year August average, according to A. A. Vickers, engineer in charge of the U. S. Geological Survey here. The daily flow averaged between 301 million gallons August 8 and 82.1 million gallons August 22 and 23.

Use of water stored in Savage River Dam caused an average increase of 33.6 million gallons, or 29.1 per cent of the flow in the river.

Figures Given On FHA Refunds

C. H. Borcherding Sr., director of the Federal Housing Administration in Baltimore, was informed by Julian H. Zimmerman, commissioner of the FHA, that during the fiscal year 1959, FHA distributed cash refunds totaling $11,401,713 among 102,629 families that have paid off insured mortgages on their homes.

In Maryland there were 1,154 refunds distributed during the fiscal year 1959 in the total amount of $140,718. In the past 15 years, since the first refund payments were made, FHA has paid out of its Mutual Mortgage Insurance Fund a total of nearly $95 million to more than 791,000 families.

Major Earthquakes Rare In Most Of United States

WASHINGTON—In a world jarred by more than one million earthquakes a year, the United States occupies a region of relative calm.

Severe tremors in the Yellowstone National Park area, recently hit by the worst siege in its history, are infrequent.

No place on the earth is immune to the violence of tremblors, but the major earthquake belt runs around the edge of the Pacific, the National Geographic Society says. Significantly, there is the juxtaposition of lofty, rugged mountains and extreme ocean depths. The mountain chains are still growing.

Second Trouble Zone

The second major trouble zone extends from the West Indies across the Atlantic and Mediterranean to the Himalayas and East Indies. The Himalayas and mountains of the Indies also are young.

Earthquakes—like volcanoes—are intimately connected with mountain-making. The earth, like an adolescent, is still suffering from growing pains. It is restless, unpredictable. Tremors and volcanoes are safety valves to ease pent-up pressure and strain.

Tremors occur at "faults" or deep fractures when one rock mass slips against another, causing the earth's crust to vibrate and rebound. Most faults lie beneath the sea.

This year has been particularly quiet. The Coast and Geodetic Survey, which keeps a sensitive ear on the trembling earth, has recorded only 157 major earth tremors in 1959 as compared to 241 during the same period last year.

The most destructive earthquake in recent history rocked Assam and Tibet in 1950, burying whole villages and flinging rock dams across rivers.

The last severe United States earthquake struck the area of Bakersfield, California, in 1952, causing millions of dollars worth of damage. Another of about equal intensity rocked the sparsely populated area of Fallon, Nevada, in 1954.

Interior of Continent Safe

The interior of the continent is regarded as safe, though the basin of the Mississippi Valley occasionally is disturbed. In 1811, Missouri oscillated—and with it two-thirds of the nation. New Madrid and Caruthersville, Missouri, were demolished. Fissures opened in the earth, and for a while the Mississippi flowed upstream. A portion of northwest Tennessee sank, forming Reelfoot Lake.

The western plains and western mountain region seldom feel strong earth shocks. In particular the Dakotas are anchored solidly. North Dakota, West Virginia, Wisconsin, and the District of Columbia share the distinction of never having experienced a major earthquake.

As the West Coast lies in a major earthquake belt, tremors occur there more frequently than in other parts of the country. In few places does the earth twitch more regularly than in California. The San Andreas fault, which triggered the 1906 earthquake in San Francisco, is one of the largest and best known rifts in the world.

Piedmont High Registers 248

Randolph County Timber Is Sold

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—The State Conservation said Wednesday it has sold two timber tracts to an Elkwater, Randolph County, firm.

The Myles Lumber Co. paid $11,524 for the tracts located in Kumbrabow State Forest in Randolph County. They contained 401,000 board feet of timber.

State Forester Lester McClung said only mature or defective timber is marked for cutting in these instances. Young trees are left to grow until future cuttings.

Weirton Steel Men Cite Advantages Of Keeping Their Independent Union

By JOHN KADY
United Press International

WEIRTON, W. Va. (UPI)—The 13,500 employes of Weirton steel, who continue to work during the nationwide steel strike, can vouch for the fact that an independent union sometimes has its advantages.

Employes of Weirton Steel haven't been on strike in more than 25 years while members of the United Steel Workers union (USW) have left the job six times since World War II.

Employes of the Northern Panhandle steel plant have had their own union since 1933 and on Oct. 26, 1950, organized the present Independent Steel Workers Union (ISU).

The USW has consistently attempted to organize Weirton Steel but has met with no success. The latest attempt was early this year when the USW set up organizing headquarters at Weirton and Follansbee.

The national union had to get a petition signed by 30 per cent of Weirton Steel's employes before an election could be conducted. They failed to have the election called when they couldn't obtain enough petitioners.

$60 A Year

ISU president Malcolm Graham said "it isn't the members they're concerned about; its that $60 a year in dues that they (the USW) wants from the 11,000 workers that belong to the ISU."

At present the 33 job classifications at Weirton Steel are paying an amount of 5 cents more an hour than USW members were receiving at major plants when they went on strike.

A Weirton Steel Co. spokesman said labor - management relations at the plant are about the best in the country. Wildcat strikes simply don't occur and there hasn't been a work slowdown in the last quarter of a century.

Weirton steel employes usually sign a new contract for as much as USW members will get or more, following a USW strike," he said. "The policy of the ISU is to see what USW members get then try to improve on their positions."

The economy of Weirton and surrounding towns is bolstered by not having to go through a strike period.

Lose Nothing

An $1,800,000 payroll is paid out by Weirton Steel every Thursday. While USW members are losing $70,000,000 a week in payrolls, employes of Weirton Steel are losing nothing.

Such a solid economy in the 34,000 population town is well illustrated by the number of residents that own their own homes, 95 per cent—one of the highest community percentages in the country.

Or down the highly industrialized Ohio river valley it is a different story. The town of Benwood, almost wholly dependent on the town's striking Wheeling Steel Corp. plant, is having economic difficulties.

Business in the respective towns can well reflect the economic situation. A Weirton business man said "our sales are running about 20 per cent ahead of last year and there hasn't been any let down." A Benwood business man said "my business had dropped 75 per cent since the beginning of the strike and it's all I can do to meet expenses."

School Problem Aired By Board, PTA At Romney

ROMNEY — The Hampshire County Board of Education is being urged to consider removing shop facilities from Romney High School to provide more classroom space for an overflow of students.

The recommendation for the removal of the shop equipment was made by a group of parents from each of the school's six grades, headed by R. L. Sumner, president of the Romney Parent Teacher Association.

According to A. Clinton Loy, superintendent of schools, it was estimated that the renovation of the shop space into three classrooms would cost between $3,000 and $5,000.

The Board of Education, Loy continued, will take the recommendation under advisement and inform the PTA if such action is possible. The cost of the project will require considerable alteration in the school system's $611,527 budget, the superintendent said, since operating costs were "cut to the bone."

The board's decision will be made at the first regular meeting of the PTA later this month.

The overcrowded condition was brought to public attention at the opening of the school term Tuesday. Approximately 50 new seventh grade students were assigned to the school gymnasium because of lack of seating facilities.

Robert B. Harper, principal of Romney High, said some arrangements have been made to crowd students in rooms, but that a large number are receiving instructions in the gymnasium. The condition will remain in effect until the Board of Education makes known its decision, he added.

The only other proposition discussed at yesterday's meeting in Loy's office was the possibility of erecting a quonset-type building. The superintendent said such a solution was considered too costly, and that a permanent solution was more desirable.

In the event the board decides to accept the PTA recommendation, the Romney High shop would be moved to quarters downtown, Loy said.

FSTC To Give Guidance Tests Next Week

FROSTBURG—Dr. William C. Van Newkirk will conduct a testing program at Frostburg State Teachers College next week for all new students, both freshmen and upperclassmen.

Dr. Van Newkirk said that he will be using the complete battery of tests which have been designed for the national guidance testing program.

Testing will begin Tuesday for new students with surnames A-K inclusive, from 1 to 4:45 p. m. They will also be continued for this group on Wednesday and Thursday at the same hours.

Students with surnames from L-Z will be tested Wednesday, Thursday and Friday from 8:15 a. m. to noon.

A briefing session for approximately 30 proctors who will assist Dr. Van Newkirk will be held Tuesday at 11 a. m. in the Lowndes Hall social room.

The national guidance testing program offers these features Dr. Van Newkirk said:

A complete battery of tests developed to aid the school administration, guidance counselor, and classroom teacher in directing the learning process according to each student's ability to learn and to apply his knowledge in the major academic areas; the tests, school and college ability tests (SCAT) and sequential tests of educational progress (STEP) cover general academic ability in reading, writing, listening, social studies, science and mathematics.

According to Dr. Van Newkirk, the SCAT tests assess the capacity of the student to undertake academic work at the next higher school level and provide three scores: verbal, quantative and total, and are used with STEP which bring to light any disparity between a student's performance and his ability.

The STEP tests measure the critical skills in application of learning and are available in six major academic areas.

Dr. Van Newkirk said the test results will be used in planning the student's area of concentration while at the college and will also be used for guidance purposes.

BARRY T. PITTER

Three new members have been added to the technical staff of the Amcelle plant of Celanese Corporation of America, according to Hudson Nix, personnel manager.

Barry T. Pitter comes to the local plant from Cincinnati, where he had been employed as an engineer with Procter and Gamble since June 1957. Mr. Pitter has been assigned to the Extrusion Development Section.

A native of New York, where he attended Bronx High School of Science, Mr. Pitter is a graduate of Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute where he received a B.S. degree in chemical engineering in June 1957. During college he contributed to the school newspaper and engineering magazine and was a member of the Hillel Society and the AICHE student chapter.

Mr. Pitter is a member of the Engineering Society of Cincinnati and of the American Institute of Chemical Engineers. He resides at 427 Greene Street.

Harry P. Grady IV, of Drexel Hill, Pennsylvania, has been assigned to the main laboratory as an analytical chemist. Mr. Grady resigned from a position as chemist with Sadtler Research Laboratories in Philadelphia where he had been employed since June 1956.

Mr. Grady attended Haverford (Pa.) High School and was graduated with a B.S. degree in chemistry from Drexel Institute of Technology in 1958. He attended Drexel on the cooperative plan, working alternate quarters with American Viscose Corporation, Hercules Powder Company, United States Geological Survey and the Sadtler Research Laboratories. He is a member of the American Chemical Society.

Mr. and Mrs. Grady have not located a permanent residence in Cumberland.

Donald P. Bolden, formerly of Meyersdale, Pa., has reported for assignment as a shift foreman in the Cellulose Compounds Manufacturing Section.

Mr. Bolden attended high school in Meyersdale and the University of Maryland. He was graduated from Mt. Saint Mary's College at Emmitsburg in 1957, where he received a B.S. degree in chemistry. Prior to joining Celanese, he taught mathematics at North Cambria High School in Barnesboro, Pa. Prior to that he was a materials engineer for B. F. Goodrich Rubber Company in Akron, Ohio.

Mr. and Mrs. Bolden and their two small daughters have recently moved to a home in Bowling Green.

Getty Answers Iser's Plea

State's Attorney James S. Getty has filed an answer in Allegany County Circuit Court denying that Howard Maurice Iser, now serving a total of 13 years in the Maryland Penitentiary, is illegally imprisoned.

Iser was convicted last October 17 of armed robbery and was sentenced by Chief Judge Morgan C. Harris to 10 years in the penitentiary. Iser escaped from the County Jail November 5 and was recaptured later in Montgomery, Ala.

On January 19 he was tried before Judge Harris on the jail break charge and drew an additional three-year term to be served after the original 10 years are completed. August 17, Iser filed a petition for a hearing under the Post Conviction Procedure Act.

His chief argument in the petition appears to be the denial of legal counsel at his second trial on January 19. At that time he refused to have legal counsel. Judge Harris has referred this case to Associate Judge Neil C. Fraley of Oakland.

In his answer, Mr. Getty further contends that Iser was legally convicted, the sentence did not exceed the legal limits and his rights under the U.S. and State constitutions were not infringed.

446 Pigeons Enter Race

The first young bird race of the Allegany Racing Pigeon Club's 1959 series attracted 446 pigeons from 16 lofts, the largest number ever to compete in one race.

This 100-mile race from West Union, W. Va., was flown under unfavorable conditions. Fog encountered en route slowed the race and caused scattered returns.

Coney Bill II from the Town View Loft of Galen Beeman was the winner, averaging 836.96 yards per minute.

Others in the top 10 were No Money Jim from the Back Alley Loft of Homer Yates, 817.80 yards per minute; No. 1034 from the Gilmore Loft of C. A. Ambrose, 801.08 yards per minute; No. 905, also from the Gilmore Loft, 800.96 yards per minute; Sitting Bull from the Klondyke Loft of Leslie Cutter, 799.15 yards per minute; Horse Shoe, also from the Klondyke Loft, 797.51 yards per minute; Foggy from the Woodland Loft of Irvin Buskirk, 789.34 yards per minute; Doll, also from Town View Loft, 787.41 yards per minute; Silly from Woodland Loft of Irvin Buskirk, 787.22 yards per minute, and Kate from the Pear Alley Loft of J. H. Sweitzer, 782.23 yards per minute.

The next race will be a special 100-mile race from West Union.

Residents Claim Home Damaged By Blasting

The occupants of 514 North Mechanic Street yesterday filed a $5,000 damage suit in Allegany County Court against the A. J. Albrecht Company for damages they claim resulted from flood control work on Wills Creek.

Alice G. Waingold, Georgia L. Myers and Floyd H. Myers, her husband, filed the suit through their attorney, Harry I. Stegmaier.

The plaintiffs claim that as a result of blasting by the defendant, the house and property were damaged and the occupants were deprived of peace and quiet.

Mr. Carscaden emphasized there was no discrimination, since rates for all water companies were boosted the same.

No increase was made in industrial rates, he said, since the city wants to help keep the costs of area industries down.

City officials outlined the problems the city faces in modernizing its water system and pointed out that flat rates were increased here as a water conservation measure and are being abolished in 1961.

Will Study Schedule

The water company officials said they will study the new rate schedule and apply to the Public Service Commission, as Ridgeley is doing, if the firm must boost rates for its 147 customers.

Joint action with Ridgeley was suggested if PSC action is needed.

It was pointed out that water consumers in LaVale now have to pay more than Cumberland customers.

The money is, of course, paid to the LaVale Civic Improvement Association, which provides the service, and not to the City of Cumberland.

He also discussed with Captain Boggs plans for increasing the size of the company and at the same time maintaining the required high standards.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD—Robert Crichton's popular novel "The Great Imposter," bought from the galley proof over a year ago by Ed Muhl, goes to Tony Curtis.

This is the true life story of Ferdinand Demara, who disguised as a deputy sheriff, college professor, surgeon, a Royal Canadian Mounted and even a Trappist monk, made many fortunes. Whenever the hot breath of the law would breathe on him, he would go into hiding as one of these characters. He was so convincing no one had any idea that he was masquerading under an assumed name and profession.

Young Robert Mulligan, who will direct Tony and Debbie Reynolds in "Rat Race," has been engaged to direct and Robert Arthur is the producer.

No one can deny that Susan Kohner is one of the most talented young actresses in this town. Acting just seems to come naturally to her. The very same day that Natalie Wood and Bob Wagner were signed by Pandro Berman for "Ever For Each Other," Susan also put her name to a contract.

There are four top roles in "Ever For Each Other." It is possible that George Peppard will be given the last one, although I believe this isn't set. When you see the completed movie it will have another name, since it is the intention of the MGM biggies to change the title.

There is a big chance that Diane Varsi may change her mind and play her role of Allison in "Return to Peyton Place" for 20th. The picture will be shot in New England close to Bennington, Vt., where Diane goes to school. Jerry Wald has been in touch with her and at this writing it looks favorable, but you can never be sure about this Varsi girl.

One thing is sure enough. Brett Halsey, who was in "The Best of Everything," gets one of the top roles in the second Peyton epic. He has also been put under a term contract and it is Buddy Adler's intention to give him a big buildup.

Talked with Haya Harareet, who is just back from New York where she was interviewed about "Ben Hur." She said she met Otto Preminger there and he asked her if she would be interested in playing the femme lead in "Exodus."

"I would love to do it," she said, "because it is being filmed in Israel, my own country, but naturally I cannot discuss or accept any role without permission of MGM, as I am under contract to that studio."

"Ben Hur" will be released in November and "Exodus" won't be made until March of next year, so it is possible Haya will be permitted to play the role of Karen. As I told you, Paul Newman has been signed for the male lead and Haya would love to play opposite him.

I am certainly happy that Erin O'Brien and her husband Jimmy Fitzgerald have reconciled, and that they will have a happy reunion when she returns from starring in "Pal Joey" in Miami Beach.

Jimmy told me that they actually had been reconciled for the last three months, but during that time Erin had been out of town in summer stock and on TV shows. They are both delighted that Erin's next movie, "Cinderella" at Paramount, will be filmed right here.

Their two little children, Pat, 7, and Greg, 4, are two reasons their reconciliation is a happy one.

I'm here to tell the audience that goes for Kookie and Fabian, Bobby Darin, and the rest of the young crowd, that they are in for a treat. Jackie Gleason is going to make a TV spectacular of "The Baker's Wife."

Teen-agers never had the privilege of seeing the wonderful original French production of this comedy masterpiece which starred Ramu, but it was simply the funniest.

Some years back, Harold Hecht, then of Hecht-Lancaster acquired the American rights and planned to film it as a way of introducing Sophia Loren to his country. But Stanley Kramer got Sphia first, and Hecht abandoned the project.

Paul Kohner made the Gleason deal.

Secrets Of Charm

Dry Skin Remedies

There's nothing fascinating about the newest wrinkle—when it's a wrinkle in your skin. A wrinkle in your skin happens along fastest if the skin is dry. Dry skins certainly need more devoted care than any other kind because the dryness must be coped with constantly. But no beauty program, faithfully followed, is more rewarding than a good one for dry skin, because it does so much to make youthful good looks last.

Make no mistake about it. Dry skin is a special case that requires special attention. If your skin is dry:

For you, special preparations always. Cleansers formulated for dry skin, super-fatted or lanolin-base soap, night creams or liquids containing lanolin or other rich oils.

And special methods. Face-washing with soap once a day only, preferably at bedtime, followed by careful rinsing. A night care preparation always at bedtime, and at any other time of day when cosmetics can be removed and the preparations left on for a while. So much the better if a film remains under fresh makeup. Blotting with a cool, wet Turkish towel after cream cleansing when it can't be followed by the night preparation.

Once a week, a special treatment. Cleansing first, then the application of a hot, wet towel to your face until muscles relax. A generous application of skin oil after this. Now play the piano on your face for two minutes — tap the skin gently, don't pull at it. Remove excess oil with tissue.

If the skin flakes, mix a half teaspoon of salt into one-quarter cup of the skin oil and smooth, don't rub, this mixture into the skin. Apply a second hot towel over it immediately and leave the towel on a minute. Rinse the face with warm water.

For the final step, a pad of inch-thick cotton big enough to cover the entire face and neck. Soak it in a bowl of ice cubes to which has been added two tablespoons of witch hazel or skin freshener. With the compress on your face, lie down for ten minutes.

Wonderful! Your face feels and looks wonderful right away. Best of all, if you continue the special treatment faithfully along with the rest of this beauty routine, you can expect the improvement to last. Your skin really will be fresh and alive, and that is what makes it—and you—look young.

Television and Radio

by John Crosby

The Only Hope

Louis Untermeyer is a poet who looks and sounds like a staccato eagle and who thinks that poetry is the only hope of our beat-up generation. He's also the author of a book called "Lives of the Poets," brashly following in the footsteps of Samuel Johnson, whose best book had the same title and same wildly ambitious outlines. Untermeyer is a veritable torrent of opinion on the subject of poetry, a topic that has not been exactly at the top of the hit parade for some years now, and the other day I asked him to say a few words on the subject — which is something like pulling your finger out of the dike in Holland.

"W. H. Auden, one of the greatest poets this century has produced," proclaimed Mr. Untermeyer, "once called this the Age of Anxiety, which I think is a brilliant term. This is the Age of Anxiety — politically, socially, culturally, and poetically. Poets and writers and musicians and sculptors reflect our terrific insecurity and so creators, instead of using our common language —the written word—try to get to the audience in a new and different way. Either yelling above the din that is going on—radio, television — or speaking so quietly hardly anyone hears them.

"The cure for this is the recognition of the basic simple facts of poetry. The geniuses of tomorrow in poetry will be the ones who write the Burma Shave ads along the road or the Alka Seltzer ads in the buses. There is supposed to be a basic prejudice against poetry; it's too esoteric, too highbrow, or any of those other words you find in Roget's Thesaurus. What most of us don't realize is that everyone loves poetry. They have it everywhere Burma Shave, for instance—good rhymes, perfect rhythm which could not be better if Pope himself had written them. The prose is also wonderful," Mr. Untermeyer observed owlishly, "that prose one reads in the ads telling you the facts about your stomach lining, the glamor of burping to Alka Seltzer. What would the Maguire sisters do without poetry? Poetry has rhythm, rhyme, beat, and emotional impact — on your stomach lining if so directed.

"We are caught between the highbrows being derisive of popular poetry and the people being derisive of highbrow poetry. Until we realize it's only a common meeting ground and both the so-called high and lowbrow poetry have the same impulse we won't get anywhere. Is Ogden Nash only a funny poet? I don't think so. He's a social critic, makes fun of many things we think sacrosanct. Mr. Auden is not only a very serious poet but a very witty one.

"Good poetry has sounded every level between the so-called high and lowbrows. There is a good deal in poetry for any reader. We quote more from Pope in our daily life than from anything else except the Bible and Shakespeare. Poetry is part of our life — commercially. Poetry was written for the vulgar: they sang it before it was printed as the beatnik poets do today."

What about the beatniks, Mr. Untermeyer was asked? "I think beatniks have this to say—'We don't want your world, your values, or your morals. You'll go to church when you've stopped believing. We want a quick drink, a fast girl, and another motel. We want out,' This is all a gesture of defiance, a gesture of rebellion. They rebuke the older generation and that's good. But their philosophy is destructive because this is a destructive age we're living in. Disillusionment also is a serious fallout. Man is a talking animal and I'm all for the beatniks expressing themselves in prose or in poetry."

He sighed: "You wanted to know if I was going on television. I don't like television or radio. Poetry once had a large audience but it did not then have these large mechanical competitors — television, the UP, the newspapers. Why, once they used to read poetry at home, they even talked to each other at home, had conversations and everything. Before poetry comes back, conversation will have to come back.

"I don't know if this will happen. I hear clasrooms now are equipped with television and soon everyone will be taught by television, thus eliminating the teacher who gave you personal contact. We will then definitely become a nation of observers."

San Francisco Slugs Out 8-5 Victory Over Chicago

McCovey Hits Safely In 16th Straight Tilt

Giants Slam Three Homers; Boost Lead Over Braves, Bucs

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The San Francisco Giants, using the long ball again in a 14-hit attack, slugged out an 8-5 victory over the Chicago Cubs Thursday before 15,424 fans and edged further ahead in the tight National League race.

The Giants blasted three home runs, a triple and two doubles.

The triumph put San Francisco 4½ games ahead of Milwaukee and 5½ over Pittsburgh. The Braves and Pirates were idle Thursday.

First sacker Willie McCovey, who has hit safely in 16 straight games, broke a 4-4 tie in the fifth with his 10th home run of the season off Dave Hillman, who had relieved Cub starter Bob Anderson.

Orlando Cepeda and Willie Kirkland followed with doubles and the Giants never were behind again.

Willie Mays belted his 25th homer in the sixth with Jackie Brandt on base. It was the 7th straight game in which the Giants have homered.

Stu Miller, pitching in relief after the Cubs routed starter Johnny Antonelli, got the victory, his 8th against 7 losses.

Loes Throttles Bosox In Ninth, Orioles Win, 5-4

Makes 14th Save, Hal Brown Victor

BALTIMORE, Md. (UPI)—Relief pitcher Billy Loes put down a ninth-inning Boston Red Sox rally Thursday night to insure a 5-4 victory for the Baltimore Orioles.

Loes came on the scene after the Red Sox had scored twice in the final inning and had the tieing run on third base with two out. He forced Pumpsie Green to ground out to preserve the triumph for veteran Hal Brown.

Brown had allowed only six hits and held a 5-2 lead going into the ninth when Boston erupted. Jackie Jensen walked to open the inning, but Brown appeared out of trouble when he retired the next two batters on infield flies. Then, pinch hitter Vic Wertz walked. Marty Keough, also in a pinch hitting role, slammed a long triple to right center.

Saves 14th Game

Earlier Bob Nieman slammed a pair of 400-foot home runs to pace the Orioles' 10-hit attack on loser Frank Baumann and Nelson Chittum.

Nieman's first blast over the center field fence followed Chico Carrasquel's double in the third and gave the Orioles a 2-0 lead. Boston tied it with single runs in the fourth and sixth innings on a pair of singles by Sammy White. Nieman's second wallop, 30 rows up in the left field seats broke the tie and gave Baltimore a 3-2 lead in the seventh. Willie Tasby's triple, a walk and singles by Brown and pinch hitter Gene Woodling produced the final Oriole runs in the eighth.

Brown's record is now 9-7. Baumann, who beat Baltimore twice before this year, is 5-4.

Olmedo Faces Aussie Today In Nationals

Meets Don Russell In Opening Round

FOREST HILL, N.Y. (AP) — Alex Olmedo begins the long road back Friday, and the first thing he sees is another Australian.

The Peruvian from the University of Southern California, a disappointment in last week's Davis Cup challenge round, meets Don Russell, a 19-year-old Sydney youngster, in the first round of the National Tennis Championships.

This is a title the mysterious Inca must win if he is to hold his position as the recognized world No. 1 amateur and remain live bait for a professional contract.

Thirty-two men's singles matches, the entire bottom half of the draw, and 15 women's engagements are on the first day's program at the West Side Tennis Club.

Australia's Neale Fraser, the Davis Cup hero, and Barry MacKay of Dayton, Ohio — seeded second and third, respectively, behind the favored Olmedo — open their campaigns Saturday.

Three other men seeds, besides the Peruvian, play Friday. Rod Laver of Australia, No. 4, faces Arthur Ashe of Lynchburg, Va.; Earl Buchholz Jr. of St. Louis, No. 7 takes on Robert Bowditch of Worcester, Mass., and Roy Emerson of Australia, No. 8, goes against John Skogstad of Coral Gables, Fla.

Ditmar Wins For Yankees

Art Notches 11th Over Senators, 9-2

NEW YORK (AP)—Art Ditmar, Yankee right-hander, held Washington hitless for 6 2-3 innings Thursday, then coasted as the New Yorkers pounded out a 9-2 victory. The winners collected 17 hits.

The first blow off Ditmar was Roy Sievers' 18th home run of the season after two were out in the seventh. Bob Allison followed with a single but Hal Naragon flied out to end the frame.

The third hit was Clint Courtney's pinch homer to open the eighth. The only other safe blow was Sievers single in the ninth. Ditmar struck out six and walked two in chalking up his 11th victory of the year. He has been beaten 8 times.

Russ Kemmerer started for Washington and was touched for two runs on singles by Marv Throneberry, Cletis Boyer, Ditmar and Bobby Richardson in the second.

Successive singles by Mickey Mantle, Elston Howard and Hector Lopez at the start of the third sent Kemmerer to the showers and Hal Woodeshick took over. Errors on grounders by Tony Kubek and Boyer meant three runs.

Phil Reuschel Is Winner Of Dean Memorial Trophy

VFW Capture Three Awards; 175 Attend R.C. League Dinner

One hundred and seventy-five persons attended the annual dinner of the Rocking Chair Softball League last night at the B.P.O. Elks Home where Manager Cecil Grimes and his V.F.W. champions were honored and trophies were presented.

Phil Reuschel, second baseman of the V.F.W., was named as the winner of the Harry Dean Memorial Trophy, donated by Cumberland Lodge, Loyal Order of Moose. The selection is made by the umpires and the winner was announced by Kenneth Grimes, league umpire-in-chief. The trophy goes to the player who typifies the true spirit of the Rocking Chair League for this year.

The three other awards were earned by the tossers of Henry Hart Post V.F.W., regular season champions and playoff winners for the second straight season. William B. Orndorff, league president, presented the large bat, offered by the league, to the champions; James Stafford, representing the Queen City Brewing Company, presented the trophy donated by that firm to the team finishing in first place, and William V. Keegan presented the John Fradiska Memorial Trophy to the Vets for copping the playoff crown.

John M. "Jack" Robb acted as master of ceremonies and Rev. Bruce Price, pastor of Park Place Methodist Church pronounced the invocation.

Among those who made remarks were Mayor J. Edwin Keech, F. Leslie Robertson, exalted ruler of the Cumberland Elks Lodge and league president Orndorff. Guests included coaches of Fort Hill, Allegany, LaSalle, Beall and Ridgeley high schools.

L. M. Duncan, general manager of the Queen City Brewing Company, announced that his company will donate a memorial trophy in honor of David Kauffman next year. Mr. Kauffman was a former league official. At the time of his death Mr. Kauffman was assistant attorney general of Maryland.

Wall, Littler Co-Favorites

Kansas City Open Will Start Today

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Masters Champion Art Wall, Jr., and Gene Littler, 29-year-old California professional, who top the season's money list, reigned as favorites Thursday night in the $20,000 Kansas City Open starting Friday on the Blue Hills Club's par-72 layout.

Both riding hot streaks, Wall and Littler should experience little strain in conquering the tree-lined fairways and fast greens. However, the same could be said for virtually all of the more than 80 circuit tourists here to shoot for the $2,800 top prize. The field also includes about 40 amateur shotmakers from surrounding states.

A total of 271, seventeen under par, for the four-day event was predicted by host professional Duke Gibson as the figure good enough for the title. The competitive course record of 65, seven under standard, was set by Robert De Vincenzo, Argentina pro, in the 1954 open.

Recent heavy rains have made the 6,542-year playground lush with grass. With tee shots shortened by the slow fairways, the experts contend the South American's 18-hole mark and the tourney record of 268 by Wally Ulrich in 1954 were not in jeopardy.

96 Members Qualify For CCC Fall Golf Tournament

First Round Will Start On Saturday

"Bill" Catherman Seeks 12th Title In 39th Tourney

Ninety-six players have qualified for the men's fall golf championship tournament at the Cumberland Country Club and first round matches are scheduled to get under way tomorrow.

This is the 39th year for the tourney in which the winner of the title flight is recognized as club champion for the year.

Charles S. Catherman, Jr., is the defending champion. In fact, he has captured the club title 11 times and also won two spring handicap championships. Catherman is the only player who has won the tourney three years in a row. He achieved this feat twice, winning in 1937, 1938 and 1939 and repeating the stunt in 1956, 1957 and 1958.

Players have been divided into six flights of 16 each for match play. Summer rules will prevail in the championship flight.

Joe Wolfe is the tourney medalist with a 72.

The CCC men's golf team will conclude its season on Sunday, September 13, meeting Maplehurst Country Club of Frostburg over the local course. Local players desiring to participate in this match are asked to sign up at the golf shop.

Barton Evens Title Series

Tops Corriganville In Second Game, 7-6

Barton squared its Maryland-West Virginia Little League playoff series with Corriganville at one-all by winning yesterday in Barton by the score of 7-6.

Manager Paul Johnson's team was extended an extra inning to pull the game out of the fire when Paul Fairgrieve singled with the bases loaded to break a 6-6 deadlock. Larry Duckworth's walk and singles by Eddie Cuthbertson and Larry Suder preceded Fairgrieve's winning blow.

Joe McIntyre went the route for Barton, yielded seven hits and struck out nine. Terry Burkett, Corriganville twirler, gave up ten blows and fanned eight.

Jimmy Sweitzer, George DeHaven and Richard Mellott slammed homers for Corriganville. Rizer had two hits as did DeHaven.

Approximately 200 persons witnessed the game.

The "rubber" game of the league championship series will be staged Saturday at 5 p.m., at Corriganville which won the toss after yesterday's contest.

T. Burkett and G. DeHaven, J. McIntyre and L. Suder.

HR—E. Cuthbertson (Barton); J. Sweitzer, G. DeHaven and R. Mellott (Corriganville).

Lohr's Condition Remains Unchanged

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (UPI)—Charley Lohr, 19-year-old sophomore center on the Maryland football team, remained on the critical list of a local hospital Thursday night after suffering heat exhaustion following the Terps' afternoon session Wednesday.

Dr. William Holbroo, university physician, said Lohr is "responding to treatment remarkably."

Lohr, who was rushed to the hospital with a temperature of 108 shortly after Maryland's first scrimmage of the season, was immediately packed in ice and his temperature subsided Wednesday night.

Terps Preparing For Mountaineers

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP)—More offensive action and drill on West Virginia formations dominated practice held by University of Maryland football squads Thursday.

West Virginia is the Terps' first opponent, Sept. 19.

Springfield Plays Capon Bridge For Title On Sunday

Capon Bridge and the Springfield Rockets will clash Sunday at 2 p.m., E.S.T., on the Romney High School Field for the championship of the Hampshire County Baseball League.

Last Sunday Capon Bridge tied the Rockets for first place at 11-3 by defeating Timber Ridge 11-10.

The league has decided there will be no Shaughnessy playoff because of the fact that the teams will be greatly weakened as a result of players returning to colleges and high schools. This is the first year for the eight club circuit.

Harold "Butch" Carl or Tom Frye will pitch for Springfield and John McCauley will be on the firing line for Capon Bridge in Sunday's championship battle.

International Has Entry From Mexico

LAUREL, Md. (AP) — Mrs. Maria Ugarte de Bava's Lea-B will arrive here Oct. 1 to complete training for the Washington D.C. International, Laurel track officials announced today.

The 3-year-old filly became the third foreign entry in the $100,000 turf race to be run Nov. 11 at a mile and a half. New Zealand's Up and Coming and England's Nagami were named earlier.

Lea-B., winner of four races this season and a second-place finisher in her only other five starts in Mexico, was voted horse of the year by turf writers there. She is the only 3-year-old filly to win the honor since it originated 16 years ago.

Reds Will Have Brother Battery

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Cincinnati Redlegs will have a brother battery beginning Friday.

General Manager Gabe Paul Thursday announced the purchase of Jim Bailey, 24, lefthander, from Nashville of the Southern Association. He is a younger brother of Ed Bailey, first string catcher for the Reds.

Jim Bailey won 10 games and lost 6 this year. He was defeated the first four times he pitched, then went on to win 10 of the next 12 games.

Steelers Play Colts Tonight

Orange Bowl Scene Of Exhibition Game

MIAMI, Fla. (UPI)—The Baltimore Colts, National Football League champions, make their first appearance in Florida Friday night when they meet the Pittsburgh Steelers in the Orange Bowl.

The Colts, boasting pre-season victories over the College All-Stars, New York Giants and Washington Redskins, will try to extend their streak against a team that usually gives them trouble.

Led by Ernie Stautner on the line and Jack Butler in the secondary, the Pittsburgh defense shackled the Baltimore attack two years ago and won 19-13. It was Pittsburgh's second triumph in as many meetings with the Colts. Coach Buddy Parker's Steelers also edged the Colts in an exhibition last summer, 13-10.

The Steelers have lost to the Chicago Cardinals and Chicago Bears since opening their 1959 pre-season program by defeating the Cleveland Browns.

Cuban Sensation Fights Matthews

ATLANTIC CITY (AP) — Rolando (Chico) Morales, 19-year-old Cuban sensation, makes his television debut here Friday night in a 10-round lightweight fight against Len Matthews of Philadelphia.

The bout in Convention Hall will be televised and broadcast nationally by NBC, starting at 9 p.m. (EST).

The Cuban teenager is a windmill workman who never slows down.

This style of attack, backed up by real polish, has earned the Cuban a streak of 16 straight victories, including four this year. In his last bout, he scored a seven-round knockout over Cesar Orta June 15 in Caracas.

Mt. Savage's Bobby Uhl Takes Pony Loop Batting Title

Frostburg's Eisel Poled 11 Home Runs

Uhl's Average .573; Jim Diehl Was Top Pitcher With 8-0

Bobby Uhl of Mt. Savage pounded the ball at a .573 clip to win the batting championship of the Bi-State Pony Baseball League for the 1959 season.

Uhl collected 43 hits in 75 official at bats and among his blows were seven home runs and a like number of two-baggers.

John Lowery, Ellerslie, was runner-up with an average of .569 and was followed by Arnold Zaks, LaVale, .538; Allan Eisel of the Frostburg Little Moes, league champions, with .530 and Bill Kelly, LaVale, with an even .500.

Eisel Hits 11 Homers

Eisel was the league's home run king with eleven round-trippers, one less than the record 12 set last year by Dave Kerch, also of Frostburg. Eisel, incidentally, hit four more homers in the playoffs and three came in one game. Allan also set the pace in triples with six while Joe Nolan, Mt. Savage, rapped ten two-baggers to lead in that department.

The league's No. 1 pitcher was Jim Diehl, of Frostburg, with an 8-0 record. He also was the strikeout king with 84 victims in 50 innings. Including the playoffs, the Little Moes' ace was 10-0 and his whiffings totaled 100 in 63 innings.

Diehls Win 15 Games

Jim's younger brother Bill, who also figured prominently in Frostburg winning the pennant and playoffs, had a 7-1 record and fanned 70 in 48 innings during the regular campaign. Counting the playoffs his overall mark was 9-1 and he struck out 91 in 62 innings.

Ralph Wilson, Mt. Savage, was 4-0 for the season; Marvin "Lefty" Miller, Lonaconing, won five and lost two; Don Engle, Mt. Savage, finished up with a 6-3 mark and Wayne Howell, Ellerslie, notched six victories against four defeats.

Jordan Gets Offer

World Series Opens Sept. 30, American Winner Plays Host

Delay Will Occur If Races End In Tie, Prices Unchanged

CHICAGO (UPI) — The 1959 World Series will start Wednesday, Sept. 30, in the park of the American League winner. Tickets will be priced from $10 to $2.

Series details were ironed out at a meeting between Commissioner Ford Frick, top league officials and representatives of clubs still in the pennant races.

Frick said each club could announce when it will begin printing tickets, but seven teams were given permission to order printing plates for tickets.

Will Allow Day Off

If the series involves either Los Angeles or San Francisco a day off will be allowed for travel after the first two games. Three games will be played in the National League park and another day will be set aside for travel if a sixth or seventh game is required.

Ticket prices will be the same as last year, Frick said, $10 for a box seat, $7 for a reserved grandstand seat, $4 for standing room and $2 for the bleachers.

If a playoff is required to decide either race, the series will be delayed, Frick said. Both leagues now have best two-of-three game playoffs.

Two New Developments

Two new twists in series tickets selling were announced at the meeting.

A Chicago White Sox spokesman said his club had received permission to sell series tickets in blocks of two games, or by the individual game, and a representative of the Los Angeles Dodgers said a standing room ducat in huge Memorial Stadium would entitle the buyer to a seat.

Ed Short, White Sox press relations director, said the club directors and President Bill Veeck had decided not to sell tickets in the customary blocks of four games.

"We believe we can reach more people and satisfy more fans by selling tickets per game or in blocks of two," Short said.

Law, McCovey Named Players Of Month

CINCINNATI (AP)—Willie McCovey, the San Francisco Giants' sensational rookie, and veteran pitcher Vernon Law of the Pittsburgh Pirates Thursday were named co-winners of the National League's player - of - the - month award for August.

They each received 8½ votes from the 40-man committee of writers and broadcasters who make the selections.

Savage River Could Become Water Supply

Rate Hike Aired At Meeting Here

Expanding communities and industries in the Cumberland area may have to look to the proposed second Savage River Dam for future water supplies, city officials said last night.

The source was mentioned by City Attorney William R. Carscaden at a meeting with the Wiley Ford Water Company, Inc., whose officials asked if the City of Cumberland were considering a new supply for its water customers.

Mr. Carscaden said one possibility is a third Evitts Creek dam, but that city officials have been advised against such construction, since there is "only so much water in the watershed."

Could Feed Towns, Industries

He suggested that if the proposed second dam is built, the present dam could be a source of water for towns and industries along the North Branch of the Potomac.

Such a water line, he said, would make a 20-mile area along the river available to industry, with water and railroad facilities on hand.

He pointed out that such a program would be a county or area and not a city program.

For the present, it was pointed out, the aim must be to make the best of the city's water storage, treatment and transmission facilities for the benefit of all who depend upon Cumberland for water.

And this, Mr. Carscaden said, is the reason behind the increased water rates which have been adopted for most classes of water users.

Rate Is High

The city attorney and Water Commissioner G. Ray Light met last night in City Hall with H. A. Henderson, general manager; F. R. Monahan, secretary, and R. C. Simpson, treasurer of the water company.

The Wiley Ford firm, officials said, charges the highest water rates in the state, and its schedule begins with $3 a month for the first 1,000 gallons, $1 a thousand for the next 2,000 gallons, and then 80 cents a thousand.

Talented Musicians Entertain Kiwanians

A&P And Union May Continue Contract Talks

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — The Amalgamated Food Workers Union indicated Thursday it may continue negotiations beyond Saturday midnight's contract expiration deadline provided the talks don't become deadlocked.

Members of the union's Local 590 who work in 123 A&P stores in the tri-state district already have authorized strike action. However, a union spokesman said this does not necessarily mean a strike is certain.

Similar strike authorization was granted to local leaders in the Altoona, Pa., and Cleveland, Ohio, districts where contracts have expired, but no walkouts occurred as contract talks continued.

On Wednesday night, members of Local 590 rejected management's offer of a two-year agreement providing a 7½ cents hourly wage increase the first year and a five-cent boost the second. The vote was 1,035-193.

Local 590 covers only the meat departments at the local A&P stores, while other employes at the stores are governed by Local 886, Retail Clerks Union. A spokesman for the local stores said Local 590 here has been without a contract since July 12.

Two A&P stores in Cumberland, Md., come under the Altoona district.

Court Kills Glass Plant NLRB Order

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—A National Labor Relations Board policy permitting a craft union to create an independent bargaining unit in a firm that has plant-wide bargaining was condemned as discriminatory here Thursday.

The discriminatory tag was hung on the NLRB policy by the U.S. 4th Circuit Court of Appeals in a suit involving two unions at the Cumberland, Md., plant of Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co.

The United Glass and Ceramic Workers of North America (AFL-CIO) claimed it had exclusive bargaining rights in the plant.

The NLRB, however, sanctioned an election in which the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers won the right to bargain for a small group of electrical workers. The glass workers union at the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co. protested.

The glass workers claimed the NLRB exceeded its authority when it permitted the electrical workers to carve out a craft union in a plant represented by another union.

Judge Morris A. Soper, speaking for the circuit court, agreed with the glass workers. He set aside an NLRB order naming the electrical workers union as a bargaining unit in the Cumberland plant.

Mill Employe Files $75,000 Suit In Court

An employe of the Luke mill of West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company has filed a $75,000 damage suit in Allegany County Circuit Court against Tidewater-Hazelwood, contractors, for injuries sustained when he was hit by a truck owned by the defendants.

Arthur A. Umstot, 507 Maryland Avenue, Westernport, through his attorney, Edward J. Ryan, claims he was hit by the truck while he was walking near the mill property line just off Cromwell Street in Luke.

The accident, according to the declaration, occurred on the afternoon of October 29, 1957 while the plaintiff was at work.

While walking from one side of the property to the other, Mr. Umstot says, he was hit by the truck, was hurled about 25 feet, and suffered severe and painful injuries.

He claims he was required to undergo surgery and had hospital and medical expenses and was unable to work from the day of the accident until April 6, 1959.

The plaintiff claims he lost about $12,000 in wages and about $1,400 from April 6, 1959 to September 1 that year.

He filed a claim with the Workmen's Compensation Commission of Maryland and West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company paid a considerable amount of compensation to the plaintiff, in addition to paying hospital, medical and surgical expenses incurred by Umstot.

Insurance Firm Files Odd Suit

An unusual $2,500 damage suit in which a Frostburg man is accused of having violated the terms of a subrogation agreement has been filed in Allegany County Circuit Court.

The action was brought by the Great Falls Insurance Company, 2519 North Charles Street, Baltimore, against George Pappas, East Main Street, Frostburg.

The declaration, filed for the insurance company by Attorneys William C. Walsh and William Walsh, states that on or about June 3, 1954, the company issued a $50 deductible automobile insurance policy to Mr. Pappas. About May 13, 1955, Mr. Pappas was involved in an accident on Braddock Road near the westerly city limits of Cumberland. The othe car, driven by Mrs. Bernice M. Lancaster, as agent for her husband, Thomas V. Lancaster, was responsible for the accident, the suit says.

About July 15, 1955, the insurance company paid $1,970 to Mr. Pappas for his damages as a result of the accident. The company was able to salvage a small amount from the wrecked Pappas car, which reduced its net loss to $1,681. Subsequently, the insurance company and Mr. Pappas signed a subrogation agreement which gave the company the right to collect from the Lancasters.

The company then asserts that Mr. Pappas violated the terms of the subrogation agreement about August 12, 1955, when he executed a general release to the Lancasters. The effect of this action was to bar the company from collecting from the Lancasters. Finally, the company states that because Mr. Pappas violated terms of the subrogation agreement, it can bring action to collect from the Frostburg man.

Car Ruined By Fire

The interior of a 1959 model country sedan owned by Rev. H. M. Richardson, rector of Emmanuel Episcopal Church, was destroyed by fire yesterday evening while it was parked on the East Side ball diamond on Central Avenue.

Firemen from East Side station received a call at 7:24 p. m. and extinguished the blaze with 200 gallons of water from the booster pump and tank.

The cause of the fire was undetermined, according to firemen, who said Rev. Mr. Richardson had accompanied a ball team to the park. The players noticed thick black smoke emitting from the sedan, which suddenly burst into flames.

Firemen radioed police headquarters for assistance in directing traffic. Officer Elmer Shank was sent to the scene.

Legion Renews Drive For VA Direct Loans

'Discrimination' Cited By Post 13

Fort Cumberland Post 13, American Legion, has asked the Veterans Administration to conduct a survey leading to the qualification of the City of Cumberland for direct VA home loans.

Members of the post recently adopted a resolution urging the Veterans Administration to consider qualifying the city as an area where veterans of World War II and the Korean War may obtain direct home loan financing.

The same request was made by the post on two previous occasions and resulted in a review which failed to qualify the city for the direct loans.

Requests Survey

The Legion said it was requesting the VA to conduct another eligibility survey due to the continued disinclination of local financing institutions to engage in veterans' home loans, even though the interest rate has been increased to 5¼ per cent.

Qualification, the post said, will boost the economy of the city in addition to enabling veterans to take advantage of the veterans' housing program which expires for World War II veterans next July and for Korean War veterans in 1965.

Copies of the resolution have been sent to VA officials and area legislators have been asked to urge the VA to reconsider.

Hagerstown Included

The Veterans Administration, in turning down a previous request, said it was the intention of Congress to confine the direct loan program to veterans in rural areas and towns of less than 30,000.

The post said it feels the VA ruling amounts to discrimination, since Hagerstown, which had a population of 36,260 in the 1950 census, was qualified for direct loans. (Cumberland's 1950 population was 37,679.)

Direct VA loans are made in 19 counties of Maryland, including Allegany County, with the exception of Cumberland.

Chief Parker To Speak At Fire School

Fire Chief Virgil A. Parker will give a talk on "Fire Insurance and Estimating Fire Losses" this morning during the 26th annual Short Course for Firemen which opened Tuesday at the University of Maryland, College Park.

He will point out that the Cumberland Fire Department estimates fire damage as being minor, major or total, and does not estimate losses in dollars and cents.

Quite a few fire companies, he said, do estimate losses in dollars and cents. Locally, said Chief Parker, the estimate of fire losses is left up to insurance company adjusters, who he feels are more qualified.

In the event of a suspected arson case, the local fire department turns in a report to the insurance company, the chief said.

Although Chief Parker has attended training courses in the past, this is the first time he has been asked to give a lecture at the sessions.

Motel Planned At Toll House On Route 40

A local man has been issued a building permit by the Allegany County Assessing Department to construct eight motel units along U.S. Route 40 west of Cumberland.

Neale Nesbit, 717 Gephart Drive, said the project is expected to cost about $10,000 and the units will be located on two acres of land in the rear of the Toll Gate House on Route 40.

A service station was formerly operated on the site of the motel units which will be of brick and will measure 22 feet by 110 feet.

He said the foundation will be of concrete block and the units will have a built-up roof. Mr. Nesbit said the units are expected to be completed in February next year. The land was assessed to The Rosemont Company.

Richard N. Davis of Potomac Park was issued a permit to build a five-room frame dwelling with bath at a cost of about $8,000. It will have a concrete block foundation and asphalt shingle roof.

C&P Allots $130,000 For Area Project

The total cost of the area project will be $287,000. Of this amount, $120,000 will be spent for cable and $167,000 will be allotted for buildings and terminal and carrier equipment.

The new work will expand the long distance network and provide protection from storm damage.

Ike, De Gaulle End Talks

Bill Passed 243-162, Sent To Senate

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Thursday approved a penny a gallon increase in federal gasoline taxes to keep construction of the 41,000-mile interstate highway network from bogging down.

The bill, passed on a 243 - 162 roll call vote, was sent to the Senate where opposition is considered stronger than in the House. Some senators were plugging highway financing schemes which did not involve any tax hike.

The House bill would raise the federal tax on gasoline from the present three cents to four cents a gallon for 22 months. This would cost highway users nearly a billion dollars over that period, with the money going into the special fund that finances road construction.

The legislation also provides that after the penny increase expires, certain automotive excise taxes, which now go into the general treasury fund, would be transferred to the special highway fund. The overall bill carries a price tag of $3,500,000,000.

The bill was put before the House on a take-it-or-leave-it basis. Members were barred from offering amendments to reduce the amount of the tax increase. No such limitation will be in effect in the Senate and a fight is expected over proposals to cut the tax hike.

President Eisenhower had asked that the gasoline tax be raised to 4½ cents to block a threatened cutoff in highway building. But he has called the pending measure a step in the right direction although he opposes dipping into general treasury funds for highways.

Voting for the bill on final passage were 138 Democrats and 105 Republicans. Opposed were 127 Democrats and 35 Republicans.

House backers of the tax increase told their colleagues they disliked the idea of raising the levy but that the alternative was to permit a drastic reduction in the highway program.

House Groups Approve Bond Interest Hike

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Democrat leaders rushed a bill to permit higher interest rates on government savings bonds through two committees Thursday and headed it toward almost certain House passage Friday.

The measure, introduced only Wednesday, would allow President Eisenhower to raise interest rates on Series E and H savings bonds now held by 40 million Americans. It also would permit higher rates on such bonds bought in the future.

The procedure under which the bill will be considered will bar amendments by rank - and - file members. But it will give Republicans a last-gasp chance to try to substitute the President's broader proposal to hike interest on long-term marketable bonds as well.

The House Ways & Means Committee first approved the bill by voice vote after voting 14-11 to reject the President's plan.

Chairman Wilbur D. Mills (D-Ark.) promptly went before the House Rules Committee, which controls the flow of legislation to the floor, and won permission to bring up the bill Friday.

The Rules Committee, like the Ways & Means group, refused to substitute the President's plan for the more limited proposal worked out by Democratic leaders.

But it agreed to give the full House a chance to vote on the issue. This will come at the end of debate on the bill when GOP leaders will be free to offer a motion to return the bill to the Ways & Means Committee with instructions to substitute the Eisenhower plan.

One Killed, 10 Hurt In Denver Gas Blast

The dead man was Carl W. Riley, about 60. His body was found in the rubble of a liquor store by firemen. All of the casualties were residents of Denver.

Officials said the blast apparently was caused by leaking gas. A crew of men in the area told reporters they had been repairing a gas main.

Bloody Calcutta Riots Continue; Army Called In

CALCUTTA, India (AP)—Communist-led mobs surged throughout the riot-ridden, strike-bound Calcutta area Thursday, attacking police stations and patrol squads with guns, bombs and knives.

Ten or more persons were killed and at least 37 wounded.

It was the fourth straight day of open battle against the West Bengal state government. Prime Minister Nehru's Indian federal government also is being drawn into the fight.

Communists declare they are fighting for proper distribution of food and against high prices.

After a day of shifting but apparently systematic attack by the mobs, the Indian army had to be called upon to restore and keep order Thursday night in the sprawling industrial slums of Howrah, across the Hooghly River from Calcutta.

Other Indian troops were held ready to take over completely if the Bengal state police fail to suppress the rioting.

For the first time in this week's fighting, major battles developed at police installations on both sides of the Hooghly.

The Howrah police headquarters and a dozen substations were attacked by the howling thousands and in Calcutta proper police were at times held at bay.

A policeman injured by a bomb explosion was surrounded by a mob of about 1,000 and his throat cut, police reported.

Twenty-five policemen were seriously injured in Howrah.

Police opened fire on at least 14 occasions in Calcutta.

Five policemen were injured. Police arrested 200 persons. After the army was called in to take over Howrah only sporadic trouble was reported.

350 Uninjured As Wind Blows Roof Off School

MILLSAP, Tex. (AP)—A severe windstorm tore the roof off the high school here Thursday. The estimated 350 pupils and teachers escaped injury.

P.T. Dunning, school superintendent, said many pupils were in the cafeteria when the wind hit about 11 a.m.

"When the wind started blowing out windows in the cafeteria, we sent all the students to the storage room for protection," Dunning said.

Entire 75,000 Shots Of Stolen Vaccine Found

MONTREAL (AP) —Provincial police announced Thursday they have recovered the entire $50,000 lot of Salk vaccine stolen from a Montreal laboratory by masked gunmen Monday.

Director Hilaire Beauregard of the Quebec provincial police said the vaccine—75,000 shots in all—had been found in an apartment house in East Montreal.

He reported the vaccine appeared in good condition and said "I think doctors will find it has not deteriorated."

He declined to go into details of the discovery.

Four gunmen forced their way into a University of Montreal laboratory early Monday and carried off the antipolio vaccine.

Two hundred vials of vaccine found in a suburban drugstore were seized by police Tuesday. They said it bore the same serial number as part of the stolen shipment.

A 26-year old employe of a provincial health center, believed to have sold the vaccine to the drugstore proprietor was arrested near the drugstore Tuesday.

Police announced Wednesday night they were holding the man for further questioning.

Meat Packers Call Strike At Swift, Wilson Plants

CHICAGO (AP) — Two meat-packing unions Thursday called a strike of more than 21,000 workers at Swift & Co. and Wilson & Co. plants throughout the country for midnight Thursday.

In a surprise strike call, the unions — Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen and the United Packinghouse Workers of America — first announced a walkout of 16,000 Swift workers in 35 cities.

Later, the UPWA announced it was ordering 5,500 Wilson workers in nine cities to strike.

The announcement regarding Swift came shortly after a joint bargaining session held under the auspices of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service which was adjourned to Sept. 8.

The Wilson announcement came after a similar meeting between representatives of the UPWA and the giant meat packing firm.

Like Swift, Wilson has asked for a recess in negotiations.

The statement of union leaders said "Swift officials remained unyielding in their refusal to meet the minimum contract terms already agreed upon by our unions in negotiatoons with firms representing the overwhelming proportion of workers in the meat packing industry."

The statement accused Swift of demanding wage cuts up to 31½ cents an hour for thousands and for reduced health benefits for every worker in Swift employ.

Compromise Labor Reform Bill Passed 95-2 By Senate

Measure Sent To House For Action Today

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Thursday night passed a compromise bill aimed at ending racketeering in labor unions.

The vote was 95-2.

The compromise was sent to the House which plans to act on it Friday. President Eisenhower is considered certain to sign the bill — the first major labor legislation in 12 years.

In its final draft, the compromise came fairly close to the stringent form in which the original bill passed the House.

Its main provisions seek to safeguard the rights of union members and protect union treasuries from misuse by unscrupulous labor leaders.

The bill also applies bans against such labor practices as secondary boycotts and restricts organizational picketing, among other things.

Morse Speaks 4½ Hours

It took all day and into the evening for the Senate finally to approve the compromise.

Sen. Wayne Morse (D - Ore) spoke for 4 hours and 35 minutes urging its rejection. But other senators praised the measure, although some said they considered it went too far and others said it didn't go far enough.

Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass) said he had no apologies for the compromise. He said, too, he believed every senator could vote for it in good conscience.

Sen. John L. McClellan (D-Ark), chairman of the Senate rackets committee, said enactment of the bill would be "a long step towards the remedial legislation needed in labor-management relations."

It was the disclosures of the rackets committee — particularly concerning James R. Hoffa's Teamsters Union—that built much of the fire for new labor control measures.

Only Bill Possible—Kennedy

Kennedy said the measure went further in some areas than he considered desirable or necessary. But, he asserted: "I will say frankly it is the only bill it is possible to obtain in all the circumstances."

Kennedy was chairman of the Senate-House conference committee which whipped the compromise anticorruption measure into shape late Wednesday after long bargaining.

The bill would legalize picketing by construction unions at a job involving several subcontractors, even though this meant a secondary boycott against a neutral employer not involved in dispute.

Kennedy said he had been assured by Democratic and Republican leaders of the House and Senate this would get consideration next year.

Sen. Thomas H. Kuchel of California, assistant Republican Senate leader, cosponsored this bill with Kennedy.

Kuchel noted to a newsmen that President Eisenhower had recommended such a provision in his labor message to Congress in January.

Bomb In Sack Kills Woman

Was her death Wednesday night —by a bomb placed in her front yard—connected with the unsolved poisonings of her niece and the niece's husband?

There is a strong possibility it was a vengeance slaying by an embittered acquaintance, Detective Sgt. Austin Seth said Thursday. Information from relatives has started a search for a man known to Mrs. Kongsle, he said.

Mrs. Kongsle was killed as she picked up a brown paper sack on her front walk Wednesday night. It contained the bomb. A leg and hand were blown off.

Tests show the explosive was some sort of nitrate, probably liquid. Rounded bits of glass, probably from a bottle, were found embedded in her flesh.

Blast Rips Denver Business Area

This photograph of an explosion that ripped a Denver business district corner at noon yesterday was snapped about five mintues after the blast by Keith Shostrom, a government employe whose office is across the street. City workers are shown rushing to the scene following the explosion, believed to have been caused by an accumulation of gas. One man was killed and at least 10 persons injured.

Vetoed Public Works Bill Cut By House Unit

brief protest, a House Appropriations subcommittee decided Thursday to take out of the public works bill the 67 projects that had moved President Eisenhower to veto it.

This brought the total down to $1,164,000,000, and the full Appropriations Committee is expected to send the scaled-down bill to the House floor early next week.

For a time Thursday there was talk of punishing those House members who helped uphold Eisenhower's veto. The original bill failed of passage over the veto by only one vote in the House Wednesday.

It is called "pork barrel" legislation because it proposes to distribute favorite back - home projects—most of them river and harbor or flood control works — among the congressmen's districts.

Rep. Clarence Cannon (D-Mo), chairman of the Appropriations Committee, said his group will go to work on a new bill. It voted 23-19 for a subcommittee to do the work.

A top Democrat explained to a newsman: "We want to take a close look at some of these projects."

"Many of them are in districts represented by members who voted to uphold the veto for economy reasons. We may decide to give them some real economy right in their own backyards," he said.

This could be done by reducing or eliminating funds for selected projects.

Eisenhower vetoed the $1,216,000,000 bill because, he said, it contained 67 projects which were not in the administration's budget. They were in 32 states, and called for spending $51,510,600 at the start and $804,526,000 eventually.

AF Flies Out Bodies Of Alaska Crash Dead

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — The Air Force prepared Thursday to bring out the bodies of six young magazine salesgirls, their crew chief and a pilot who died in a central Alaska plane crash Tuesday night.

Rescuers reported from the scene the bodies were nearly unrecognizable. The chartered plane crashed, exploded and burned near McGrath, about 250 miles northwest of here.

The magazine-selling crew was homeward bound to Seattle after completing an aerial swing through Alaska that carried the girls and their supervisor as far as the arctic village of Kotzebue on the Bering Sea.

Laos Town Awaits All-Out Red Attack

SAM NEUA, Laos (AP)—Communist rebels were reported massing 27 miles north of Sam Neua Thursday for an all-out attack on this royal army headquarters for northern Laos. The commanding general predicted an assault will come within 10 days.

"It's not pretty," he said in a terse assessment of the situation.

The town of 2,500 prepared for a last-ditch defense. Army officers issued submachine guns and ammunition to government workers and school teachers. A handful of paratroopers was moved into thin outlying defenses.

The commander of northern military headquarters, Brig. Gen. Amkha Soukhaving, said Communist advance units were probing his advance lines only 18 miles away.

"They will attack within 10 days at the most," he warned.

He said Laos rebels and regulars from Communist North Viet Nam were gathering in the jungle-covered mountains 27 miles north of Sam Neua. There are 4,500 Red supporters concentrated in the area between the town and the North Viet Nam border, 40 miles to the northeast, he added.

Amkha said he had only one battalion of infantry in Sam Neua but another battalion is expected soon. A Laos battalion ranges from 400 to 800 men.

"We have six more battalions elsewhere in the province," Amkha said, "but I cannot get them here. The world knows our problem. Why don't they send us helicopters and planes which could bring troops in and take out wounded"

Despite the military commander's gloomy assessment, the town of Sam Neua was sleepily quiet. Residents strolled in the streets, shopped and lounged in the shade, watching the troops moving north. Even those issued guns showed no excitement.

Nosavan talked to reporters in Vietiane, the administrative capital 200 miles south of Sam Neua.

The Laotian rebels belong to the Communist Pathet Lao movement, that controlled the northern provinces of Sam Neua and Phong Saly until two years ago.

Royal troops are being shoved back on a 35-mile front by the insurgents who are bolstered by Vietnamese heavy artillery, Nosavau said.

Eight Governors Of 'Steel States' Appeal To Ike

NEW YORK (UPI) — Eight "steel state" governors asked President Eisenhower Thursday to meet with them "at the earliest possible moment" to discuss the eight-week-old steel walkout.

Their telegraphed plea to Eisenhower came just before David J. McDonald, president of the United Steelworkers, reported that there was no progress in the contract negotiations with management. He offered no hope of an early settlement.

The governors told Eisenhower that "the damaging effect of the steel stoppage on our respectibe states is already critical and growing more so every day."

Refrigerator, TV Moved To Castle For Ike's Visit

TURNBERRY, Scotland (AP)—For President Eisenhower's stay at Culzean Castle his hosts have moved in an American refrigerator, a British TV set and a Scottish lord.

He will drive to Culzean—pronounced Cullane — Castle from nearby Prestwick Airport.

Scotland long ago gave Eisenhower a 16-room apartment on the third floor of the castle as a token of its appreciation for his command of Western Allied forces in World War II. The spacious and well-furnished apartment is his for life.

The castle and its surroundings were the scene of swarming activity Thursday in the preparation for the President's arrival.

The 33 - year - old Marquess of Ailsa moved in from his own nearby castle, called Casillis. He gave Culzean to the National Trust, an agency that preserves and administers national monuments and beauty spots.

The refrigerator was borrowed from the U.S. Air Force.

The TV set was rented from a Scottish electrician.

The marquess thought it would be a nice gesture to move into the castle while Eisenhower is here He plans to welcome the President at the gates.

The blue-eyed, kilt-wearing marquess and the marchioness will live on the ground floor while Eisenhower will stay on the third.

Eisenhower is due at Prestwick at 10:30 a.m. His drive along the coast will take him through several vacation resorts and the fishing village of Dunure.

New Algeria Policy Given Green Light

Agree Summit Talks Should Be Held Only If Chance Of Results

PARIS (AP)—Presidents Eisenhower and De Gaulle Thursday night wound up two days of "very friendly" talks ranging from summit conference possibilities to the Algerian rebellion.

A communique on meeting of the American and French leaders was issued after President Eisenhower told his Western Allies peace is assured if the West remains firm in principle, flexible in tactics and patriotically devoted to the North Atlantic alliance.

"Then there will be no war," Eisenhower said.

Although the communique said only that North Africa was discussed by the leaders, White House press secretary James Hagerty later disclosed they had taken up a new policy toward Algeria. Hagerty said De Gaulle is to disclose the policy after Eisenhower leaves France Friday for a Scottish holiday.

Hagerty said "it would be inappropriate for us to make any comment until De Gaulle has made his statement."

U.S. Statement Planned

Asked if the United States would have something to say after De Gaulle makes his public disclosure, Hagerty replied, "Yes."

Eisenhower and De Gaullle agreed that a summit conference would be useful in principle, but said one should be held "only when there is some possibility of definite accomplishment."

Their communique said they were in complete agreement on the question of Berlin.

It also said they reaffirmed the importance they attach to the resumption of negotiations on general and controlled disarmament and to the problem of assistance to underdeveloped areas.

Hagerty said De Gaulle and Eisenhower took up the French President's desire for closer coordination of Western policy by the United States, Britain and France.

"They had a general discussion of how to keep in touch," Hagerty said. "This is to be informal."

As for their accord on Berlin, Hagerty said:

"I think the position of both our countries, and indeed the free world, is clear. The integrity of Berlin must be preserved. Our right of entry must be maintained."

Invitation Still Stands

Asked if Eisenhower had invited De Gaulle to the United States, Hagerty said the French leader had been given an invitation the day he took office and it still stands. He said Eisenhower would be delighted to see De Gaulle in the United States but that he understood De Gaulle's schedule precludes any visit soon.

Eisenhower's words on assuring peace were spoken before the 15-nation NATO Council in a surprise visit sandwiched between talks with De Gaulle and other Western leaders.

"NATO is a matter of spirit, of determination to work as partners

Khrush To Land At Andrews

WASHINGTON (AP) — Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev will land at Andrews Air Force Base in Maryland instead of Washington National Airport when he arrives Sept. 15.

These are the present plans, because the heavy TU114 Russian jet can not land as safely at Washington airport as it can at the larger Andrews runway.

Khrushchev's arrival at Andrews would mean a longer ride for President Eisenhower in his announced plan of greeting the Kremlin leader at the airport. Andrews is about 15 miles from the White House, compared with about 3 miles for the National Airport where foreign dignitaries usually arrive.

The schedule calls for a ceremonial profession through the capital city after Khrushchev's big plane gets in at 10 a.m. Sept. 15.

Washington police have charted a procession route leading from Andrews, to 14th Street., which is usually used for processions coming in from National Airport on the Virginia side of the Potomac River.

After reaching 14th Street., the Khrushchev party is slated to proceed to Blair House—the President's guest house across Pennsylvania Avenue from the White House.

15 Argentine Generals Face Arrest In Revolt

Garrisons Defy War Secretary

BUENOS AIRES (UPI)—Fifteen top officers involved in a "generals rebellion" in the Argentine army were ordered arrested Thursday.

One of the generals was reported to have eluded capture and gone to Cordoba to take command of the dissident garrison there. The officers Wednesday refused to accept the ouster of Gen. Carlos S. Toranzo as commander of the army.

The missing officer was identified as Gen. Rosendo Fraga. He and the other dissident generals were ordered tried by court martial.

Toranzo was fired Wednesday by Secretary of War Gen. Elbio C. Anaya following reports the commander planned to dismiss a number of subordinates without consulting the secretary of war.

Military garrisons throughout the country, led by the Cordoba garrison, refused to accept the ouster and informed Anaya they would accept orders only from Toranzo.

Gen. Pedro S. Castineiras was slated to be sworn in to replace Toranzo.

The crisis came only two months after a similar generals rebellion in which Gen. Hector Solanas Pacheco was ousted as secretary of war and replaced by Anaya. In that crisis, the Cordoba garrison also played an important part.

The crisis apparently was a new outbreak of friction between the army men who overthrew dictator Juan D. Peron in 1955 and a Catholic nationalist faction in the army called the "Green Dragon Lodge," which sympathized with Peronist policies.

The faction opposing the Green Dragon Lodge is composed of anti-Peronistas such as Toranzo, known as "Gorillas," who fear a return of Peronista influence. This faction points to the two million Peronista votes President Arturo Frondizi got in last year's election.

Air Force Halts Search For Crew Of 'Ghost Plane'

WIESBADEN, Germany (AP)—The silence of the North African desert has settled again over one of the mysteries of World War II. The U.S. Air Force Thursday called off a search for the remains of the nine crewmen of a "ghost bomber" that came down in the Libyan wastes 16 years ago.

The bomber, a B24 Liberator named "Lady Be Good," was found by a team of geologists last spring about 440 miles southeast of the Libyan port city of Bangasi. The plane was virtually intact and apparently had made a pilotless belly-landing on its return from a bombing raid on Naples, Italy, in the moonless night of April 4, 1943.

The log book, instruments and other equipment were untouched. Water jugs and coffee flasks were still full. The crew had bailed out over the desert without any means of survival. But why? And how did the men die?

To answer these questions, Air Force-directed search teams covered thousands of square miles on ground and by air in the lifeless area of sand. All they found were a trail of parachute markers, the mummified body of a nomad who presumably died more than half a century ago, and the bones of a few camels.

Tawes Praises Maryland Fire Control Record

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP)—Gov. J. Millard Tawes, an old fireman, praised Maryland's outstanding record Thursday in fire prevention but said it should be better.

Tawes reminded volunteer firemen here for the University of Maryland's annual short course in fire fighting and prevention that 92 persons lost their lives in Maryland last year "in fires that could have been, and should have been, prevented."

In addition, he said, the insured property loss from fires in the state came to $10,958,000.

The state's record in fire control was still good enough for insurance companies to reduce premiums on a statewide across-the-board basis by 7 per cent and on residential property by 25 per cent effective June 1.

Tawes said the insurance commissioner advises him Maryland citizens will save $1,750,000 annually on their fire insurance premiums as a result. The achievement, he said, is something in which Maryland and all of its fire fighters can take pride.

"Our record is good . . . but it is not good enough," Tawes added. "And as governor, I shall not be satisfied with the record until improvements are made."

Segregationist Slain; Officers Quiz Daughter

MILFORD, Del. (AP) — The 19-year-old daughter of a Delaware segregationist was questioned Thursday after the fatal shooting of her father during an argument at their home.

State Police at Georgetown said Nelson W. Abbott, active in the National Assn. for the Advancement of White people, was shot in the chest with a 25 caliber revolver. The shooting followed an all-night argument involving the man, his wife and daughter, police reported.

The daughter, Kathleen, was being questioned.

Abbott was a leader in the organization formed to oppose integration at Milford High School in 1954 and was an associate of Bryant Bowles, leader of the NAAWP.

Baltimore Tot Is Smothered By Plastic Bag

BALTIMORE (AP)—A 9-month-old infant girl smothered to death in a plastic bag Thursday at her Baltimore home.

Police called to the house found Remus Burnett, 22-year-old Negro, holding his daughter, Bernadette, in his arms, ready to rush her to the hospital. Attempts to revive her failed and she was pronounced dead at Franklin Square Hospital.

The father said he and his wife were downstairs when his stepfather, Wallace Gregory, 42, called down to say he had found the child unconscious. A plastic bag used by a dry cleaner was wrapped around the baby's head and arms.

Burnett said the child had been put to bed about an hour earlier and somehow had gotten off the bed onto the floor, where she was found.

Motherwell Extradition Hearing Set

ATLANTA (AP)—A hearing was set for next Wednesday on a California request for extradition of Larry Lord Motherwell, accused of murdering a wealthy Washington widow.

Motherwell, 43-year-old carpenter, is accused of killing Mrs. Pearl Ida Putney, whose bones were dug up in Sierra County, Calif., by a tourist looking for pine cones on Aug. 16.

He was arrested by the FBI at the Atlanta Airport Aug. 25 and held on a charge of unlawful flight to avoid prosecution for murder.

The extradition hearing was set by Henry Neal, assistant attorney general, legal aid to Gov. Ernest Vandiver, after a conference with Sheriff W. Dewey Johnson of Sierra County and Kenneth Horton of the California Attorney General's office.

A hearing for Motherwell was requested today by letter from Samuel Klein of the Washington, D.C., law firm of Reges and Reges, attorneys for Motherwell's wife.

Butler Asks Convention Rule To Head Off Any Dixie Revolt

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chairman Paul M. Butler has notified Democratic National Committee members in writing that he will ask the committee to readopt a 1956 rule to lessen chances of any Dixie revolt at the party's 1960 convention.

The committee made public here Thursday three resolutions Butler will ask the 108 members to approve at a meeting here Sept. 16.

One deals with the good faith of convention delegates. It is the most controversial despite its unanimous acceptance by the committee and convention in 1956.

The 1956 rule, approved in a North-South compromise as a substitute for a more strongly worded loyalty oath, conceivably could bar from the convention next year delegations from any state omitting names of party nominees from its ballot or electing unpledged electors.

When a committee spokesman said recently that Butler would ask the committee to recommend the same 1956 rule to the 1960 convention, many Southerners demanded Butler's ouster or resignation.

The rule implies that a convention delegation may be challenged if its state fails to assure its voters an opportunity to vote for the convention nominees under the regular party label, and for electors pledged formally or in good conscience to the Democratic candidates.

Other resolutions Butler will ask the committee to approve concern composition of convention committees, and time-saving procedure for polling delegations on the convention floor.

Two Expansion Plans Weighed By U. Md. Unit

BALTIMORE (AP)—A University of Maryland study commission set out Thursday to weigh the relative merits of two methods of dealing with swelling college enrollments.

One way would be expansion of present campuses at College Park and Baltimore at a cost of 46 million dollars. The other would be charting a new group of smaller, scattered institutions.

The university estimated the cost of a 10-year expansion at College Park, aimed at absorbing an enrollment increase of 11,000 students, at about 26¼ million dollars.

The cost figure was almost 15 million dollars for expanding the Baltimore campus to overcome deficiencies and strengthen medical training, as well as accommodate more students.

"A more fundamental question," said Maryland President Wilson H. Elkins, "appears to be whether it is advisable and economically feasible to make public higher education available to a larger number of people by establishing branches in suitable locations."

Dr. Elkins did not specifically state his preference but said a subcommittee he heads felt the College Park campus "could expand to take care of additional enrollment, and that regardless of the establishment of branches it will expand considerably."

Dr. Elkins conceded that great size alone can reduce the quality of an institution but said College Park with 10,000 students is past the point that would make a difference.

"If we are going for expansion," he said, "we should go first class or not at all."

The study group headed by Edwin Warfield III of nearby Ellicott City is under legislative mandate to explore the long range needs of the university for expansion.

The commission agreed that its ultimate findings must take into account the five existing state teachers' colleges operated by the State Education Department and the growing group of junior colleges being operated by some counties.

and to preserve the ideals we all cherish," he said.

"If we are firm among ourselves, if we refuse to retreat one inch from principle, if we remain flexible so far as tactics are involved, if we give NATO the same patriotic, deep devotion we give to each of our nations, then there will be no war. There will be peace."

The appearance of the 68-year-old President at the NATO headquarters was designed to calm fears of some powers that his coming meetings with Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev mean a lessening of their roles in the alliance.

Eisenhower and De Gaulle talked in gray-towered, 600-year-old Chteau Rambouillet 35 miles outside Paris.

These talks climaxed Eisenhower's two-day visit to France and wound up the diplomatic mission that had previously taken him to Bonn and London.

Story Of 'Chuting Soviet Agents Hoax

MAINZ, Germany (AP) — A story that five Soviet agents parachuted into West Germany was exposed as a hoax Thursday night by West German police.

A district police officer at the Rhineland town of Pruem said the man who told the story was a swindler with a police record of vagrancy and theft. They identified him as 32-year-old Wilhelm van Itter.

Van Itter was arrested Thursday morning near Pruem after he told police in broken German that he was a Russian parachutist. He said he was a lieutenant in the NKVD—the Soviet secret police whose name has long been changed to MVD.

Investigators were immediately skeptical about his tale but the Rhineland-Palatinate Interior Ministry issued a report on the incident which set off a search for four companions he said accompanied him.

Pruem is near the Luxembourg border and near various American defense installations.

Home Management Prizes Won By Boys

TIMONIUM, Md. (AP)—It's not often that boys enter the 4-H home management contest at the Maryland State Fair and it's even rarer when they win top prizes.

Two young boys did just that Thursday.

William Foreman, 13, of Jessup and John Campion, 10, of Hanover, won first and second prize in the division. Each exhibited his own style of shoe-rack.

Campion built a rack which can be set against a wall and which holds the shoes by a parallel rod. Foreman's shoe-rack can be rested on a table or floor.

"Quarantine" Space Station Need Forecast

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (AP) —If interplanetary travel becomes a reality, "quarantine stations" in outer space will probably be needed—to protect the earth from the possibility of deadly germs being carried back by returning space ships.

This warning was sounded Thursday by Dr. P. C. Trexler of the University of Notre Dame who asserted: "Conceivable the contamination of the earth by forms of life from another planet could be as destructive to life as we know it as an all-out nuclear war."

Trexler spoke at a special symposium on space age biology sponsored by the Society for Industrial Microbiology. It took place at the closing of the annual meeting of the American Institute of Biological Sciences at Pennsylvania State University.

Saying there is some evidence of primitive microbial and plant life on Mars, the scientist asserted that some of these organisms conceivably might be so bizarre and powerful as to be resistant to the poisons and other measures man now employs to fight the germs on his own planet.

Thus, he said, some form of sterilization method probably would be needed in quarantine stations set up in satellites orbiting high above the earth.

Club Hears Talk About Czech Food

A talk by Miss Brunhilde Seidel, summer trainee, and appointment of a nominating committee featured the meeting of the Valley Road Homemakers Club, held Wednesday at the Central YMCA, with Mrs. Irene MacDonald presiding.

The nominating committee consists of Mrs. Karl Bachman, Mrs. John S. Cook and Mrs. George Kraft. Announcement also was made of the Rural Women's Short Course dinner, which is to be held October 22 at 6:30 at Central YMCA.

Miss Seidel told of foods in her native Czechoslovakia, and compared them with the ways they are cooked in America. She also spoke of the rich pastries and fancy decorated cakes and cookies, which are used every day instead of just for parties. She also described the food cellars under the homes, which are divided into different rooms for fresh vegetables, fruits and meats; and how they are kept fresh without freezers.

Mrs. MacDonald opened the meeting reading a prayer composed by former New York Governor Thomas Dewey. Roll call was answered with ways to stretch the family food dollar. They included buying, preparing and consuming, with emphasis on keeping a trim figure. Mrs. G. Frank Malin, discussing the adult camp at Pleasant Valley, listed camp activities from exercises through the vesper service, making chenille Christmas trees, candles and holders and enameled copper jewelry. Mrs. H. J. Rolley, Fair chairman, reported Mrs. Frank Perdew and Mrs. Cook received prizes for the tailored suit and afghan they exhibited respectively. Two guests and 34 members attended.

Carolyn Crawford Is Bride Of Alan R. Ferry

Miss Carolyn Crawford, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Crawford of Barton, became the bride of Alan Robert Ferry, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph B. Ferry of Woodbury, Pa., August 29.

The double-ring wedding ceremony was solemnized in the Mill Run Church near Barton, with Rev. Paul Poland, of Hutton, officiating, assisted by Rev. Dwight Evans of the Mill Run Church. The altar was decorated with a variety of flowers against a background of palms.

Miss Helen Crawford was her sister's maid of honor, while John Ferry served as his brother's best man. John L. Ferry, cousin of the bridegroom, and Charles Beeman, cousin of the bride, were the ushers. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Smith of Lonaconing sang "Oh Promise Me," and "When He Gave Me You," accompanied at the piano by Miss Regena Derham.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a ballerina-length gown of Chantilly lace over taffeta, fashioned with a fitted bodice, round neckline and three-quarter-length sleeves. Her fingertip-length veil of bridal illusion was attached to a lace cap, adorned with seed pearls and sequins. She carried a bouquet of white mums and carnations. Her only jewelry was a strand of pearls and matching earrings, a gift of the bridegroom.

A graduate of Valley High School, Lonaconing, class of 1958, the bride is employed at the Department of Agriculture, Washington. The bridegroom is a graduate of Woodbury High School and of Pennsylvania State University. Recently discharged from the Army, he is employed as an electrical engineer at the Department of Agriculture, Washington.

Johnson Will Keynote Young Demos Conclave

SILVER SPRING, Md. (AP)—Rep. Thomas F. Johnson (D-Md) was named Thursday as keynote speaker of a Maryland Young Democrats convention which could produce some fireworks on the subject of a preferential primary for U.S. president.

Western Maryland delegates were reported preparing a resolution on the subject for the convention to be held in Ocean City, Md., Sept. 11-12.

One source said the resolution would propose that Gov. J. Millard Tawes be sent to the National Democratic Convention next year as a "favorite-son" candidate for president. In effect, this would leave Maryland delegates to the convention uncommitted to any major candidate beforehand and leave them free to bargain with major candidates for their support.

Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass.) has made clear he intends to run in the May 17 primary, despite Tawes' expressed wish that major candidates stay out of the primary. Kennedy supporters could be expected to oppose adoption by the Young Democrats of a resolution aimed at discouraging his candidacy in Maryland.

Edwin Collier of Silver Spring, chairman of the Young Democrats convention committee, announced Johnson as the keynote speaker and Rep. John R. Foley (D-Md) as principal speaker for the Sept. 12 convention banquet.

Most prominently mentioned among possible successors to J. Thomas Ellicott of Towson as president of the under-40 Democratic group is Trial Magistrate Leonard H. Lockhart of Elkton.

PRR Service Satisfactory

BALTIMORE (AP)—The Pennsylvania Railroad used some defective coaches on passenger runs in Maryland during July and August but service was "generally satisfactory," the Maryland Public Service Commission said Thursday.

The PSC inspected Pennsy operations on its own motion. The study followed complaints by Baltimore area commuters protesting abandonment of a commuter line several months ago.

The commission listed dirty floors, dirty seats, broken windows, bad carpeting and defective air-conditioners on 46 of 89 coaches examined. The survey covered 19 trains making more stops within the state.

Joseph L. Lau Jr., a member of the PSC staff, reported that stations, platforms and other buildings "generally appeared to be maintained in good condition."

At the time the inspections were ordered last April, PSC Chairman Stanford Hoff said he and other commissioners "feel that the service. . .could be improved."

In reply to Lau's report, the railroad said it was "pleased that the commission found the service generally satisfactory" and that trains were running on time.

The Pennsy said the condition of passenger cars "could be better" but this defect was due to financial difficulties caused by "governmental regulation, subsidization of our competition and unfair taxation."

These three factors "sometimes makes it necessary to operate equipment which is in need of minor repairs or maintenance," the railroad said.

Montgomery Co. 4-H'ers Win Prizes For Swine

TIMONIUM, Md. (AP)—Montgomery County youngsters just about swept the field Thursday in the judging of 4-H swine at the Maryland State Fair.

Of the first six grand champions to be selected, five were from the populous county near Washington. The sixth was from Baltimore County.

Hazel Geisbert, 14, and her brother George, 18, of Laytonsville, Montgomery County, were grand champion and reserve grand champion, respectively, in the judging of 4-H Chester White swine.

They and their younger sister, 12-year-old Donna, swept the field in seven classes of Spotted Poland China swine. In this division, Hazel was grand champion and Donna was reserve grand champion.

The Geisberts have been showing swine at the State Fair since each joined the 4-H program at age 10. The children, whose older sister Emilie was also a 4-H member, help their parents run a 600-acre farm containing 300 swine. They attend the Gaithersburg School.

One of their neighbors, 14-year-old William Lechlider of near Laytonsville, won both grand champion and reserve grand championship awards in the Poland China swine judging.

Lechlider, a small boy who suffered a serious illness at age 3, won five of seven possible first prizes in the judging of that breed. He also plans to enter the open swine competition against the adults next week.

The youngster has been in 4-H activities for four years and lives on his family's 239-acre farm. He attends the Laytonsville Elementary School.

Other winners from Montgomery County in 4-H swine judging included Sandra Wightman of Gaithersburg, who showed the best Hampshire, and Barbara Windham of Gaithersburg, grand champion in the Yorkshire judging.

The judging of swine and sheep Thursday closed out competition in in 4 - H animals. Remaining 4 - H events this week include a tractor operators' contest Friday and a contest to show ability in judging livestock Saturday.

Sunny skies and a show of Arabian horses brought out more thousands to the fair on this, the fourth, day. Attendance for the day was 16,434, including 5,612 at the race track. Fair officials said this was a good turnout for a weekday.

A large crowd jammed the grand stand of the pony ring to watch the judging of Arabian horses from all parts of the nation. Al - Marah Arabian Horse Farm near Bethesda had the largest number of entries and received five first prizes in eight classes.

Irregularities Hinted By SRC

HAGERSTOWN (AP) — State's Atty. James F. Strine said Thursday he will go before the Washington County grand jury with evidence of impropriety in land transactions involving State Roads Commission right-of-way.

Strine, refusing to disclose details of the case, said the evidence was uncovered by roads commission personnel. He said it would be submitted to the grand jury after it convenes Sept. 14.

John B. Funk, chairman of the SRC, acknowledged that the probe had been started by the commission.

"The matter that the Washington County state's attorney is going to present to the grand jury was brought to my attention several weeks ago by State Roads Commission right-of-way agents who had cause for concern that the state's interests might be imperiled in land acquisition for construction of a new section of Route 40 near Hagerstown," said Funk.

"At that time I asked the commission's legal staff and right of way department to thoroughly investigate the matter, and in order to protect the state's interests this investigation was diligently carried out and the results turned over to the Washington County state's attorney."

Strine said the grand jury will receive all evidence in the case "before anything is made public."

Condition Is Good

ROME (UPI) — Federico Cardinal Tedeschini, 85, who underwent an emergency intestinal operation Wednesday, was reported in good condition Thursday. The cardinal spent a "tranquil" night. By midmorning, his condition had improved to the point that he was permitted to leave his bed and walk in his hospital room for a few minutes. Doctors said that barring unforseen complications, the cardinal could be expected to leave the Rome Clinic in about 10 days.

River Dredge Funds Sought

WASHINGTON (AP) — Army Engineer funds for dredging the Potomac River to serve Maryland navigation needs were urged Thursday by Sen. John Marshall Butler (R-Md).

Butler wrote Maj. Gen. Emerson C. Itschner, chief of Army Engineers, that the minimum depth of the river between Smith Point and Thomas Point has been silted up, interfering with the economy of Marylanders depending upon a smooth flow of river traffic.

Army Engineer approval of the dredging also would help Southern Maryland residents in their plans to increase trade along the river, he said. He added it is the hope of these residents to have the Potomac deepened to 30 or 35 feet to accommodate heavier ships and barges.

"But such a proposal will not be given serious attention if the present minimum depth is not maintained," Butler said.

The senator told Itschner he has been informed the present depth between the two points now has silted up to 20 feet at low tide and that a minimum depth of 24 feet has been agreed upon as neccessary for current shipping. The 4-foot difference, he said, is one which prohibits the passage of certain ships and barges up the Potomac.

Transfer Of Accused Cop Killer's New Trial Denied

CAMBRIDGE (AP) — Attorneys were unsuccessful Thursday in an attempt to have the second murder trial of Johnny Brown transferred out of Maryland's First Judicial Circuit.

They contended that publicity prevented Brown, accused of killing a Salisbury policeman, from receiving a fair trial on the Eastern Shore.

The motion was denied by Judges E. McMaster Duer and Godfrey Child.

Brown, 38, a Negro, was charged with shooting Patrolman Henry Stephens in an alley Sept. 6, 1958. The trial was removed to Dorchester County and Brown was convicted of first degree murder last Nov. 19.

He was sentenced to death in the gas chamber but the Court of Appeals ordered a new trial on the ground that jurors had not been questioned on whether racial prejudice might influence their decision.

In seeking to remove the trial from the Eastern Shore, Attorney Richard Pollitt argued that newspaper accounts of the crime had been "inflamatory."

Although that motion was denied, another by Brown's attorneys was upheld. The court agreed to the transfer of Brown from death row at the State Penitentiary to the Wicomico County Jail in Salisbury pending the second trial.

No date was set for the new trial.

Victims Identified

PARIS (UPI) — U. S. army officials Thursday released the names of the two soldiers killed when their car collided with a 10-ton truck Monday. The wife of one of the soldiers also died in the accident near St. Dizier in eastern France. The victims were identified as: S5C Raymond Di Carlo and his wife, Hildegard, survived by a daughter who lives with Di Carlo's sister, Mafalda Tedesco, of Schenectady, N. Y. S5C 5 Gerard N. Two Men Charged With Kidnap-Rape

BALTIMORE (AP)—Two Washington men have been charged with the kidnaping and rape of two Federal Bureau of Investigation Clerks early Sunday morning, the FBI reported Thursday.

James Kelly, agent in charge of the Baltimore office, said Ronald Edward Garrison, 27, and Joseph Lee Price, 30, were charged in the warrant signed by U.S. Commissioner Ernest Volkart.

The men are accused of getting into a car in which the girls were riding about 1:30 a.m. Sunday in the District of Columbia, driving to Norbeck, Montgomery County, and raping the 23-year-old Washington FBI office clerks at knifepoint.

Construction Co. President Begins Serving Sentence

BALTIMORE (AP) — Murray B. Silverman, president of a Washington construction company, surrendered Thursday to the U.S. marshal to begin serving a nine-month prison term imposed by Federal Judge Roszel C. Thomsen last July 2.

Silverman, 30, of Silver Spring, was convicted by Judge Thomsne on a charge of submitting fake letters to the Navy in support of cost estimates on a contract his firm had to build a $244,000 transmitter building for a reflector in Annapolis.

Disturbing News:

Boss, Just Like Employes, Wastes Time With Trivia

By ARTHUR EDSON

WASHINGTON (AP) — The boss, it turns out, is just like the rest of us.

He, too, ducks the hard tasks, invents chores that really don't help him with his work, and fritters away his time—but in a high old executive fashion.

This disturbing news comes today from the Small Business Administration, which has put out a four-page leaflet called Management Aid No. 103. It is written especially to help the man who owns and manages his own business.

The leaflet begins with an observation.

"Of course, most executives do have to work hard. But—and this is the important question—are they working hard at the right things?" it says.

"Unfortunately, in many cases the answer is a resounding No."

It then turns to the mythical but sad case of Harvey Winston, a manufacturer.

The leaflet doesn't say what Harvey manufactures, but let's suppose it's something like paper clips. Anyway, he inherited the business, and now after five years he finds he's making money and everything is fine except for this: Each night he has to tote a briefcase full of work home with him. Why? Why?

Harvey calls in "a well-qualified consultant," who seems to be a square shooter, though a bit on the poetic side.

He says Harvey spends too much time on details and not enough on managing, and then soars into speech.

"A business, particularly a small business, is a creative work. Don't smile—it is. It's in its way as creative as a song, a painting, a statue. The difference is this: That the work of art is finished at some point. But an active business reaches no such point of completion. And the creator — you, the businessman — must forever keep on creating and improving his creation," says the speech.

Harvey went out to study his fellow executives.

Here are a few "busy, busy bosses" Harvey identified:

The detail hugger: Checks up on everything, every day. "Terribly interested in the amount of string used for packages."

The dream merchant: So busy saying what he's doing tomorrow he has no time left to do anything today.

Well, Harvey finally concludes that what ails all these men is that they are avoiding work that has to be done. Filled with food resolutions about self-discipline, he returns to his work.

"Harvey Winston's factory is the best-run in its field," the leaflet proudly says.

And he's free! Free! Free to spend his nights like any other red-blooded American, to watch TV, to bark at his kids, and to burn the steak on the outdoor barbecue.

Tritium Provides Possible New Lead In Cancer Fight

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (AP) —Radioactive tritium, an ingredient of the fearsome H-bomb, has helped turn up a possible new lead for the research fight against cancer, a University of Pennsylvania scientist said Wednesday.

Made to act as a kind of tail-light on one of the key substances of all living cells, tritium apparently has demonstrated an entirely new concept of what takes place in one of the very earliest stages of the normal cellular growth process—and perhaps even in that of cancerous cells.

This was reported by Dr. Lester Goldstein to the annual meeting of the American Institute of Biological Sciences at Pennsylvania State University. He amplified his report in an interview.

Specifically, the aim of the research was to pin-point within the nucleus or heart of a living cell the site of origin of a substance known as ribonucleic acid—RNA for short.

RNA when formed within the cell is presumed to act as a kind of messenger boy for another key substance — called deoxyribonucleic acid or DNA—which is the main constituent of the hereditary genes that are carried by the chromsomes.

In effect DNA acts as a kind of storehouse for the hereditary traits that determine whether a baby will be blue-eyed or brown-eyed, tall or short and so on.

And RNA is presumed to be the carrier of such information to other parts of the developing cell.

For years scientists have sought to determine the exact point within the cell where the messenger boy himself is synthesized or born.

Up to now the usually accepted concept is that RNA is formed in cellular materials that are relatively distant from the chromosomes and the DNA storehouse—presumably entailing a pickup trip by the RNA messenger service.

But Dr. Goldstein's work appears to show that the messenger boy is born on the chromosomes—right handy to the storehouse.

Rodeo Steers Fierce But Horns May Be False

LEMON COVE, Calif. (UPI)— The steers brave cowboys rope in rough-riding rodeos may not be quite so fierce as greenhorn audiences think.

Chances are, in fact, that the steers' horns may be falsies.

Rancher Richard E. Ayres is responsible for the attachments. They are made of fiberglass, plastic and foam rubber.

Until Ayres put his inventive mind to work, it was well nigh impossible to rope a domestic steer.

U. S. bred bulls either are dehorned or have stubby and fragile horns.

Ayres, 35, who owns the 15 acre Shady Acres Horse Ranch in the Sierra Nevada foothills, sells his "Handy Horns" for $30 a set. He has two models — the 18-inch spread for roping and the 25-inch for bulldogging.

The horns are made of molded fiber glass mounted on a plastic cap lined with foam rubber. Straps connect the cap to a plastic plane under the jaw with the plate turned down to allow freedom to the animal's jaw and lip.

It took Ayres more than a year of painstaking trial and error to get all the kinks out of the horns.

"I've sold about 400 sets and guaranteed them for a year," reported Ayres. "I clear about $10 on each set."

"The Mexican steers have pretty good natural horns but after a lot of roping and bulldogging they become injured about the head—rope burns and bruises," he said.

The principal head covering of Roman and Greek ladies was a veil, supplemented by a hood of linen or wool in cold or wet weather.

'Robin Hood' Banker Returns From Prison

ELLENVILLE, N. Y. (UPI) — Former banker William (Uncle Bill) Rose, whose "Robin Hood" lending policies once plunged this Catskill Mountain community into a financial crisis, returned home from prison Wednesday.

The only person waiting to welcome him was his 86-year-old mother. She had been sitting patiently in a rocker on the porch of the big white house atop a knoll.

The portly Rose, 53, had been at the forefront in civic affairs in this village of 4,500. He had made about $30,000 a year as president of the Home National Bank which his grandfather founded. Then he was charged with misapplying $1,195,000 in funds and the bank collapsed.

Rose came home to take a job as a salesman in the Rose and Douglas Hardware Store, which adjoins the bank.

Protestant Missionaries Facing Challenge In Hawaii

By CLAIRE COX
United Press International

NEW YORK (UPI) — The new state of Hawaii confronts Protestant missionaries with an unusual challenge, church leaders report.

Instead of gaining ground in the 50th state of the union as they have in the other 49, Christians have been losing out to the followers of the ancient eastern religion founded by Buddha.

The Methodist Church, the largest religious body in America, reports that Hawaii once was almost 95 per cent Christian. But there has been an upsurge of Buddhism since World War II, according to the Methodists.

With 160,000 followers, the Buddhist sect now is the largest single religious group in the islands, Methodists report.

The National Council of Churches said that only one of every three Hawaiians is Christian. That is a total of about 215,000 out of an estimated population of 640,000.

The rest are Jews, Pagans, Buddhists, Shintoists and followers of Confucianism, making Hawaii what churchmen call "a garden of religions."

The Buddhists have scored their success, according to Methodist leaders, by adopting western techniques of spreading their eastern beliefs. Young Buddhist associations, for example, have adopted many of the western social methods of Protestant youth groups.

The first known American missionary group to reach the former Sandwich Islands was a band of New England Congregationalists who arrived there in 1820. This was some years after two English missionaries went there in 1794 at the request of the islands' king. Their first convert was the queen, who died clutching a Bible.

As a result of being the first organized missionary group to go to the islands, the Congregationalists have the largest Protestant membership—15,000 to 18,000 in 113 churches.

After the congregationalists came the Mormons, now second in membership; the Methodists, who have 4,000 members in 27 churches, and the Protestant Episcopalians. They were followed by Lutherans, Seventh Day Adventists, Disciples of Christ, Southern Baptists, Pentacostals, and Assemblies of God missionaries. The Presbyterians only recently established their first church in Hawaii.

Church officials said the original inhabitants of the islands, the Polynesians, were pagans. They could not read or write. Missionaries educated them and converted them in growing numbers.

The American Bible Society published its first Hawaiian New Testament in 1832, seven years after the islands' first code of laws was enacted, with the 10 commandments as a guide.

The first Jewish residents of Hawaii were English and German traders who went there in 1845. An American Jew established the first coffee plantation in Hawaii. The first known Jewish marriages were performed in 1881, but it was not until after Hawaii became a U.S. territory in 1898 that the first regular Jewish religious services were held there.

The Honolulu Council of Churches was formed by the Protestants in 1945. It now has 82 member churches and provides bus service every Sunday from Waikiki to Honolulu houses of worship.

The Rev. Abraham Akaka, vice president of the council and pastor of Kawaiahao Church, has the largest church in the islands. It was built of 14,000 coral reef rocks passed hand-to-hand for a quarter of a mile by church members in 1841.

Akaka preaches in Hawaiian and English in his church, which is called the "Westminster Abbey of the Islands."

The Methodists claim what possibly is the only U.S. church in which members worship in three languages. The 9 a.m. service at Lahaina Methodist Church is deliverd by a Philippine-born minister in a Filipino dialect. At 10:45 a.m., the sermon is in English. The evening service is conducted by a Japanese-born minister.

Methodist leaders feel that this church is a true symbol of the Hawaiian melting pot.

Polio Pattern Shows Vaccine Effective

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Surgeon General Leroy E. Burney said Wednesday that the pattern of polio cases so far this year showed the effectiveness of Salk vaccine.

Burney issued a statement noting that a survey of 1,446 of the 3,434 paralytic polio cases reported this year showed 83.7 per cent were unvaccinated or only partly vaccinated. He also noted that in 1952, there was a total of 57,895 cases of polio against this years so far much smaller total.

The surgeon general pointed out, there were more than 50,000,000 persons in the under 40 age group still not fully vaccinated.

WARSAW (UPI) — Lawmakers from both sides of the Iron Curtain were left speechless Wednesday by an electronics failure.

The ultra - shortwave transmitters used to broadcast simultaneous translations at the Interparliamentary Union Conference here were knocked out by a Warsaw power failure.

Without translations or loudspeakers, the parliamentarians were helpless and eventually had to call a recess.

The power break occurred just as Rep. Katherine St. George (R-N.Y.) was scheduled to speak on a resolution for the protection of individual rights.

By STANLEY JOHNSON

GDANSK (DANZIG), Poland (AP)—Left a smouldering heap of ruins by the war that erupted here 20 years ago, this Baltic city has come to life again.

When Hitler screamed that the city, set up as a free entity under the League of Nations after World War I, should be turned over to his Reich, the disillusioned youth of 1939 asked: "Die for Danzig?"

Millions around the globe did die, and the city died with them.

But Danzig, now called Gdansk by the Poles, is booming again with workers' housing, industrial plants, schools and public buildings springing up on all sides.

"It's a miracle," says an American who last saw the city when it was a mass of rubble.

Billions of zlotys—no exact figures are available — have been spent to restore the war-ruined medieval city, whose history goes back to the 10th Century. The docks, the shipyards, and the factories and the housing. Billions more are needed to complete the ambitious plans. This year alone, for example, it is planned to put up two million cubic yards of apartment space.

Its ancient buildings have been scrupulously restored. But many visitors miss a feeling of permanence and continuity.

"We are not like London, or or even Nuernberg," says an authority on local history, "We have been fought over too often, and finally almost wiped out. Then, again, the people who live here now almost all had their roots elsewhere."

Gdansk had a population of about 400,000 persons in 1939 — 90 per cent German and only about 10 per cent Polish.

Today, a local authority says in a population of some 270,000, there are no more than 20 or 30 Germans. The rest, he adds, either fled with the Nazi troops before Soviet advances in 1945 or were repatriated when administration of the city was handed over to Poland.

Poles poured in from other regions to fill the vacuum. It is they who restored it to life. Poles fill its seven institutes of higher education, support the famed Baltic Opera and Ballet Company, staff the Medical Academy.

But, inevitably, the atmosphere is not the same as in cities where some have followed fathers and grandfathers for generations. Now it is molded into a Communist pattern.

Gdansk is one of a trio of cities, the other two being the old resort of Sopot and the seaport of Gdynia which Poland built between the two world wars to rival the old free port.

When the blitz struck, Polish forces were gradually forced back until they made their last defense at the peninsula of Westerplatte.

Tragically outgunned and outmanned, cavalry forces which had found their horses were no match for Hitler's tanks found they could not withstand the pounding of the cruiser Schleswig Holstein.

Late in September, 1939, these remnants were overwhelmed. The first phase of World War II had ended.

A simple monument now marks the spot but it has few visitors.

"We look to the future, not to the past," explained one Pole. "The way we have rebuilt Gdansk our labor for its future as a Polish city, that is the real monument—not this little stone in the woods."

Minister Resigns

BRUSSELS (UPI) — Maurice Van Hemelrijck Thursday resigned as minister for the Congo in a dispute with other cabinet members over Belgium's future policies in the vast African colony. Van Hemelrijck for months has sought a speed-up in the government's "independence by stages" plan. Premier Gaston Eyskens and other cabinet members favor the go-slow program.

Shareholders Approve

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Shareholders of Fidelity Trust Co. and Peoples First National Bank & Trust Co. approved a merger of the two Pittsburgh banks into a new bank to be called the Pittsburgh National Bank. Preliminary approval was given by the comptroller of the currency in July.

Teen agers..

now you can open your very own... Charge Account

Designed especially for and available only to high school students

Because we have great faith in the responsibility and good judgment of Young Americans, we have devised a special way of permitting high school students to charge purchases to their own account.

Here's how it works . . . On his or her own signature a TEEN-ACCOUNT customer may charge up to $12.00, payable at $1.00 per week for 12 weeks. As payments are made and the balance owed declines, further charges may be made at any time, as long as the total outstanding does not exceed $12.00, the difference will be payable at time of purchase.

Parents . . . Our Teen-Accounts are really called Honor-Teen Accounts. Parents are not asked to cosign or be responsible in any way. Teens get their credit strictly on their honor.

This early experience will really help teens to better understanding of the value of money and money-management, and at the same time encourage thrift and develop self-sufficiency.

Communism May Become Great Unifying Force On Indian Subcontinent

By J. M. ROBERTS
Associated Press News Analyst

International communism now shows some signs of replacing British rule as a great unifying force on the Indian subcontinent.

During the first half of the century, Hindus and Moslems rallied to a single cause, independence from Britain.

Since then they have been divided into separate states, India and Pakistan, have exchanged some blows, and have been at loggerheads over possession of Kashmir and control of the great northern river system.

Both maintain considerable armed forces poised against each other.

The world has considered it a pity this should have happened to the two peoples who put up such a consistent fight for independence, and whose poor economic status cries out for cooperation.

Under a program devised by the World bank, some hope has arisen that the water dispute will be settled and eventually lead to a compromise over Kashmir, a largely Moslem state formerly ruled by a Hindu prince who sought to cede it to India after independence.

Now come the Communists with their aggressive actions, their border violations and their aid to Afghanistan in building roads along the ancient West-East invasion routes by which the Moslems first came to India.

Bitterness between India and Pakistan seems to be cooling somewhat under the pressure.

Prime Minister Nehru of India and President Ayub Kahn of Pakistan met briefly at an airport this week in an atmosphere of friendliness.

This followed a statement by the Pakistan leader some weeks ago that the Pakistani and Indian armies, instead of facing each other, should stand side by side for defense.

Nehru then asked, "Defense against whom?"

The neutralist leader has had to revise a lot of his ideas in the past few weeks, and probably could answer his own question today without any fumbling.

Pakistan already is receiving American military aid. India refuses it. But Nehru knows that in a showdown with Red China he would have it quickly.

And the Western Allies would insist on a pooling of the entire area's defenses.

India and Pakistan would then be forced into a cooperation which would be comparable to that welcomed somewhat grudgingly by Winston Churchill when, because of common peril, the Soviet Union and Britain became allies during World War II.

Mouthwatering Fruit Pie

You might call this Fruit Pie a la Grapefruit! It's a colorful and tempting dessert, by any name. Two summertime favorites, watermelon and canned Florida grapefruit sections, combine simply and the result is so mouth-watering you'll be sorry you didn't think of it sooner.

Plump, juicy and tangy, you'll find canned grapefruit sections are every bit as good as their fresh counterpart. No flavor or juice is lost during processing and we are assured fine fruit all year round at budget-prices. Canned grapefruit sections have the added advantage of being available in all food stores and require no special handling when you buy them nor do they take up precious refrigerator or freezer space. Store a good supply of the handy one-pound cans anywhere you have the room, keeping just one or two chilled for spur-of-the-moment use.

Grapefruit's tart flavor is especially refreshing during hot weather and provides a most pleasant method of replenishing the vitamin C you use up daily.

To serve watermelon and grapefruit attractively, slice a chilled quartered watermelon into nice thick pie-shaped wedges. Top with frosty grapefruit sections, decorate with a bit of mint. We predict it will have many repeat performances this summer.

Zippy Soup

In tune with summer eating, serve this zippy soup. Combine 1 can each condensed cream of chicken soup and cream of mushroom soup; stir until smooth, then add 1½ soup cans water, a cup of shredded sharp cheese, touch of Worcestershire sauce and a hint of prepared mustard. Heat slowly until cheese is melted and soup is hot before serving to 6.

Especially colorful garnishes add to appetite appeal. Frozen condensed cream of potato soup . . . when heated . . . makes a nice contrast for crisp, bright grated June carrots.

Easy Party Dessert

Rich and delicious, this strawberry roll is an excellent party dessert and one that can be made ahead of time and stored in the refrigerator or freezer. The cake is baked in a heavyweight foil pan, filled with strawberries and whipped cream and rolled like a jelly roll.

Strawberry Jeweled Roll

¾ cup sifted cake flour (or ¾ cup all-purpose flour, less 1½ teaspoons)
1 teaspoon baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
4 eggs, separated
¾ cup sugar
2 tablespoons water
1 teaspoon vanilla
1½ cups heavy cream
6 tablespoons powdered sugar
3 cups strawberry halves

To make the foil pan, tear off a strip of 14-inch heavyweight foil to measure 18 inches long. Fold over 1-inch on all sides. Turn up a ¾-inch edge to form the sides of the pan. Make diagonal folds at the corners, folding the triangular tab against the sides of the pan. Oil the bottom and sides of the foil pan well.

Mix and sift together the flour, baking powder and salt. Beat egg whites until stiff. While continuing to beat the egg whites, add ½-cup of the sugar, a tablespoon at a time, beating until the sugar is completely dissolved. Next, beat the egg yolks until thick and lemon-colored. Add the remaining ¼-cup of sugar, the water and vanilla. Continue to beat until thick. Gently fold in the egg white meringue, and then

After the ball is over and it's time to entertain with that midnight supper, why not try serving this excellent Deviled Ham and Cheese Fondue. Your guests will love it. To top the main dish, you'll want a light dessert so serve freshly boxed summer candies with their dainty pastel coatings and cellophane wrappings.

Beat egg whites until stiff but not dry and fold into milk and crumb mixture. Turn into buttered 2-quart casserole. Set casserole in pan of warm water. Bake in slow oven (325°) about 1½ hours, or until knife inserted in center comes out clean. Garnish with pimiento strips and parsley.

Kidney Bean & Cheese Casserole
(Makes 6 servings)

1 cup chopped green pepper
1 teaspoon celery seed
½ teaspoon salt

Spiced Beans

Returning from India, the Orient and South America, adventurous explorers brought back ships laden with exotic spices that were every day staples in dishes native to foreign lands. Since then, American palates have learned to savor the tang of curry, the lively taste of ginger and the musky flavor of nutmeg. You may not think of spices like these when cooking navy beans, but adding just that unusual touch can result in a "surprise" dish that will win raves from family and friends. Here are two such recipes that are simple to fix, don't need watching and turn out deliciously every time!

Beef Balls And Beans

2 lbs. hamburger
1 large onion, chopped fine
Salt and pepper to taste
3 cups cooked navy beans
2 cups sour cream
½ t. ginger or 1 t. nutmeg
Buttered bread crumbs
Slivered almonds

Thoroughly mix onion, salt and pepper with meat and form into small balls no more than an inch in diameter. Brown in butter. Cover and cook til tender, adding a little water if necessary. Allow meat balls to cool and mix with beans, sour cream, the spice, and gravy from the frying pan. Put in casserole sprinkle with bread crumbs and almonds. Cover and heat thoroughly in 350 degree oven.

Lucky Pot Beans

1 lb. dried navy beans
½ lb. salt pork, cut in cubes
½ lb. onions, chopped
1 med. can tomatoes
1 cup green peppers, diced
1 t. curry powder
Pepper to taste

Soak beans overnight. Add more water next day, if necessary, to cover. Add pork and onions and simmer in covered pot till beans are tender. Add tomatoes, green peppers and seasoning. Simmer another 15 minutes or until all is thoroughly blended.

There are more than 35 thousand swimming pools in the United States. Approximately one-half of these are private.

THE LITTLE WOMAN

"Herbert should be here in a flash! I phoned him and said I was about to buy a new fur coat."

How They Fry Chicken From Coast To Coast

"Souther fried chicken" is famous all over the world, but there are at least a dozen ways to "southern fry" chicken in our own South, as well as variations from the Midwest and North.

Chicken has been an all-American favorite dish since the Pilgrims established their first farms. Because the United States is so big and so varied in population, there are probably more ways of cooking chicken here than anywhere else in the world.

Besides such recipes as Texas Chicken-Tamale Pie and Pennsylvania Dutch Chicken-Corn Chowder, there are other regional ways of frying chicken. In most of the South, cooks let the chicken stand in milk or buttermilk before frying it. In the farm belt and in Delaware, mashed potatoes are the traditional accompaniment to fried chicken. In Kentucky, they serve it with griddlecakes, and in Virginia, waffles and cream gravy go along with the chicken.

Alabamans dip the chicken pieces in egg as well as flour to insure a crispy crust. In New York, they simmer the chicken to tenderness before frying it. And in Kansas they simmer the browned chicken pieces in cream.

The Georgia version of fried chicken is almost sure to include grits and gravy or candied sweet potatoes. Along the Gulf Coast, the chicken is rubbed with lemon before frying, then served with beans and rice. Hot biscuits and cream gravy go along with fried chicken in North Carolina. In Connecticut, they add a touch of sugar to the gravy.

Hoosier Fried Chicken

2 3-pound ready-to-cook broiler-fryers, cut up
¾ cup flour
3 teaspoons paprika
3 teaspoons salt
¾ teaspoon pepper
Shortening or salad oil
Parsley

Wash and wipe chicken pieces dry. In paper bag, mix flour, paprika, salt and pepper. Drop chicken, two or three pieces at a time, into bag; shake until coated.

In large, deep skillet, place ½ inch shortening; heat until a drop of water sizzles in it. Brown meaty pieces of chicken in hot shortening, uncovered, turning now and then with tongs. As meaty pieces brown, slip in less meaty pieces. When all chicken has browned, reduce heat, and cook, covered, 20 to 25 minutes, turning once, until large pieces are fork-tender.

Uncover chicken and recrisp over moderate heat about 10 minutes, turning once. Heap the chicken in a napkin-lined wooden bowl; garnish with parsley. Serves 4 to 6.

Blue Cheese Bonus On Lamb Chops

Broiled Lamb Chops — Blue Cheese Topping may sound like a most unusual combination . . . in one sense it is.

We are all undoubtedly familiar with blue cheese served as an appetizer or salad booster but now this nippy flavored cheese proves its food compatibility in another field . . . that of meat cookery.

This blue cheese topping is simply a combination of blue cheese, green onions, salt, pepper and margarine.

The lamb shoulder chops are broiled on one side, seasoned, turned and broiled on the second side until almost done. The chops are removed, spread with the cheese mixture and returned to the broiler for about 2 minutes or until the cheese is lightly browned.

For those friends who are continually searching for new ideas pertaining to meat cookery, simply prepare this recipe once and watch them mentally tuck the idea away for future use.

Broiled Lamb Chops
Blue Cheese Topping

- 6 lamb shoulder chops, cut ¾ to 1 inch thick
- ½ cup blue cheese, firmly packed
- 2 tablespoons sliced green onions
- ⅛ teaspoon salt
- Dash of pepper
- 2 tablespoons softened butter or margarine

Set regulator for broiling. Place chops on broiler rack. Insert broiler pan and rack so the top of the chops is 3 inches from the heat. Broil first side until browned, about 8 minutes, turn and brown second side, about 4 minutes. Combine cheese, onion, salt, pepper and butter or margarine. Spread about 2 tablespoons of cheese mixture evenly over each chop. Continue broiling 2 minutes or until cheese is lightly browned. Yield: 6 servings.

Salad time . . . bean time . . . a bean salad is perfect for summer eating especially when you combine a 1 pound can of pork and beans with tomato sauce with about ½ cup celery, a bit of minced onion, and a tablespoon of thick French dressing; chill and fill salted tomato cups.

Market Falls As Caution Pervades Wall Street

NEW YORK (UPI)—Another $4 billion was slashed from stock market values as Wall Street used tight money—specifically an anticipated boost in the discount rate—as an excuse for selling.

The Federal Reserve Board, however, made no change in the discount rate, that which it charges on loans to member banks. Tight money has been the chief market influence since Tuesday when leading commercial banks boosted the rate they charge on top-rated loans to a 29-year high.

The selling did not generate any substantial volume. Turnover in the session totaled only 2,330,000 shares compared with 2,370,000 on Wednesday.

Of a total 1,198 issues traded, 829 were lower while only 190 managed to advance.

Some of the heaviest losses came in chemicals where Du Pont lost 4½; Allied 2¼. Among electronics, Litton rose 4¾ while Texas Instruments fell 4 and RCA 2⅛. Steel losses ranged to nearly 3 points in U. S. Steel. Among oils, Texaco, Socony-Mobil, Sinclair, Gulf, Skelly and Amerada lost a point to more than 2 points.

Motors had losses running to 1½ points in Chrysler and Ford and General Motors lost a point. American fell ⅝ point on the day's heaviest turnover.

Rails joined in with Louisville & Nashville and Norfolk & Western down nearly 2 each. Southern Pacific and Great Northern down 1 ¼.

Chicago Grains

CHICAGO (UPI)—Selling prompted by an optimistic private crop estimate eased most grain prices Thursday on the Chicago Board of Trade.

At the final bell, wheat was unchanged to off ⅜; corn unchanged to off ¼; oats up ⅜; new oats unchanged to off ½; rye unchanged to off ½; and soybeans off ⅜ to up ⅜.

The private report issued early Thursday predicted wheat, oats and soybean crops would be larger than the last government estimate. The corn prediction for a record crop was little changed.

The wheat market grew quiet after a flurry of selling followed issuance of the report. The market recovered partially from lows and closed easy. Some deliveries were unchanged. Some of the early selling was in the form of liquidation by local longs.

Corn was steady. There was a demand for December, which commercial houses bought early. Selling was mixed. Spot corn sold at 11¼ cents above September.

Oats held about steady. Commission houses liquidated September, and cash houses were buyers. Some December oats were also sold.

Liquidation in September rye dropped the price more than a cent before a late rally.

Soybeans fell off following the crop estimate. September led the decline on liquidation. Fair buying developed on the dip. The deferred contracts closed firm.

Meals were easy. No export sales were reported.

Outside markets were mostly lower. The range:

the sifted dry ingredients. Pour the batter into the prepared foil pan and slip it onto a cookie sheet. Bake in a moderate oven (350°F) for about 15 minutes, or until top springs back when touched lightly. Do not overbake.

Dip a clean dish towel in hot water. Wring the towel as dry as you can. Loosen the cake all around the edge. Place damp towel over cake, then invert and remove foil pan from cake. Fold damp towel over one end of the cake and roll up, rolling the towel with the cake. Cool on a rack.

Whip cream, adding the powdered sugar gradually. Gently open out the rolled cake and spread with half of the cream and 2 cups of the berry halves. Re-roll cake so it will rest on the outside edge.

Place cake on foil-covered cutting board or platter, then frost with remaining whipped cream. Place remaining berry halves in a pattern on the cake. Surround with whole unstemmed berries to garnish each serving.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ♥	Pass	2 NT.	Pass
3 NT.	Pass	Pass	Double
Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Queen of ♠.

The final contract of three no trump was reached in almost less time than it takes to tell about it. Holding two aces and a readily establishable suit, West bided his time and then leaped in eagerly for the kill. Whether or not his double was a tipoff to declarer is another question.

West opened the queen of spades, which was taken by South with the king. He reached an immediate count of eight tricks, and hope for the ninth seemed to rest with an end play. With the purpose of embarrassing West, he decided to run the diamond suit.

West realized it would be fatal to part with the queen of clubs and not wishing to let go more than one establishable spade, discarded the ten of clubs, the deuce of spades, and then two hearts. Now South led the deuce of hearts. West grabbed the ace and returned the jack of spades, establishing the suit and simultaneously driving out dummy's entry for the heart suit. This sent the contract down to defeat.

South's heart play came much too late. It should have been made at declarer's first opportunity. When South wins the opening lead he plays the low heart at once, knowing that West has the ace. West must duck, else declarer will pick up the entire heart suit. The trick is won with the queen, and now as declarer runs the diamond suit West must find one additional discard. He can afford to discard the jack of hearts, but the discard on the fifth diamond is more irksome. If he lets go a spade, retaining the ace and queen of clubs, declarer can score with his king of clubs by playing the ace and another spade, throwing West into the lead. If he throws the queen of clubs declarer can win the contract by playing a club out of his own hand, establishing the king.

Chilled Soup

Chilled soup gets raves as appetizers during sizzling weather. This quick Vichyssisoe wins return engagements . . . defrost 2 cups frozen mashed potatoes over hot water, add a bit of butter, a can of condensed cream of chicken soup, and a hint of onion salt. Beat well and force through a sieve before adding a cup of light cream and 1½ cups milk; after chilling garnish with chopped chives, then serve to 4.

Sauce your hamburgers with a combination of canned condensed cream of mushroom soup and beef gravy which have been heated together over a low flame.

Try Tropical Sauce For Barbecues

¼ cup unsulphured molasses
¼ cup prepared mustard
¼ cup vinegar
2 tablespoons Worcestershire Sauce
½ teaspoon Tabasco

Put molasses, then mustard, into a 1-cup measure. Stir to blend. Add the remaining ingredients; mix well.

YIELD: Approximately ¾-cup —enough for 3 broiler-fryer chickens; or for 12 to 18 hamburgers or frankfurters.

NOTE: If desired, recipe may be doubled or tripled.

Barbecue Chicken

Sprinkle 3 broiler-fryer chickens, halved, with salt, pepper and Accent. Place chicken, skin side up, on grate set 6 to 12 inches from heat. Brush chicken with Tropical Barbecue Sauce. Cook slowly until tender, turning and basting occasionally with the sauce. Allow 1 to 1¼ hours total cooking time. To test for "doneness," leg should twist easily out of thigh joint, and pieces should be fork-tender.

Barbecue In Oven

Set oven to moderate (350°F.) Line shallow baking pan with aluminum foil. Place chicken, skin side down, in pan; brush Tropical Barbecue Sauce over cut side of chicken. Bake 30 minutes, brushing occasionally with the sauce; turn and brush with sauce. Bake 30 to 45 minutes longer, brushing occasionally with sauce.

To Barbecue Hamburgers

Place hamburgers on grate set 4 to 6 inches from heat. Brush with Tropical Barbecue Sauce. Broil 4 to 8 minutes, depending on desired degree of "doneness" —turn once during broiling and brush with the sauce.

The Mighty Mousse

Chicken Mousse

Cool as seafoam and considerably more substantial is this main-dish chicken mousse. "Mousse" means "foam" in French. Translated into American cuisine, it can mean a foamy combination of evaporated milk —thrifty in pennies and calories, gelatine, and chicken-plus-seasonings. "Mighty" mousse requires little trouble and less time —easy to prepare for a special luncheon or an "adventure dinner."

Whipped evaporated milk is the backbone of this mousse. Low in cost, easy to store on the pantry shelf, evaporated milk whips to triple its volume. Simply chill it in a refrigerator tray until ice crystals form around the edges. Then whip with a cold beater in a cold bowl. This mousse can be made in a spare moment in the morning and then chilled in the refrigerator until mealtime.

1 envelope unflavored gelatine
½ cup cold water or chicken stock
¼ cup mayonnaise
2 tablespoons lemon juice
¼ teaspoon curry powder, optional
¼ teaspoon Tabasco
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup diced chicken
½ cup diced celery
⅔ cup icy cold evaporated milk

Sprinkle gelatine on water or chicken stock in saucepan to soften. Place over medium heat, stirring constantly, until gelatine is dissolved. Remove from heat. Gradually stir into mayonnaise; add lemon juice, curry powder, Tabasco and salt. Add chicken and celery. Whip evaporated milk; fold into gelatine mixture. Turn into a 4-cup mold. Chill until firm.

Yield: 4 to 6 servings.

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN: I never thought I'd wind up on your "couch" in print. But then I suppose they all say that!

I went with this perfectly beautiful girl four months. She was so magnificent that for three months I was mesmerized by her indescribable beauty.

I read her poems by Pound and Kunitz. She was a quiet listener. I bought her albums of Chopin and Brahms. She smiled her thanks. Then suddenly I saw the bare face of truth. What I had imagined was tranquility, depth and inner security was only silence—borne of ignorance.

When I tried to recall a single statement from this girl which reflected an original idea, I was stymied. She was a fraud.

I have three degrees, Ann, but this idiot-beauty who I'm sure never saw the 10th grade, duped me. Please pass the word along. It may save another idealist four months, and $1,000 in books, records, flowers and gifts.

VOLTAIRE.

DEAR VOLTAIRE: Why is the girl a fraud? Did she tell you she was on the faculty at Harvard?

You were so snowed by her looks that all your male impulses went on active duty and your brains went AWOL. You tried to build a dream castle and move this brainless female in. Your attempt to spin a shimmering cocoon of magic around a beautiful (but dumb) dame didn't work. It never does. So—take your medicine like a little man.

DEAR ANN: Maybe if you publish this letter it will help my cause.

I got my driver's license a few days ago. I passed the test with flying colors. Now my folks won't let me drive unless one of them is with me. I've been practicing for three years and I'm as good a driver as either of them. Yet they say I havn't had enough experience to take the car alone.

How can I get experience if they won't let me have the car? If you can explain this I'll be grateful.

LIZ.

DEAR LIZ: Be patient, Lamb —your time will come. Drive whenever you get the chance. After a while they'll get used to the idea that you're a competent driver. Then you'll be permitted to take the car on your own. Nagging and begging is a sign of childishness, so lay off and you'll achieve your goal sooner.

DEAR ANN: Lately I've been reading articles entitled "Is Dad just a meal ticket?" "Are American wives pampered?" "Has the male lost his place as head of the American Family?"

I'd like to ask the following questions: "Is Mom just a housekeeper?" "Do American men have life too soft?"

True, women don't work as hard as their grandmothers did, but neither do men. Today the 40-hour week is considered "too long." They want 35. The young man out of college who is looking for a job wants to know what the pension plan is before he'll consider it. Mom doesn't get any such deal. Being a wife and mother means 24-hours-a-day duty.

This malarky about a woman being boss is a joke. I've yet to see a wife who could watch the TV program of her choice when a fight or or a cowboy movie was on.

If there's any pampering going on it's the men who are getting it. American husbands are the most spoiled males on the face of the earth. Mom starts it and the wife takes over from there.

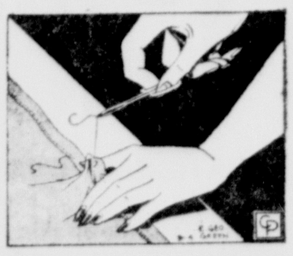
WIFE PRESERVERS



Use eyebrow tweezers to rip seams in sewing.

Whipped cream addicts take kindly to this hint. Top piping hot green pea with ham soup (the frozen kind) with whipped cream perked up by a bit of horseradish.

Next time you make your favorite chicken salad sandwiches, use canned boned chicken . . . . handy and economical too . . . no cooking, no waste. For color and a flavor lift add a little chopped parsley.

Luncheons take on new hues when you add a little curry powder to a can (10½ ounces) of chicken a la king while heating. Pour over sliced hard-cooked eggs on toast . . . for a quick treat.

Turn your soup tureen into a kaleidoscope of color. Heat frozen condensed New England style clam chowder with a cup each diced cooked ham and canned whole kernel corn. Makes 4 generous luncheon-size servings.

2 Men Named To Faculty At Allegany High School

Two teachers have been appointed to the faculty at Allegany High School.

Richard T. Rizer, assistant superintendent of public schools, said Thomas P. Shaffer, 233 Cumberland Street, has been named to teach English in the eighth grade. This is a new position caused by an increase in the enrollment at the school, Rizer said.

John F. Watack, Winchester, Va., has been named a teacher in the Commercial Department. He will instruct in bookkeeping and commercial law. He will replace Ralph Scarlett, who resigned to accept a position in Hagerstown.

Shaffer, a graduate of LaSalle High School in 1950, served in the Army from 1953 through 1955. While in the Army he took the University of Maryland overseas education program at the University of Heidelberg.

On his return from military service he enrolled in Frostburg State Teachers College and graduated last June. He did his practice teaching at Allegany High. Shaffer is married to the former Miss Patricia Kirk of Cumberland.

Watack, who graduated from Ambridge (Pa.) High School and Shepherd College where he majored in business education with a minor in physical education. In 1952 he received his master's degree from the University of Pittsburgh. He has also done graduate work at the University of Virginia, West Virginia University and George Washington University.

He taught four years at Capon Bridge High School and five years at James Wood High School in Winchester. Watack is married and has two children. The family will reside in Cumberland.

Celanese Honors Three Employes

The Amcelle plant of the Celanese Corporation honored three employes recently in recognition of 25 years service with the company.

Honored were Richard C. Kiser, extrusion manufacturing; Frederick T. Bowden, accounting, and Leona K. Webster, textile manufacturing.

W. E. Crooks, plant manager, presented gold watches to the three employes and section superintendents marked the occasion by awarding five-star service emblems.

Man Sentenced On Assault Count

James Ray Lewis, 38, of 504 Park Street, has been sentenced to 30 days in the County Jail after he was found guilty of an assault charge at a hearing in Trial Magistrate Court.

Magistrate F. Allan Weatherholt sentenced Lewis after finding him guilty of assaulting his wife, Marlene Lewis, 18.

Pupil Transfer Plan Announced By School Head

A program calling for the transfer of students to three schools as the result of the closing of Carver School was announced by Ralph R. Webster, superintendent of Allegany County Schools.

Webster said 19 Carver children will go to Gephart School and 28 to Columbia Street School. The 28 going to Columbia Street will come from the general area of the 300 block of Frederick Street.

In addition 45 children who have been going to Gephart will go to Northeast School by bus. This is known as the Pea Vine Run bus. This bus also picks up children on Mason Road, Union Grove and Hazen roads.

This transfer means there will be 26 fewer children at Gephart than last year. Webster said the average per room at Gephart will be reduced by three as a result of the move.

The superintendent explained an additional teacher will be assigned to each Gephart, Columbia Street and Northeast. The instructor at Gephart will be a helping teacher.

Local Girl Promoted In Salvation Army

Miss Jacquelin Langley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Langley, 13 G, Jane Frazier Village, has been commissioned a sergeant in the Salvation Army.

She was home on leave for 15 days and is in charge of new cadets at the Atlanta, Ga., Training College of the army.

She is a graduate of Fort Hill High School.

State Legislative Council Plans Visit To This Section

The Legislative Council of the General Assembly will visit Allegany and Garrett counties from Thursday, September 24, through Saturday, September 26, State Sen. Charles M. See said yesterday.

The council, the legislature's between-sessions study group, met Wednesday in Baltimore's City Hall to make definite plans for the tour.

Dr. Carl N. Everstine, director of the State Bureau of Legislative Reference, and the council's secretary, said Sen. See will be in charge of arrangements for the stay in Allegany County.

Sen. See said the group of 25 council members, staff personnel and representatives of the governor's office will arrive in Cumberland Thursday, September 24.

They will stay here Thursday night and Friday morning Sen. See said he will set up a meeting in the City Hall.

This will give the city and county officials along with any interested group or individual an opportunity to bring their problems before the council.

A check will be made by some of the party of Route 40 projects east of here and at noon Friday the council will be guests at luncheon at Frostburg State Teachers College.

In the afternoon the council will go to Oakland where a dinner will be followed by a public meeting with political and civic leaders.

The group will spend the night at Deep Creek Lake. Saturday, there will be an informal program devoted to checking the various state parks in the county.

That will include the new Deep Creek State Park which opened July 4, Herrington Manor, Swallow Falls and spots in state forests.

The group will return to Baltimore from Oakland on the B & O Railroad.

A New Cohesion In The Alliance

Whatever may come of President Eisenhower's meeting with Nikita Khrushchev later this month, his trip to Europe created an upsurge of goodwill which is a force in itself to be reckoned with.

One of the results, of course, is the greater strength and cohesion which has been given to the Western Alliance. There has been a tremendous display of cordiality toward Mr. Eisenhower personally and of confidence in him as a man who can be counted on to lead the way toward peace.

This has its dangers, but temporarily at least the ice seems to be cracking under the warmth of Mr. Eisenhower's smile. Even Khrushchev has felt compelled to recognize publicly the President's sincere dedication to the cause of peace.

But the President continues to reiterate that he will not be a party to a summit conference doomed to futility from the start.

"We must have some promise of fruitful results," he says. Barring that single exception, "there is nothing they cannot ask me to do."

There is frequent mention, with dismay, of Soviet successes in the field of propaganda. This time, it seems, Mr. Eisenhower has succeeded triumphantly in impressing on the people of the world the genuineness and sincerity of his mission.

This is not the sort of triumph which will win concessions from Nikita Khrushchev. But it has its own value, if Mr. Eisenhower and his advisers are wise enough not to overestimate its worth.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

Tough Going

It would seem that whenever a man rises to speak about Russia, he must provide credentials as to his knowledge of the subject. For instance, when Vice President Richard Nixon spoke before the American Legion at Minneapolis, he said:

". . . May I . . . remind you of the background from which I speak. I have made a comprehensive study of the philosophy, tactics and strategy of Communism as set forth by Marx, Lenin, Stalin and other Communist leaders. On the basis of those studies, I know that Communists throughout the world are united in working for one objective—Communist rule over all the people of the world."

Nixon went into this subject after he drove to Whittaker Chambers' farm in Maryland to uncover the Pumpkin Papers.

Unfortunately, not too many Americans have taken the trouble to do any solid homework on the subject of Russia and Communism and the operations of the Communist International. Therefore, their conclusions are often intuitive and incorrect.

To grasp what has been the motivation of the Communists throughout the world, one must recognize that only absolute faith in a principle can unleash such fanatical energy and sacrifice. The principle may be wrong, as the Christians at the time of the Crusaders believed that Islam was wrong, but faith does not question the correctness of its beliefs.

An ideal can be an undefined word. There are many brands of socialism and there are many different kinds of socialist parties. What they all agree upon is the inevitable success of socialism. In the short period of 42 years that the Bolsheviki have controlled Russia, there have been varieties of practice and numerous deviations from the pristine purities of Marxism. Nevertheless, Soviet Russia has been able to introduce the speed-up in production and to beat Great Britain, France and Germany in steel productivity.

A distinction must be made between Leninist socialism as an ideal and Stalinist Bolshevism as a method of operations. The difference is between writing articles and making speeches, to which Lenin devoted most of his life, and putting ideas into operation, to which Stalin devoted most of his life.

Khrushchev comes into this picture belatedly, when the orthodoxy of the faith in the inevitability of socialist success has been fixed, and the application of Stalinist devices requires reform and modernization.

The empire that Stalin built is in danger of collapse because of a war which neither side can avoid losing. Nikita Khrushchev, a second generation Communist Party official, must realize that, for he has been trained to a "scientific" approach to problems, which means that he recognizes peril. He has tried bluster, threat, ultimatum, jokes, everything and anything, but he has not found a formula for getting the United States and the Western European nations to accept him as a conqueror of the world.

Nixon put it correctly in his American Legion speech:

"I know from experience that the Communist Party in the United States, like all Communist parties throughout the world, is directed and controlled from Moscow and has in the past and will in the future engage in espionage and subversion in order to serve the interests of Communist governments wherever they are opposed to those of the United States or other free nations . . ."

But war also is not now the solution. And that Khrushchev knows as well as the United States and Great Britain and France know it. Possibly General de Gaulle, obsessed with "Gloire," can find some answer in war but there is not even a Maginot Line to protect France now. The next war will not be fought with brave hearts and intrepid spirits; it will be a short rain of bombs, rockets and missiles and death. This kind of war can only be recognized in all its horrible magnitude by those who have to deal with its preparation. In a word, Khrushchev would know that such a war can completely wipe out all the fruits of the Russian Revolution.

Just as Winston Churchill did not feel called upon to preside over the dissolution of the British Empire, so Khrushchev undoubtedly does not feel called upon to preside over the death throes of the Soviet Universal State.

This is the realistic motivation for the Summit Conferences. Having faith in the "scientific" inevitability of socialism, Khrushchev undoubtedly believes that if not destroyed by war, his regime will conquer the world.

Running Out Of Rope

Eisenhower Has Scrapped Major Policies Of Late Secretary Dulles

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON—Watching the eminently successful trip of President Eisenhower through Europe, I can't help but recall a historic day in Washington last May when the flag-draped coffin of John Foster Dulles lay in state in the National Cathedral. Foreign ministers from as far as Japan flew to pay their respects and homage. Even dour Andre Gromyko, Dulles' protagonist at many conferences, and gnarled old Chancellor Adenauer, Dulles' friend at many conferences, took the long trip across the Atlantic.

They came because Dulles' friend, the President of the United States, decreed that the Secretary of State should have a state funeral. Mrs. Dulles had planned a quiet family ceremony, but a deeply grieving President personally took charge of all funeral arrangements, even specifying the type of dress to be worn, and preparing the list of honor guests. He wanted the man who had worked so tirelessly to solve the problems of the world to have, in death, the recognition of the world. As a result, not even Presidents Roosevelt, Harding and McKinley, who died in office, were buried with such ceremony.

It was just two months and five days later that President Eisenhower began scrapping the policies of John Foster Dulles. He would be the last to admit this. And perhaps he didn't even realize he was scrapping Dulles' policies. But he did it first by inviting Nikita Khrushchev of the Kremlin to pay a personal visit to the White House, an invitation which Mr. Dulles had emphatically and consistently opposed unless our rights in Berlin were first guaranteed. They were not guaranteed, but Khrushchev was invited anyway.

Ike went even further by accepting Khrushchev's invitation to come to Moscow, which brought gasps of dismay from close friends of John Foster Dulles.

Ike Becomes A Dulles

Then one by one, the President proceeded to throw overboard or discredit, without specifically naming them or perhaps even realizing that he was doing so, the watchwords and policies of his late Secretary of State. The only policy he kept was that of personal negotiation. Stepping into the Dulles shoes of the traveling-diplomat-salesman, he proceeded to carry his own ideas direct to the trouble spots and troubled statesmen of Europe.

He has been so successful that many diplomats wish the President had become his own Secretary of State long ago. But in so doing, here is what happened to the policies of Mr. Dulles:

"Massive Retaliation" was a basic policy coined by Dulles in warning that the United States had "great capacity to retaliate instantly, by means and at places of our own choosing." In contrast, President Eisenhower told the world in his TV chat with Prime Minister Macmillan: "People want peace so much that one of these days governments had better get out of their way and let them have it."

"Brink of War"—This Dulles policy, outlined in Life Magazine in 1956, completely evaporated at the Geneva Foreign Ministers Conference, when the United States ducked any showdown of power over Berlin and sent Vice President Nixon on a peace mission to Moscow instead.

"Liberate the Satellites"—This basic Dulles policy was thrown out when Mr. Nixon conferred officially with the Communist leaders of satellite Poland, thereby switching the old policy of "liberation" to one of "friendship." Eisenhower further scrapped the liberation policy when, during his Bonn, Germany, press conference, he said he would not discuss the liberation of former German territory—referring to that held by Poland.

"Failure From Within"—Dulles had argued, privately and publicly, that the Soviet-Communist system would come tumbling down of its own errors. As late as Feb. 26, 1956, testifying before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, he said: "They (the Russians) have made little progress in the last few years . . . The fact is that they have failed and they have got to devise new policies."

In Moscow, following Dulles' death, Vice President Nixon, broadcasting to the Russian people, paid tribute to the "thriving productivity of the factory complex of the Urals . . . The efficient modern equipment of your factories . . . The competitive drive for progress evident on every side . . . and most of all the people."

Direct Disarmament—In December, 1956, Harold Stassen, then in charge of disarmament, pleaded with Eisenhower for permission to fly to Moscow to carry on direct disarmament talks with the Kremlin. He was convinced the Russians were ready not only for disarmament, but a 10-year peace pact with the United States. Dulles vetoed the Stassen trip, eased Stassen out as disarmament specialist.

Today, one definite objective of the Khrushchev-Eisenhower exchange is disarmament. There is also hope of new understanding—possibly a 10-year peace pact—between Russia and the United States.

White House advisers won't admit, of course, that Mr. Dulles' policies have been scrapped. But the diplomats will. And among both foreign and American diplomats, it's believed that Mr. Eisenhower's personal assumption of the reins of foreign policy is one of the healthiest developments of his seven years in office.

America Must Share Responsibility For Laos

By Joseph Alsop

VIENTIANE, Laos.

Judging by President Eisenhower's words and action, the President himself has not yet entirely grasped the key fact here. Yet the key fact remains that the Eisenhower administration has morally and politically committed the United States to guard Laos against the kind of Communist aggression that has now been attempted.

This American commitment has now become immensely, perhaps even desperately, important. Hence its obscure but undisputed story is worth recording.

The story begins with the situation created in this little country by the partition of Indochina in 1954, which the American government joined in sponsoring. Briefly, the Geneva partition agreement left Laos effectively divided. The King's sovereignty over the whole country was recognized. But the local Communist forces were left in firm control of the two northern provinces Phong Saly and Samneua.

The international control commission set up at Geneva was charged with this problem. The allegedly impartial Indian chairman of the control commission consistently took a pro-Communist line. Thus the commission finally persuaded King Sisavang Vong to name a mixed government headed by the non-Communist Prince Souvanna Phouma but including his brother, the Communist leader, Prince Souvanna Vong.

During all this period, the whole weight of American influence was thrown against the plan for a mixed government. As predicted by the Americans, the Souvanna Phouma - Souvanna Vong government came preilously close to giving the Communists full control of Laos. After the elections in the summer a year ago, the result was a really major political crisis.

The American moral and political commitment was made during this crisis. In brief, the King and other Laotian leaders had to decide at once whether to make an all-out effort to save their country. Yet the installation of a strong anti-Communist government would quite obviously tend to provoke reprisals and even intervention by the much stronger neighboring Communist government of North Vietnam. There the Communists in Laos had their real base.

The Laotian leaders emphasized the risk to the Americans. For example, before taking his young Laotian party into the new government, the present Foreign Minister, Khamphan Panya, went to the American embassy here. He pointed out that the enormous danger of a new course for Laos, and he asked for a formal American guarantee of Laos' territorial integrity.

Crown Prince Savang made the same point and asked for the same guarantee when the present Assistant Secretary of State for Far Eastern Affairs, J. Graham Parsons, visited the country at this critical moment. The American answer was always the same. We promised Laos full support and we asserted that the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization would guarantee Laos against aggresssion.

In other words, just what is now happening was clearly forecast to the American government before the strongly anti-Communist government of Prime Minister Sananikone was even formed. In full awareness of the danger, with all sorts of reassurances to the Laotians, the American government did everything possible to bring the Sananikone government into being. This in itself constituted a solid American commitment.

The commitment was then greatly deepened when American influence was also used to encourage the anti-Communist campaign rapidly launched by Prime Minister Sananikone. The leading Communists were placed under arrest. In the provinces, the more flagrant terrorists were summarily executed. The Communists-controlled units in the army were disarmed (but one of them got away and is now prominent in the fighting). The remaining machinery of Communist control in Phong Saly and Samneua was firmly dismantled.

All these actions, so strongly tending to provoke a forceful Communist reaction, were taken with explicit American approval. Meanwhile, further warnings of the coming Communist reaction were by no means lacking.

In January, the first probe occurred, when the North Vietnamese Communists seized the small frontier district of Khapai. From January onwards, the Hanoi radio telegraphed the coming punch by thundering threats of "grave consequences" of the Sananikone policy.

The Embassy here foresaw and indicated trouble ahead. At least one independent observer, the able Australian newspaperman, Dennis Warner, even predicted the present aggression in some detail. Yet the Americans were not deterred from pressing for appointment of an American training mission for the Laotian army.

This step has now been singled out by the Communists as the specific pretext for their attack on Laos.

In sum, Laos has been attacked because Laos took American advice. It was good advice. Yet a great country which insistently presses such advice on a small country must always assume responsibility for the consequences. The President almost seemed to reject that responsibility in his tepid press conference before going abroad. If he finally does so, the blow to the American and free world position in Asia will be completely irreparable.

Inside Washington

By Henry Cathcart

The yacht President Franklin D. Roosevelt used to cruise the Potomac River and the Atlantic seacoast is up for sale. She is only 25 years old, sleeps eight and can handle 75 on one-day trips. The Mayflower is Diesel-powered, has a speed of 13 knots and can cruise 2,500 miles without refueling.

The yacht's current owner is the state of Maryland fisheries commission, but she costs $50,000 a year to operate with her crew of 18.

President Roosevelt used the yacht for fishing and weekend relaxation. After 10 years' service as the Presidential yacht, former President Truman ordered her sold in 1946. No date has been set for the sale, and she's at her home port in Annapolis, Md., waiting for the auctioneer's gavel to fall.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

By Jim Bishop

The most thoughtless of all conversational crimes is blasphemy. Men use the name of God to punctuate sentences. Sometimes they do it to lend additional emphasis to a story. I have never known a man to do it as a deliberate slur on his God or a prophet in which he believed.

Recently, I watched a top-flight television comedian perform in a nightclub. Whenever he finished a joke, and did not draw a big laugh, he rolled his eyes and said, with amusing disbelief: "Jeez Cri. . ." This got him a bigger laugh. I wondered what it was doing to the patrons who take their religion seriously.

The next time he started a joke, I looked away from him, toward the little postage-stamp tables. The faces were all upturned, half laughing before he finished the story. When he concluded, and there was a small chuckle, he said: "Jeez Cri. . ." I saw some patrons break up into hearty laughter and I saw others shake their heads. I saw a young woman shudder and hold her hands over her ears and I saw one old man bow his head.

Blasphemy is a conversational crutch. It adds nothing to a story — it will not make an unfunny joke funnier — and yet it is as much an unconscious habit as picking the nose. When I was a young reporter, one of the marks of my importance was to blaspheme in every other sentence.

One day when I used it, and didn't know it, an elderly woman stared down her frosty nose at me and said: "I didn't know you knew Him that well.

"What well?" I said belligerently.

"That well. You call God by His first name."

"What are you?" I said. "One of those religious maniacs?"

She thought about it a moment. "From where you stand — yes," she said.

It required a lot of patience to get out of the habit. I was using the name of God without knowing it. It came out of me when I could not find a tie, when I got a busy signal on a telephone, when a light went red as I drove through it, when the children interrupted my work, when the boss asked me to do something distasteful, when a train was late, when a bore bent my ear — I almost gave up trying.

After a long period of time, I won but I almost went mute. It's like drinking. When you stop it, you begin to notice how much others do it. You tend to become insufferably holy and this is as far removed from my true character as crawling into a satellite and blasting off.

Women seldom use the name of God in vain. It lends itself to rough conversation and women do not like to be identified with anything but refinement. This includes the rough ones. The thought occurred to me that blasphemy would take different forms around the world.

"Holy Moses" should be offensive to a Jew. "By Allah's beard," must be unpleasant to a Moslem. "By Jehovah" should hurt everyone, because this name is used to connote the deity by people of many faiths. And yet, as I say, I've never met a man who used any of these terms with the intention of offending anyone.

In March 1957, The United States Bureau of Census made a survey of religion in citizens over 14 years of age. The tally showed that 79,000,000 Americans were Protestants, 30,700,000 were Roman Catholics, 3,900,000 were Jews, 1,500,000 belonged to small sects, and 3,200,000 were of no faith.

Thus about 115,000,000 Americans over the age of 14 believe in God. Of these, about one-third, or 38,000,000 adults are serious communicants who attend their churches and temples regularly and are genuinely afraid to offend God. These are the ones who are hurt, and say nothing, when they hear blasphemy.

The origins of blasphemy are lost in the yellowed centuries of long ago. This much I know: there was never a time, in any age, when a man could abuse the name of his ruler or king without risking punishment or death. Long ago, the scoffers found that the only one who could be mocked with impunity was the King of Kings. . .

Why Some Ex-Smokers Gave Up Cigarets

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

The reports linking cigaret smoking to lung cancer and other scrious diseases have done more to promote filter tip cigarets than to stop people from smoking. A recent study showed that less than 10 per cent of the smoking population has given up the habit because of the cancer scare. The majority of those who quit did so because they had an unpleasant condition that was made worse by smoking.

These conclusions stem from a study on ex-smokers made by E. Cuyler Hammond and Constance Percy. The over-all survey was made on several thousand men selected at random from the telephone book. Less than 19 per cent (333 men) had given up smoking. Of these, only 6.3 per cent quit because of reports that smoking causes lung cancer; 2.4 per cent did so because they thought smoking might be mad for the health.

More than half of the ex-smokers stopped because of physical complaints. Coughing was the most frequent reason and 39 per cent stated that their cough improved or disappeared after giving up the weed. Others listed sore throat, headache, and disorders of the lips and mouth.

Some blamed smoking for poor appetite, weight loss, or shortness of breath and were gratified with the good results that followed abstinence from tobacco. Only one man said he was worse off as a result of quitting; he was discontented.

Those who gave up because of physicians' orders usually had peptic ulcer, heart disease, high blood pressure, poor circulation, serious cough or a variety of disorders of the mouth, throat or ears.

What happened to their weight? Three out of four gained and the rest remained unchanged. The added poundage was temporary in some. Some regarded the excess weight as undesirable but the majority made no comment.

Many persons give up cigarets for some reason and then go back to them. Those who notice improvement during the nonsmoking interval ultimately give up the habit, even though the original complaint has disapepared.

TWIN OR DOUBLE?

Mrs. T. writes: My two young daughters are ready for regular beds. Half the time or more they sleep in the same bed now, even though they each have their own youth bed. We are buying new bedroom furniture but don't know whether to get the girls a double bed or twin beds. Are there any health advantages to their sleeping alone?

REPLY

Yes, because it is more restful.

CAUSE OF ITCH

E. S. B. writes: What makes the nose itch? I have asked my doctor and he says he doesn't know.

REPLY

Itching of the nose may stem from allergy, infection, habit, or nervousness. A psychological aspect exists. For example, many persons have an irresistible urge to scratch the nose when sitting in a dental chair.

HOT FOOT

D. W. writes: I'm 70 years old and my feet are so hot at night I can't sleep. What would cause this burning?

REPLY

You may have a circulatory disorder known as erythromelalgia. If so, keep the feet outside the covers at night and take an aspirin or two for relief. Other origins of burning feet are neuritis and too much blood.

CHEMICAL BALANCE

L. G. writes: Please explain the term, "maintenance of electrolyte balance."

REPLY

The electrolytes are chemicals such as calcium, sodium, potassium, and magnesium that are kept in a balanced state in a healthy body. This balance may be upset by surgery, severe diarrhea, vomiting, uremia burns, and other disorders.

YOUNG FOR IT

Mrs. F. writes: Can an 8 year old boy have piles?

REPLY

Yes. Hemorrhoids may occur at any age but the condition is more common in mid-life.

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

Try And Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

Harry Kurnitz, playwright and wit, began his career as a violinist, and still starts fiddling at the slightest provocation. "I love to play gypsy music in night clubs," he admits. "When I've had a few drinks, some ancient urge rises in me. Too few drinks, I'm inhibited. Too many, my fingers refuse to function. But there's a period of about forty seconds between the two stages when I'm pretty good."

One of Kurnitz's favorite violins was purchased from the fiddler who used to play sad songs to inspire Gloria Swanson when she was emoting before the camera in Hollywood's good old silent days. "I pick up this instrument," muses Kurnitz, "and before I know it, I'm playing 'Hearts and Flowers'!"

There's a daring little old lady in Cincinnati who prides herself on keeping an open mind. She's a bit baffled, however, by seeing girls' knees these days in places where once you didn't even see girls.

War's Anniversary Brings Memories To Policeman

By JERRY GOULD

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—The 20th anniversary this week of Hitler's march into Poland brought back some bitter memories for a member of the West Virginia State Police force.

Although the United States did not enter the war for another two years, Lt. R. E. Schnell, now serving in the Department of Public Safety executive offices here, vividly remembers some of the "hospitality" of the 3rd Reich during 1944-45.

(Lt. Schnell served at Romney barracks of the State Police for several years when he was a sergeant, and was promoted and transferred about three years ago.)

After entering the army in 1942 Schnell, a native of McMechen, was commissioned in January 1944 and that spring was on his way to Africa as a B-24 bomber pilot.

After being reassigned to the 15th Air Force in Italy, Schnell flew missions into Germany France and the Balkans.

Schnell headed the crippled plane toward the Russian lines some 170 miles away. But it lost altitude rapidly and he ordered his crew to bail out.

When all of his men had jumped Schnell followed and landed in a pasture. He was paralyzed from the waist down and when he got untangled from the parachute, he found several Germans standing over him with rifles.

Schnell learned he had a broken ankle and torn ligaments in both knees but was given no treatment by his German captors. He was taken across the country from jail to jail until he reached an interrogation center at Frankfort-on-the-Maine.

After several days of questioning and trips to the center's dungeon, Schnell was taken to a hospital in Frankfort. By that time his legs were horribly swollen and he was afraid he might lose one or both.

However, the injuries responded to treatment and he was later taken to a prison camp 60 miles southeast of Berlin. He remained there until January, 1945, when the Russians started lobbing shells into the compound.

A long, forced march followed in snow that sometimes was hip deep, to another camp near Munich. It was there that units of Gen. George S. Patton's 3rd Army liberated 80,000 prisoners April 29, 1945.

"I never thought I would like the smell of tank exhaust fumes," Schnell recalled Thursday. "But when Patton's tanks broke through that compound wall, they were wonderful to behold, fumes and all."

Ridgedale Reservoir Area Spruced Up

Improvements have been completed at Ridgedale Reservoir for the season, according to Water Commissioner G. Ray Light.

Earlier this year the big reservoir was cleaned and repaired. The picket fence surrounding the property was painted white, and the posts green.

The work was completed this week as crews, under the supervision of Franklin J. Blaney, sanitary engineer, applied a coat of aluminum paint to valves and hand rails.

Watershed Lumber Plan Recommended

The city's sanitary engineer has recommended that an agreement for perpetual maintenance and management of lumber in the watershed be entered into with the M. C. Houseworth Lumber Company.

The recommendation was made to Water Commissioner G. Ray Light by the engineer, Franklin J. Blaney.

The agreement would include the following restrictions: (1) Watershed areas be placed under definite sustain-yield management to grow forest products for the future. Protect and control erosion and provide the city with a return from its forest holdings; (2) the lumber company shall employ a graduate forester to take charge of managing the watershed area's timber in cooperation with the sanitary engineer so that the proposed plan is properly worked and maintained under professional guidance from both fields; (3) areas be thoroughly examined and inventory and definite cutting plan be drawn up by the forester and engineer; and (4) logging loads and skidroad designs be drawn up before each logging operation is started and such plans be strictly adhered to and placed in a permanent filed.

Payments would be set up as follows:

The lumber company would pay current stumpage prices for timber, depending on ease of access, location, type, etc. A definite system for determining stumpage prices should be devised.

Value of stumpage determined from current lumber prices owed by the lumber company to the city, shall be placed in account for future lumber purchases and in event such lumber is not handled by the contracting lumber company, then the company will be obligated to obtain this lumber for the city at the prevailing wholesale price.

The company would be required to clean up tops from logging operation near roads, streams or reservoirs or any other area considered dangerous from a point of view of fire or mineral contamination of water, by cutting these tops into pulpwood. This would be done by the company and such pulpwood would be considered payment in full for the cleaning up operation.

Blaney also recommended that a committee be set up representing both the city and lumber company to discuss any special matters which may arise during working of the proposed contract. A management plan would be set up for a definite number of years and revisions made depending upon timber conditions as a result of this first phase.

Blaney said he believed a plan to control forestation would be of benefit to the city and added he had discussed the plan with R. H. Bommer, formerly with the Pennsylvania State Forestry Association and presently representing the Houseworth company, and with Charles W. Koontz, Bedford, attorney for the Eyitts Creek Water Company, who, Blaney said, favors the program.

Light said he would study Blaney's report and discuss it with him.

Apple Orchards Hard Pressed By Processors

Area apple orchardists depending on the canning market are being hard-pressed this summer and the Eastern Fruit Marketers Co-op has expressed strongest dissatisfaction with prices announced by two Appalachian processors.

The co-op's board of directors, meeting in Martinsburg this week, said it would not recommend delivery of apples at the prices stated and feels the reactivation of last year's "3-D" program is in order.

The processors, C. H. Musselman and Co. of Biglerville, Pa., which operates a plant at Inwood, Berkeley County, W. Va., and Duffy-Mott Co., Chambersburg, Pa., listed prices just 25 cents above last year's for the top variety.

For the top canning apple, York Imperial, No. 1, 2½ inches up, the processors are paying $2.25 a hundredweight. Last year this was $2.00.

But for the less desirable grades, the canners are offering prices below last year. In fact, so much so, many of them will be left in the orchards.

There are more of this variety this year due to sectional droughts and the orchardists' feeling that extensive pruning and spraying would not be justified by last year's prices.

One orchardist reported that if the prices were hiked another 25 cents a hundredweight the growers could break even this year.

The "3-D" plan calls for deferring delivery of processors, diverting as much fruit as possible into fresh channels and leaving the poorest portion of the crop on the trees.

The co-op's board of directors said it was unwilling to work a hardship on those financially hard-pressed growers who feel the necessity to deliver varieties now ready for harvesting.

The cooperative is an outgrowth of a dispute with processors last year over prices and was set up to bargain with the canners. There are more than 500 members.

Those orchardists who deal mostly in the fresh market are in better shape as they are getting prices much better than last year's.

Consolidated Orchard Company at Paw Paw, with half of its holdings in Allegany County, said it will not be affected greatly by the canning prices.

Little Hope Seen For Petition

Supporters of a petition which would require a referendum on a proposed charter amendment setting up new rules for city street construction and resurfacing said yesterday chances appeared slim that the required number of signatures would be obtained by deadline time today.

L. V. Lowery, 714 Frederick Street, a spokesman for the group, said work is continuing and petitions are still out but it did not appear they will contain the required 20 per cent of the registered voters to send the issue to a vote of the people. He added he could not estimate the number already signed but did say it is far under the 2,323 necessary.

Petitions will be turned over to City Clerk Wallace G. Ullery whether the required number of voters have signed or not "to let the city know that at least some people are interested," Lowery said.

Lowery added it has been surprising to find the number of people in various walks of life who are not registered to vote in the city.

River Flow Below Normal

The observed mean daily flow of the Potomac River at Cumberland (Wiley Ford gage) during August was 179 cubic feet per second, or 116 million gallons per day.

This is 40 per cent of the 30-year August average, according to A. A. Vickers, engineer in charge of the U. S. Geological Survey here. The daily flow averaged between 301 million gallons August 8 and 82.1 million gallons August 22 and 23.

Use of water stored in Savage River Dam caused an average increase of 33.6 million gallons, or 29.1 per cent of the flow in the river.

Major Earthquakes Rare In Most Of United States

WASHINGTON—In a world jarred by more than one million earthquakes a year, the United States occupies a region of relative calm.

Severe tremors in the Yellowstone National Park area, recently hit by the worst siege in its history, are infrequent.

No place on the earth is immune to the violence of tremblors, but the major earthquake belt runs around the edge of the Pacific, the National Geographic Society says. Significantly, there is the juxtaposition of lofty, rugged mountains and extreme ocean depths. The mountain chains are still growing.

Second Trouble Zone

The second major trouble zone extends from the West Indies across the Atlantic and Mediterranean to the Himalayas and East Indies. The Himalayas and mountains of the Indies also are young.

Earthquakes—like volcanoes—are intimately connected with mountain-making. The earth, like an adolescent, is still suffering from growing pains. It is restless, unpredictable. Tremors and volcanoes are safety valves to ease pent-up pressure and strain.

Tremors occur at "faults" or deep fractures when one rock mass slips against another, causing the earth's crust to vibrate and rebound. Most faults lie beneath the sea.

This year has been particularly quiet. The Coast and Geodetic Survey, which keeps a sensitive ear on the trembling earth, has recorded only 157 major earth tremors in 1959 as compared to 241 during the same period last year.

The most destructive earthquake in recent history rocked Assam and Tibet in 1950, burying whole villages and flinging rock dams across rivers.

The last severe United States earthquake struck the area of Bakersfield, California, in 1952, causing millions of dollars worth of damage. Another of about equal intensity rocked the sparsely populated area of Fallon, Nevada, in 1954.

Interior of Continent Safe

The interior of the continent is regarded as safe, though the basin of the Mississippi Valley occasionally is disturbed. In 1811, Missouri oscillated—and with it two-thirds of the nation. New Madrid and Caruthersville, Missouri, were demolished. Fissures opened in the earth, and for a while the Mississippi flowed upstream. A portion of northwest Tennessee sank, forming Reelfoot Lake.

The western plains and western mountain region seldom feel strong earth shocks. In particular the Dakotas are anchored solidly. North Dakota, West Virginia, Wisconsin, and the District of Columbia share the distinction of never having experienced a major earthquake.

As the West Coast lies in a major earthquake belt, tremors occur there more frequently than in other parts of the country. In few places does the earth twitch more regularly than in California. The San Andreas fault, which triggered the 1906 earthquake in San Francisco, is one of the largest and best known rifts in the world.

Weirton Steel Men Cite Advantages Of Keeping Their Independent Union

By JOHN KADY
United Press International

WEIRTON, W. Va. (UPI)—The 13,500 employes of Weirton steel, who continue to work during the nationwide steel strike, can vouch for the fact that an independent union sometimes has its advantages.

Employes of Weirton Steel haven't been on strike in more than 25 years while members of the United Steel Workers union (USW) have left the job six times since World War II.

Employes of the Northern Panhandle steel plant have had their own union since 1933 and on Oct. 26, 1950, organized the present Independent Steel Workers Union (ISU).

The USW has consistently attempted to organize Weirton Steel but has met with no success. The latest attempt was early this year when the USW set up organizing headquarters at Weirton and Follansbee.

The national union had to get a petition signed by 30 per cent of Weirton Steel's employes before an election could be conducted. They failed to have the election called when they couldn't obtain enough petitioners.

$60 A Year

ISU president Malcolm Graham said "it isn't the members they're concerned about; its that $60 a year in dues that they (the USW) wants from the 11,000 workers that belong to the ISU."

At present the 33 job classifications at Weirton Steel are paying an amount of 5 cents more an hour than USW members were receiving at major plants when they went on strike.

A Weirton Steel Co. spokesman said labor - management relations at the plant are about the best in the country. Wildcat strikes simply don't occur and there hasn't been a work slowdown in the last quarter of a century.

Weirton steel employes usually sign a new contract for as much as USW members will get or more, following a USW strike," he said. "The policy of the ISU is to see what USW members get then try to improve on their positions."

The economy of Weirton and surrounding towns is bolstered by not having to go through a strike period.

Lose Nothing

An $1,800,000 payroll is paid out by Weirton Steel every Thursday. While USW members are losing $70,000,000 a week in payrolls, employes of Weirton Steel are losing nothing.

Such a solid economy in the 34,000 population town is well illustrated by the number of residents that own their own homes, 95 per cent—one of the highest community percentages in the country.

Or down the highly industrialized Ohio river valley it is a different story. The town of Benwood, almost wholly dependent on the town's striking Wheeling Steel Corp. plant, is having economic difficulties.

Business in the respective towns can well reflect the economic situation. A Weirton business man said "our sales are running about 20 per cent ahead of last year and there hasn't been any let down." A Benwood business man said "my business had dropped 75 per cent since the beginning of the strike and it's all I can do to meet expenses."

Hold Open House

FROSTBURG — Mr. and Mrs. Edward Boyle, Mt. Pleasant Street will hold open house Tuesday, September 8, following the church ceremony of the veiling of their daughter Barbara at 9:30 a.m. Friends of the family are welcome to attend.

School Problem Aired By Board, PTA At Romney

ROMNEY — The Hampshire County Board of Education is being urged to consider removing shop facilities from Romney High School to provide more classroom space for an overflow of students.

The recommendation for the removal of the shop equipment was made by a group of parents from each of the school's six grades, headed by R. L. Sumner, president of the Romney Parent Teacher Association.

According to A. Clinton Loy, superintendent of schools, it was estimated that the renovation of the shop space into three classrooms would cost between $3,000 and $5,000.

The Board of Education, Loy continued, will take the recommendation under advisement and inform the PTA if such action is possible. The cost of the project will require considerable alteration in the school system's $611,527 budget, the superintendent said, since operating costs were "cut to the bone."

The board's decision will be made at the first regular meeting of the PTA later this month.

The overcrowded condition was brought to public attention at the opening of the school term Tuesday. Approximately 50 new seventh grade students were assigned to the school gymnasium because of lack of seating facilities.

Robert B. Harper, principal of Romney High, said some arrangements have been made to crowd students in rooms, but that a large number are receiving instructions in the gymnasium. The condition will remain in effect until the Board of Education makes known its decision, he added.

The only other proposition discussed at yesterday's meeting in Loy's office was the possibility of erecting a quonset-type building. The superintendent said such a solution was considered too costly, and that a permanent solution was more desirable.

In the event the board decides to accept the PTA recommendation, the Romney High shop would be moved to quarters downtown, Loy said.

Hospitalized

WESTERNPORT—Mrs. Arthur Peters, Main Street, was admitted to Memorial Hospital, Cumberland, for observation and surgery.

FSTC To Give Guidance Tests Next Week

FROSTBURG—Dr. William C. Van Newkirk will conduct a testing program at Frostburg State Teachers College next week for all new students, both freshmen and upperclassmen.

Dr. Van Newkirk said that he will be using the complete battery of tests which have been designed for the national guidance testing program.

Testing will begin Tuesday for new students with surnames A-K inclusive, from 1 to 4:45 p. m. They will also be continued for this group on Wednesday and Thursday at the same hours.

Students with surnames from L-Z will be tested Wednesday, Thursday and Friday from 8:15 a. m. to noon.

A briefing session for approximately 30 proctors who will assist Dr. Van Newkirk will be held Tuesday at 11 a. m. in the Lowndes Hall social room.

The national guidance testing program offers these features Dr. Van Newkirk said:

A complete battery of tests developed to aid the school administration, guidance counselor, and classroom teacher in directing the learning process according to each student's ability to learn and to apply his knowledge in the major academic areas; the tests, school and college ability tests (SCAT) and sequential tests of educational progress (STEP) cover general academic ability in reading, writing, listening, social studies, science and mathematics.

According to Dr. Van Newkirk, the SCAT tests assess the capacity of the student to undertake academic work at the next higher school level and provide three scores: verbal, quantative and total, and are used with STEP which bring to light any disparity between a student's performance and his ability.

The STEP tests measure the critical skills in application of learning and are available in six major academic areas.

Dr. Van Newkirk said the test results will be used in planning the student's area of concentration while at the college and will also be used for guidance purposes.

Getty Answers Iser's Plea

State's Attorney James S. Getty has filed an answer in Allegany County Circuit Court denying that Howard Maurice Iser, now serving a total of 13 years in the Maryland Penitentiary, is illegally imprisoned.

Iser was convicted last October 17 of armed robbery and was sentenced by Chief Judge Morgan C. Harris to 10 years in the penitentiary. Iser escaped from the County Jail November 5 and was recaptured later in Montgomery, Ala.

On January 19 he was tried before Judge Harris on the jail break charge and drew an additional three-year term to be served after the original 10 years are completed. August 17, Iser filed a petition for a hearing under the Post Conviction Procedure Act.

His chief argument in the petition appears to be the denial of legal counsel at his second trial on January 19. At that time he refused to have legal counsel. Judge Harris has referred this case to Associate Judge Neil C. Fraley of Oakland.

In his answer, Mr. Getty further contends that Iser was legally convicted, the sentence did not exceed the legal limits and his rights under the U.S. and State constitutions were not infringed.

446 Pigeons Enter Race

The first young bird race of the Allegany Racing Pigeon Club's 1959 series attracted 446 pigeons from 16 lofts, the largest number ever to compete in one race.

This 100-mile race from West Union, W. Va., was flown under unfavorable conditions. Fog encountered en route slowed the race and caused scattered returns.

Coney Bill II from the Town View Loft of Galen Beeman was the winner, averaging 836.96 yards per minute.

Others in the top 10 were No Money Jim from the Back Alley Loft of Homer Yates, 817.80 yards per minute; No. 1034 from the Gilmore Loft of C. A. Ambrose, 801.08 yards per minute; No. 905, also from the Gilmore Loft, 800.96 yards per minute; Sitting Bull from the Klondyke Loft of Leslie Cutter, 799.15 yards per minute; Horse Shoe, also from the Klondyke Loft, 797.51 yards per minute; Foggy from the Woodland Loft of Irvin Buskirk, 789.34 yards per minute; Doll, also from Town View Loft, 787.41 yards per minute; Silly from Woodland Loft of Irvin Buskirk, 787.22 yards per minute, and Kate from the Pear Alley Loft of J. H. Sweitzer, 782.23 yards per minute.

The next race will be a special 100-mile race from West Union.

Residents Claim Home Damaged By Blasting

The occupants of 514 North Mechanic Street yesterday filed a $5,000 damage suit in Allegany County Court against the A. J. Albrecht Company for damages they claim resulted from flood control work on Wills Creek.

Alice G. Waingold, Georgia L. Myers and Floyd H. Myers, her husband, filed the suit through their attorney, Harry I. Stegmaier.

The plaintiffs claim that as a result of blasting by the defendant, the house and property were damaged and the occupants were deprived of peace and quiet.

Mr. Carscaden emphasized there was no discrimination, since rates for all water companies were boosted the same.

No increase was made in industrial rates, he said, since the city wants to help keep the costs of area industries down.

City officials outlined the problems the city faces in modernizing its water system and pointed out that flat rates were increased here as a water conservation measure and are being abolished in 1961.

Will Study Schedule

The water company officials said they will study the new rate schedule and apply to the Public Service Commission, as Ridgeley is doing, if the firm must boost rates for its 147 customers.

City officials promised to furnish any help needed if PSC permission is sought.

Joint action with Ridgeley was suggested if PSC action is needed.

It was pointed out that water consumers in LaVale now have to pay more than Cumberland customers.

The money is, of course, paid to the LaVale Civic Improvement Association, which provides the service, and not to the City of Cumberland.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD—Robert Crichton's popular novel "The Great Imposter," bought from the galley proof over a year ago by Ed Muhl, goes to Tony Curtis.

This is the true life story of Ferdinand Demara, who disguised as a deputy sheriff, college professor, surgeon, a Royal Canadian Mounted and even a Trappist monk, made many fortunes. Whenever the hot breath of the law would breathe on him, he would go into hiding as one of these characters. He was so convincing no one had any idea that he was masquerading under an assumed name and profession.

Young Robert Mulligan, who will direct Tony and Debbie Reynolds in "Rat Race," has been engaged to direct and Robert Arthur is the producer.

No one can deny that Susan Kohner is one of the most talented young actresses in this town. Acting just seems to come naturally to her. The very same day that Natalie Wood and Bob Wagner were signed by Pandro Berman for "Ever For Each Other," Susan also put her name to a contract.

There are four top roles in "Ever For Each Other." It is possible that George Peppard will be given the last one, although I believe this isn't set. When you see the completed movie it will have another name, since it is the intention of the MGM biggies to change the title.

There is a big chance that Diane Varsi may change her mind and play her role of Allison in "Return to Peyton Place" for 20th. The picture will be shot in New England close to Bennington, Vt., where Diane goes to school. Jerry Wald has been in touch with her and at this writing it looks favorable, but you can never be sure about this Varsi girl.

One thing is sure enough. Brett Halsey, who was in "The Best of Everything," gets one of the top roles in the second Peyton epic. He has also been put under a term contract and it is Buddy Adler's intention to give him a big buildup.

Talked with Haya Harareet, who is just back from New York where she was interviewed about "Ben Hur." She said she met Otto Preminger there and he asked her if she would be interested in playing the femme lead in "Exodus."

"I would love to do it," she said, "because it is being filmed in Israel, my own country, but naturally I cannot discuss or accept any role without permission of MGM, as I am under contract to that studio."

"Ben Hur" will be released in November and "Exodus" won't be made until March of next year, so it is possible Haya will be permitted to play the role of Karen. As I told you, Paul Newman has been signed for the male lead and Haya would love to play opposite him.

I am certainly happy that Erin O'Brien and her husband Jimmy Fitzgerald have reconciled, and that they will have a happy reunion when she returns from starring in "Pal Joey" in Miami Beach.

Jimmy told me that they actually had been reconciled for the last three months, but during that time Erin had been out of town in summer stock and on TV shows. They are both delighted that Erin's next movie, "Cinderella" at Paramount, will be filmed right here.

I'm here to tell the audience that goes for Kookie and Fabian, Bobby Darin, and the rest of the young crowd, that they are in for a treat. Jackie Gleason is going to make a TV spectacular of "The Baker's Wife."

Teen-agers never had the privilege of seeing the wonderful original French production of this comedy masterpiece which starred Ramu, but it was simply the funniest.

Some years back, Harold Hecht, then of Hecht-Lancaster acquired the American rights and planned to film it as a way of introducing Sophia Loren to his country. But Stanley Kramer got Sphia first, and Hecht abandoned the project.

Paul Kohner made the Gleason deal.

Dry Skin Remedies

There's nothing fascinating about the newest wrinkle—when it's a wrinkle in your skin. A wrinkle in your skin happens along fastest if the skin is dry. Dry skins certainly need more devoted care than any other kind because the dryness must be coped with constantly. But no beauty program, faithfully followed, is more rewarding than a good one for dry skin, because it does so much to make youthful good looks last.

Make no mistake about it. Dry skin is a special case that requires special attention. If your skin is dry:

For you, special preparations always. Cleansers formulated for dry skin, super-fatted or lanolin-base soap, night creams or liquids containing lanolin or other rich oils.

And special methods. Face-washing with soap once a day only, preferably at bedtime, followed by careful rinsing. A night care preparation always at bedtime, and at any other time of day when cosmetics can be removed and the preparations left on for a while. So much the better if a film remains under fresh makeup. Blotting with a cool, wet Turkish towel after cream cleansing when it can't be followed by the night preparation.

Once a week, a special treatment. Cleansing first, then the application of a hot, wet towel to your face until muscles relax. A generous application of skin oil after this. Now play the piano on your face for two minutes — tap the skin gently, don't pull at it. Remove excess oil with tissue.

If the skin flakes, mix a half teaspoon of salt into one-quarter cup of the skin oil and smooth, don't rub, this mixture into the skin. Apply a second hot towel over it immediately and leave the towel on a minute. Rinse the face with warm water.

For the final step, a pad of inch-thick cotton big enough to cover the entire face and neck. Soak it in a bowl of ice cubes to which has been added two tablespoons of witch hazel or skin freshener. With the compress on your face, lie down for ten minutes.

Wonderful! Your face feels and looks wonderful right away. Best of all, if you continue the special treatment faithfully along with the rest of this beauty routine, you can expect the improvement to last. Your skin really will be fresh and alive, and that is what makes it—and you—look young.

Television and Radio

by John Crosby

The Only Hope

Louis Untermeyer is a poet who looks and sounds like a staccato eagle and who thinks that poetry is the only hope of our beat-up generation. He's also the author of a book called "Lives of the Poets," brashly following in the footsteps of Samuel Johnson, whose best book had the same title and same wildly ambitious outlines. Untermeyer is a veritable torrent of opinion on the subject of poetry, a topic that has not been exactly at the top of the hit parade for some years now, and the other day I asked him to say a few words on the subject — which is something like pulling your finger out of the dike in Holland.

"W. H. Auden, one of the greatest poets this century has produced," proclaimed Mr. Untermeyer, "once called this the Age of Anxiety, which I think is a brilliant term. This is the Age of Anxiety — politically, socially, culturally, and poetically. Poets and writers and musicians and sculptors reflect our terrific insecurity and so creators, instead of using our common language —the written word—try to get to the audience in a new and different way. Either yelling above the din that is going on—radio, television — or speaking so quietly hardly anyone hears them.

"The cure for this is the recognition of the basic simple facts of poetry. The geniuses of tomorrow in poetry will be the ones who write the Burma Shave ads along the road or the Alka Seltzer ads in the buses. There is supposed to be a basic prejudice against poetry; it's too esoteric, too highbrow, or any of those other words you find in Roget's Thesaurus. What most of us don't realize is that everyone loves poetry. They have it everywhere Burma Shave, for instance—good rhymes, perfect rhythm which could not be better if Pope himself had written them. The prose is also wonderful," Mr. Untermeyer observed owlishly, "that prose one reads in the ads telling you the facts about your stomach lining, the glamor of burping to Alka Seltzer. What would the Maguire sisters do without poetry? Poetry has rhythm, rhyme, beat, and emotional impact — on your stomach lining if so directed.

"We are caught between the highbrows being derisive of popular poetry and the people being derisive of highbrow poetry. Until we realize it's only a common meeting ground and both the so-called high and lowbrow poetry have the same impulse we won't get anywhere. Is Ogden Nash only a funny poet? I don't think so. He's a social critic, makes fun of many things we think sacrosanct. Mr. Auden is not only a very serious poet but a very witty one.

"Good poetry has sounded every level between the so-called high and lowbrows. There is a good deal in poetry for any reader. We quote more from Pope in our daily life than from anything else except the Bible and Shakespeare. Poetry is part of our life — commercially. Poetry was written for the vulgar: they sang it before it was printed as the beatnik poets do today."

What about the beatniks, Mr. Untermeyer was asked? "I think beatniks have this to say—'We don't want your world, your values, or your morals. You'll go to church when you've stopped believing. We want a quick drink, a fast girl, and another motel. We want out,' This is all a gesture of defiance, a gesture of rebellion. They rebuke the older generation and that's good. But their philosophy is destructive because this is a destructive age we're living in. Disillusionment also is a serious fallout. Man is a talking animal and I'm all for the beatniks expressing themselves in prose or in poetry."

He sighed: "You wanted to know if I was going on television. I don't like television or radio. Poetry once had a large audience but it did not then have these large mechanical competitors — television, the UP, the newspapers. Why, once they used to read poetry at home, they even talked to each other at home, had conversations and everything. Before poetry comes back, conversation will have to come back.

"I don't know if this will happen. I hear clasrooms now are equipped with television and soon everyone will be taught by television, thus eliminating the teacher who gave you personal contact. We will then definitely become a nation of observers."

San Francisco Slugs Out 8-5 Victory Over Chicago

McCovey Hits Safely In 16th Straight Tilt

Giants Slam Three Homers; Boost Lead Over Braves, Bucs

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The San Francisco Giants, using the long ball again in a 14-hit attack, slugged out an 8-5 victory over the Chicago Cubs Thursday before 15,424 fans and edged further ahead in the tight National League race.

The Giants blasted three home runs, a triple and two doubles.

The triumph put San Francisco 4½ games ahead of Milwaukee and 5½ over Pittsburgh. The Braves and Pirates were idle Thursday.

First sacker Willie McCovey, who has hit safely in 16 straight games, broke a 4-4 tie in the fifth with his 10th home run of the season off Dave Hillman, who had relieved Cub starter Bob Anderson.

Orlando Cepeda and Willie Kirkland followed with doubles and the Giants never were behind again.

Willie Mays belted his 25th homer in the sixth with Jackie Brandt on base. It was the 7th straight game in which the Giants have homered.

Stu Miller, pitching in relief after the Cubs routed starter Johnny Antonelli, got the victory, his 8th against 7 losses.

Loes Throttles Bosox In Ninth, Orioles Win, 5-4

Makes 14th Save, Hal Brown Victor

BALTIMORE, Md. (UPI)—Relief pitcher Billy Loes put down a ninth-inning Boston Red Sox rally Thursday night to insure a 5-4 victory for the Baltimore Orioles.

Loes came on the scene after the Red Sox had scored twice in the final inning and had the tieing run on third base with two out. He forced Pumpsie Green to ground out to preserve the triumph for veteran Hal Brown.

Brown had allowed only six hits and held a 5-2 lead going into the ninth when Boston erupted. Jackie Jensen walked to open the inning, but Brown appeared out of trouble when he retired the next two batters on infield flies. Then, pinch hitter Vic Wertz walked. Marty Keough, also in a pinch hitting role, slammed a long triple to right center.

Saves 14th Game

Loes then came on to record his 14th save of the season for the Orioles.

Earlier Bob Nieman slammed a pair of 400-foot home runs to pace the Orioles' 10-hit attack on loser Frank Baumann and Nelson Chittum.

Nieman's first blast over the center field fence followed Chico Carrasquel's double in the third and gave the Orioles a 2-0 lead. Boston tied it with single runs in the fourth and sixth innings on a pair of singles by Sammy White. Nieman's second wallop, 30 rows up in the left field seats broke the tie and gave Baltimore a 3-2 lead in the seventh. Willie Tasby's triple, a walk and singles by Brown and pinch hitter Gene Woodling produced the final Oriole runs in the eighth.

Brown's record is now 9-7. Baumann, who beat Baltimore twice before this year, is 5-4.

Six Executed As Spies

HONG KONG (AP) — Six men were executed and 24 arrested last week on charges of spying and sabotage in Canton, according to Chinese Communist press reports here.

Should Vice President Richard Nixon and Senator John Kennedy wind up as rival Presidential candidates, next year's battle for the White House will have the aspects of a neighborhood feud. The two occupy suites 361 and 362 in the Senate Office building!

During the recent heat wave a glance around the office showed that the white collar workers have been replaced by the no collar boys.

'But, Officer . . .'

Olmedo Faces Aussie Today In Nationals

Meets Don Russell In Opening Round

FOREST HILL, N.Y. (AP) — Alex Olmedo begins the long road back Friday, and the first thing he sees is another Australian.

The Peruvian from the University of Southern California, a disappointment in last week's Davis Cup challenge round, meets Don Russell, a 19-year-old Sydney youngster, in the first round of the National Tennis Championships.

This is a title the mysterious Inca must win if he is to hold his position as the recognized world No. 1 amateur and remain live bait for a professional contract.

Thirty-two men's singles matches, the entire bottom half of the draw, and 15 women's engagements are on the first day's program at the West Side Tennis Club.

Australia's Neale Fraser, the Davis Cup hero, and Barry MacKay of Dayton, Ohio — seeded second and third, respectively, behind the favored Olmedo — open their campaigns Saturday.

Three other men seeds, besides the Peruvian, play Friday. Rod Laver of Australia, No. 4, faces Arthur Ashe of Lynchburg, Va.; Earl Buchholz Jr. of St. Louis, No. 7 takes on Robert Bowditch of Worcester, Mass., and Roy Emerson of Australia, No. 8, goes against John Skogstad of Coral Gables, Fla.

Ditmar Wins For Yankees

Art Notches 11th Over Senators, 9-2

NEW YORK (AP)—Art Ditmar, Yankee right-hander, held Washington hitless for 6 2-3 innings Thursday, then coasted as the New Yorkers pounded out a 9-2 victory. The winners collected 17 hits.

The first blow off Ditmar was Roy Sievers' 18th home run of the season after two were out in the seventh. Bob Allison followed with a single but Hal Naragon flied out to end the frame.

The third hit was Clint Courtney's pinch homer to open the eighth. The only other safe blow was Sievers single in the ninth. Ditmar struck out six and walked two in chalking up his 11th victory of the year. He has been beaten 8 times.

Russ Kemmerer started for Washington and was touched for two runs on singles by Marv Throneberry, Cletis Boyer, Ditmar and Bobby Richardson in the second.

Successive singles by Mickey Mantle, Elston Howard and Hector Lopez at the start of the third sent Kemmerer to the showers and Hal Woodeshick took over. Errors on grounders by Tony Kubek and Boyer meant three runs.

VFW Capture Three Awards; 175 Attend R.C. League Dinner

One hundred and seventy-five persons attended the annual dinner of the Rocking Chair Softball League last night at the B.P.O. Elks Home where Manager Cecil Grimes and his V.F.W. champions were honored and trophies were presented.

Phil Reuschel, second baseman of the V.F.W., was named as the winner of the Harry Dean Memorial Trophy, donated by Cumberland Lodge, Loyal Order of Moose. The selection is made by the umpires and the winner was announced by Kenneth Grimes, league umpire-in-chief. The trophy goes to the player who typifies the true spirit of the Rocking Chair League for this year.

The three other awards were earned by the tossers of Henry Hart Post V.F.W., regular season champions and playoff winners for the second straight season. William B. Orndorff, league president, presented the large bat, offered by the league, to the champions; James Stafford, representing the Queen City Brewing Company, presented the trophy donated by that firm to the team finishing in first place, and William V. Keegan presented the John Fradiska Memorial Trophy to the Vets for copping the playoff crown.

John M. "Jack" Robb acted as master of ceremonies and Rev. Bruce Price, pastor of Park Place Methodist Church pronounced the invocation.

Among those who made remarks were Mayor J. Edwin Keech, F. Leslie Robertson, exalted ruler of the Cumberland Elks Lodge and league president Orndorff. Guests included coaches of Fort Hill, Allegany, LaSalle, Beall and Ridgeley high schools.

L. M. Duncan, general manager of the Queen City Brewing Company, announced that his company will donate a memorial trophy in honor of David Kauffman next year. Mr. Kauffman was a former league official. At the time of his death Mr. Kauffman was assistant attorney general of Maryland.

Wall, Littler Co-Favorites

Kansas City Open Will Start Today

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Masters Champion Art Wall, Jr., and Gene Littler, 29-year-old California professional, who top the season's money list, reigned as favorites Thursday night in the $20,000 Kansas City Open starting Friday on the Blue Hills Club's par-72 layout.

Both riding hot streaks, Wall and Littler should experience little strain in conquering the tree-lined fairways and fast greens. However, the same could be said for virtually all of the more than 80 circuit tourists here to shoot for the $2,800 top prize. The field also includes about 40 amateur shotmakers from surrounding states.

A total of 271, seventeen under par, for the four-day event was predicted by host professional Duke Gibson as the figure good enough for the title. The competitive course record of 65, seven under standard, was set by Robert De Vincenzo, Argentina pro, in the 1954 open.

Recent heavy rains have made the 6,542-year playground lush with grass. With tee shots shortened by the slow fairways, the experts contend the South American's 18-hole mark and the tourney record of 268 by Wally Ulrich in 1954 were not in jeopardy.

The players are pitchers Tom Cheney of Omaha, Howard Nunn, Dick Ricketts and Bill Smith, all of Rochester, and Bob Blaylock of Tulsa; catcher - outfielder Gene Green, outfielder Bobby Gene Smith and infielder Billy Harrell of Rochester, catcher Jim Schaefer and outfielders Duke Carmel and Jim O'Rourke of Tulsa.

"Bill" Catherman Seeks 12th Title In 39th Tourney

Ninety-six players have qualified for the men's fall golf championship tournament at the Cumberland Country Club and first round matches are scheduled to get under way tomorrow.

Players have been divided into six flights of 16 each for match play. Summer rules will prevail in the championship flight.

Joe Wolfe is the tourney medalist with a 72.

Barton Evens Title Series

Tops Corriganville In Second Game, 7-6

Barton squared its Maryland-West Virginia Little League playoff series with Corriganville at one-all by winning yesterday in Barton by the score of 7-6.

Manager Paul Johnson's team was extended an extra inning to pull the game out of the fire when Paul Fairgrieve singled with the bases loaded to break a 6-6 deadlock. Larry Duckworth's walk and singles by Eddie Cuthbertson and Larry Suder preceded Fairgrieve's winning blow.

Joe McIntyre went the route for Barton, yielded seven hits and struck out nine. Terry Burkett, Corriganville twirler, gave up ten blows and fanned eight.

Jimmy Sweitzer, George DeHaven and Richard Mellott slammed homers for Corriganville. Rizer had two hits as did DeHaven.

Lohr's Condition Remains Unchanged

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (UPI)—Charley Lohr, 19-year-old sophomore center on the Maryland football team, remained on the critical list of a local hospital Thursday night after suffering heat exhaustion following the Terps' afternoon session Wednesday.

Dr. William Holbroo, university physician, said Lohr is "responding to treatment remarkably."

Lohr, who was rushed to the hospital with a temperature of 108 shortly after Maryland's first scrimmage of the season, was immediately packed in ice and his temperature subsided Wednesday night.

Terps Preparing For Mountaineers

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP)—More offensive action and drill on West Virginia formations dominated practice held by University of Maryland football squads Thursday.

West Virginia is the Terps' first opponent, Sept. 19.

Springfield Plays Capon Bridge For Title On Sunday

Capon Bridge and the Springfield Rockets will clash Sunday at 2 p.m., E.S.T., on the Romney High School Field for the championship of the Hampshire County Baseball League.

Last Sunday Capon Bridge tied the Rockets for first place at 11-3 by defeating Timber Ridge 11-10.

The league has decided there will be no Shaughnessy playoff because of the fact that the teams will be greatly weakened as a result of players returning to colleges and high schools. This is the first year for the eight club circuit.

Harold "Butch" Carl or Tom Frye will pitch for Springfield and John McCauley will be on the firing line for Capon Bridge in Sunday's championship battle.

International Has Entry From Mexico

LAUREL, Md. (AP) — Mrs. Maria Ugarte de Bava's Lea-B will arrive here Oct. 1 to complete training for the Washington D.C. International, Laurel track officials announced today.

The 3-year-old filly became the third foreign entry in the $100,000 turf race to be run Nov. 11 at a mile and a half. New Zealand's Up and Coming and England's Nagami were named earlier.

Lea-B., winner of four races this season and a second-place finisher in her only other five starts in Mexico, was voted horse of the year by turf writers there. She is the only 3-year-old filly to win the honor since it originated 16 years ago.

Reds Will Have Brother Battery

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Cincinnati Redlegs will have a brother battery beginning Friday.

General Manager Gabe Paul Thursday announced the purchase of Jim Bailey, 24, lefthander, from Nashville of the Southern Association. He is a younger brother of Ed Bailey, first string catcher for the Reds.

Jim Bailey won 10 games and lost 6 this year. He was defeated the first four times he pitched, then went on to win 10 of the next 12 games.

Steelers Play Colts Tonight

Orange Bowl Scene Of Exhibition Game

MIAMI, Fla. (UPI)—The Baltimore Colts, National Football League champions, make their first appearance in Florida Friday night when they meet the Pittsburgh Steelers in the Orange Bowl.

The Colts, boasting pre-season victories over the College All-Stars, New York Giants and Washington Redskins, will try to extend their streak against a team that usually gives them trouble.

Led by Ernie Stautner on the line and Jack Butler in the secondary, the Pittsburgh defense shackled the Baltimore attack two years ago and won 19-13. It was Pittsburgh's second triumph in as many meetings with the Colts. Coach Buddy Parker's Steelers also edged the Colts in an exhibition last summer, 13-10.

The Steelers have lost to the Chicago Cardinals and Chicago Bears since opening their 1959 pre-season program by defeating the Cleveland Browns.

The first friction matches in America were manufactured in Thurmont, Md., in 1825.

Mt. Savage's Bobby Uhl Takes Pony Loop Batting Title

Uhl's Average .573; Jim Diehl Was Top Pitcher With 8-0

Bobby Uhl of Mt. Savage pounded the ball at a .573 clip to win the batting championship of the Bi-State Pony Baseball League for the 1959 season.

Uhl collected 43 hits in 75 official at bats and among his blows were seven home runs and a like number of two-baggers.

John Lowery, Ellerslie, was runner-up with an average of .569 and was followed by Arnold Zaks, LaVale, .538; Allan Eisel of the Frostburg Little Moes, league champions, with .530 and Bill Kelly, LaVale, with an even .500.

Eisel Hits 11 Homers

Eisel was the league's home run king with eleven round-trippers, one less than the record 12 set last year by Dave Kerch, also of Frostburg. Eisel, incidentally, hit four more homers in the playoffs and three came in one game. Allan also set the pace in triples with six while Joe Nolan, Mt. Savage, rapped ten two-baggers to lead in that department.

The league's No. 1 pitcher was Jim Diehl, of Frostburg, with an 8-0 record. He also was the strikeout king with 84 victims in 50 innings. Including the playoffs, the Little Moes' ace was 10-0 and his whiffings totaled 100 in 63 innings.

Diehls Win 15 Games

Jim's younger brother Bill, who also figured prominently in Frostburg winning the pennant and playoffs, had a 7-1 record and fanned 70 in 48 innings during the regular campaign. Counting the playoffs his overall mark was 9-1 and he struck out 91 in 62 innings.

Ralph Wilson, Mt. Savage, was 4-0 for the season; Marvin "Lefty" Miller, Lonaconing, won five and lost two; Don Engle, Mt. Savage, finished up with a 6-3 mark and Wayne Howell, Ellerslie, notched six victories against four defeats.

World Series Opens Sept. 30, American Winner Plays Host

Delay Will Occur If Races End In Tie, Prices Unchanged

CHICAGO (UPI) — The 1959 World Series will start Wednesday, Sept. 30, in the park of the American League winner. Tickets will be priced from $10 to $2.

Series details were ironed out at a meeting between Commissioner Ford Frick, top league officials and representatives of clubs still in the pennant races.

Frick said each club could announce when it will begin printing tickets, but seven teams were given permission to order printing plates for tickets.

Will Allow Day Off

If the series involves either Los Angeles or San Francisco a day off will be allowed for travel after the first two games. Three games will be played in the National League park and another day will be set aside for travel if a sixth or seventh game is required.

Ticket prices will be the same as last year, Frick said, $10 for a box seat, $7 for a reserved grandstand seat, $4 for standing room and $2 for the bleachers.

If a playoff is required to decide either race, the series will be delayed, Frick said. Both leagues now have best two-of-three game playoffs.

Two New Developments

Two new twists in series tickets selling were announced at the meeting.

A Chicago White Sox spokesman said his club had received permission to sell series tickets in blocks of two games, or by the individual game, and a representative of the Los Angeles Dodgers said a standing room ducat in huge Memorial Stadium would entitle the buyer to a seat.

Ed Short, White Sox press relations director, said the club directors and President Bill Veeck had decided not to sell tickets in the customary blocks of four games.

"We believe we can reach more people and satisfy more fans by selling tickets per game or in blocks of two," Short said.

Law, McCovey Named Players Of Month

CINCINNATI (AP)—Willie McCovey, the San Francisco Giants' sensational rookie, and veteran pitcher Vernon Law of the Pittsburgh Pirates Thursday were named co-winners of the National League's player - of - the - month award for August.

They each received 8½ votes from the 40-man committee of writers and broadcasters who make the selections.

Savage River Could Become Water Supply

Rate Hike Aired At Meeting Here

Expanding communities and industries in the Cumberland area may have to look to the proposed second Savage River Dam for future water supplies, city officials said last night.

The source was mentioned by City Attorney William R. Carscaden at a meeting with the Wiley Ford Water Company, Inc., whose officials asked if the City of Cumberland were considering a new supply for its water customers.

Mr. Carscaden said one possibility is a third Evitts Creek dam, but that city officials have been advised against such construction, since there is "only so much water in the watershed."

Could Feed Towns, Industries

He suggested that if the proposed second dam is built, the present dam could be a source of water for towns and industries along the North Branch of the Potomac.

Such a water line, he said, would make a 20-mile area along the river available to industry, with water and railroad facilities on hand.

He pointed out that such a program would be a county or area and not a city program.

For the present, it was pointed out, the aim must be to make the best of the city's water storage, treatment and transmission facilities for the benefit of all who depend upon Cumberland for water.

And this, Mr. Carscaden said, is the reason behind the increased water rates which have been adopted for most classes of water users.

Rate Is High

The city attorney and Water Commissioner G. Ray Light met last night in City Hall with H. A. Henderson, general manager; F. R. Monahan, secretary, and R. C. Simpson, treasurer of the water company.

The Wiley Ford firm, officials said, charges the highest water rates in the state, and its schedule begins with $3 a month for the first 1,000 gallons, $1 a thousand for the next 2,000 gallons, and then 80 cents a thousand.

Motel Planned At Toll House On Route 40

A local man has been issued a building permit by the Allegany County Assessing Department to construct eight motel units along U.S. Route 40 west of Cumberland.

Neale Nesbit, 717 Gephart Drive, said the project is expected to cost about $10,000 and the units will be located on two acres of land in the rear of the Toll Gate House on Route 40.

A service station was formerly operated on the site of the motel units which will be of brick and will measure 22 feet by 110 feet.

He said the foundation will be of concrete block and the units will have a built-up roof. Mr. Nesbit said the units are expected to be completed in February next year. The land was assessed to The Rosemont Company.

Richard N. Davis of Potomac Park was issued a permit to build a five-room frame dwelling with bath at a cost of about $8,000. It will have a concrete block foundation and asphalt shingle roof.

A&P And Union May Continue Contract Talks

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — The Amalgamated Food Workers Union indicated Thursday it may continue negotiations beyond Saturday midnight's contract expiration deadline provided the talks don't become deadlocked.

Members of the union's Local 590 who work in 123 A&P stores in the tri-state district already have authorized strike action. However, a union spokesman said this does not necessarily mean a strike is certain.

Similar strike authorization was granted to local leaders in the Altoona, Pa., and Cleveland, Ohio, districts where contracts have expired, but no walkouts occurred as contract talks continued.

On Wednesday night, members of Local 590 rejected management's offer of a two-year agreement providing a 7½ cents hourly wage increase the first year and a five-cent boost the second. The vote was 1,035-193.

Local 590 covers only the meat departments at the local A&P stores, while other employes at the stores are governed by Local 886, Retail Clerks Union. A spokesman for the local stores said Local 590 here has been without a contract since July 12.

Two A&P stores in Cumberland, Md., come under the Altoona district.

Court Kills Glass Plant NLRB Order

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—A National Labor Relations Board policy permitting a craft union to create an independent bargaining unit in a firm that has plant-wide bargaining was condemned as discriminatory here Thursday.

The discriminatory tag was hung on the NLRB policy by the U.S. 4th Circuit Court of Appeals in a suit involving two unions at the Cumberland, Md., plant of Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co.

The United Glass and Ceramic Workers of North America (AFL-CIO) claimed it had exclusive bargaining rights in the plant.

The NLRB, however, sanctioned an election in which the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers won the right to bargain for a small group of electrical workers. The glass workers union at the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co. protested.

The glass workers claimed the NLRB exceeded its authority when it permitted the electrical workers to carve out a craft union in a plant represented by another union.

Judge Morris A. Soper, speaking for the circuit court, agreed with the glass workers. He set aside an NLRB order naming the electrical workers union as a bargaining unit in the Cumberland plant.

Mill Employe Files $75,000 Suit In Court

An employe of the Luke mill of West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company has filed a $75,000 damage suit in Allegany County Circuit Court against Tidewater-Hazelwood, contractors, for injuries sustained when he was hit by a truck owned by the defendants.

Arthur A. Umstot, 507 Maryland Avenue, Westernport, through his attorney, Edward J. Ryan, claims he was hit by the truck while he was walking near the mill property line just off Cromwell Street in Luke.

The accident, according to the declaration, occurred on the afternoon of October 29, 1957 while the plaintiff was at work.

While walking from one side of the property to the other, Mr. Umstot says, he was hit by the truck, was hurled about 25 feet, and suffered severe and painful injuries.

He claims he was required to undergo surgery and had hospital and medical expenses and was unable to work from the day of the accident until April 6, 1959.

The plaintiff claims he lost about $12,000 in wages and about $1,400 from April 6, 1959 to September 1 that year.

He filed a claim with the Workmen's Compensation Commission of Maryland and West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company paid a considerable amount of compensation to the plaintiff, in addition to paying hospital, medical and surgical expenses incurred by Umstot.

Insurance Firm Files Odd Suit

An unusual $2,500 damage suit in which a Frostburg man is accused of having violated the terms of a subrogation agreement has been filed in Allegany County Circuit Court.

The action was brought by the Great Falls Insurance Company, 2519 North Charles Street, Baltimore, against George Pappas, East Main Street, Frostburg.

The declaration, filed for the insurance company by Attorneys William C. Walsh and William Walsh, states that on or about June 3, 1954, the company issued a $50 deductible automobile insurance policy to Mr. Pappas. About May 13, 1955, Mr. Pappas was involved in an accident on Braddock Road near the westerly city limits of Cumberland. The othe car, driven by Mrs. Bernice M. Lancaster, as agent for her husband, Thomas V. Lancaster, was responsible for the accident, the suit says.

About July 15, 1955, the insurance company paid $1,970 to Mr. Pappas for his damages as a result of the accident. The company was able to salvage a small amount from the wrecked Pappas car, which reduced its net loss to $1,681. Subsequently, the insurance company and Mr. Pappas signed a subrogation agreement which gave the company the right to collect from the Lancasters.

The company then asserts that Mr. Pappas violated the terms of the subrogation agreement about August 12, 1955, when he executed a general release to the Lancasters. The effect of this action was to bar the company from collecting from the Lancasters. Finally, the company states that because Mr. Pappas violated terms of the subrogation agreement, it can bring action to collect from the Frostburg man.

The interior of a 1959 model country sedan owned by Rev. H. M. Richardson, rector of Emmanuel Episcopal Church, was destroyed by fire yesterday evening while it was parked on the East Side ball diamond on Central Avenue.

Firemen from East Side station received a call at 7:24 p. m. and extinguished the blaze with 200 gallons of water from the booster pump and tank.

The cause of the fire was undetermined, according to firemen, who said Rev. Mr. Richardson had accompanied a ball team to the park. The players noticed thick black smoke emitting from the sedan, which suddenly burst into flames.

Firemen radioed police headquarters for assistance in directing traffic. Officer Elmer Shank was sent to the scene.

Legion Renews Drive For VA Direct Loans

'Discrimination' Cited By Post 13

Fort Cumberland Post 13, American Legion, has asked the Veterans Administration to conduct a survey leading to the qualification of the City of Cumberland for direct VA home loans.

Members of the post recently adopted a resolution urging the Veterans Administration to consider qualifying the city as an area where veterans of World War II and the Korean War may obtain direct home loan financing.

The same request was made by the post on two previous occasions and resulted in a review which failed to qualify the city for the direct loans.

Requests Survey

The Legion said it was requesting the VA to conduct another eligibility survey due to the continued disinclination of local financing institutions to engage in veterans' home loans, even though the interest rate has been increased to 5¼ per cent.

Qualification, the post said, will boost the economy of the city in addition to enabling veterans to take advantage of the veterans' housing program which expires for World War II veterans next July and for Korean War veterans in 1965.

Copies of the resolution have been sent to VA officials and area legislators have been asked to urge the VA to reconsider.

Hagerstown Included

The Veterans Administration, in turning down a previous request, said it was the intention of Congress to confine the direct loan program to veterans in rural areas and towns of less than 30,000.

The post said it feels the VA ruling amounts to discrimination, since Hagerstown, which had a population of 36,260 in the 1950 census, was qualified for direct loans. (Cumberland's 1950 population was 37,679.)

Direct VA loans are made in 19 counties of Maryland, including Allegany County, with the exception of Cumberland.

Chief Parker To Speak At Fire School

Fire Chief Virgil A. Parker will give a talk on "Fire Insurance and Estimating Fire Losses" this morning during the 26th annual Short Course for Firemen which opened Tuesday at the University of Maryland, College Park.

He will point out that the Cumberland Fire Department estimates fire damage as being minor, major or total, and does not estimate losses in dollars and cents.

Quite a few fire companies, he said, do estimate losses in dollars and cents. Locally, said Chief Parker, the estimate of fire losses is left up to insurance company adjusters, who he feels are more qualified.

In the event of a suspected arson case, the local fire department turns in a report to the insurance company, the chief said.

Chief Parker will give his talk in conjunction with a lecture by Harry Klasmeier, chief of the fire prevention bureau of Anne Arundel County. His subject will be "Estimating Losses."
